Experts wary

Vietpeace optimism baseless?

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some American diplomatic and intelligence experts are skeptical about Henry A. Kissinger's optimism over prospects of a meaningful cease-fire in Indochina.

The main point of concern at the moment is the reappearance of major North Vietnamese tank forces in at least two areas of South Vietnam recent days.

One intelligence source said a complete North Vietnamese tank regiment has infiltrated through the demilitarized zone into the area around Hue in Military Region I. He said the better part of a second tank regiment has been reported in the same area. That totals more than 300 tanks and other heavy armored vehicles.

He noted there was another infusion of armor last month down the Ho Chi Minh trail into South Vietnam along the border with Cambodia.

This bold move indicates Hanoi is very confident, these officials say, since such an operation requires moving sophisticated equipment far from supply bases.

They add it also means Hanoi is preparing to launch an offensive if new attempts fail to make the Jan. 27 cease-fire truly work.

Kissinger will meet in Paris Wednesday with special North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho in the second round of the latest effort to implement the original cease-fire.

Kissinger said after returning from the first session last week that he expected to reach "new understandings" next week on implementing the Jan. 27 agreement.

When asked about the national-security adviser's optimism, the sources said they "wished they could share" Kissinger's view, but they knew of nothing to substantiate his assessment.

The doubters also pointed out that Kissinger was optimistic about the chances of the original agreement to end the fighting. Instead, the combat level has stayed high throughout most of the post-cease-fire period.

Kissinger also predicted a quick cease-fire in Cambodia, and that has never come close to fulfillment, they said.

Another source also indicated recently captured enemy documents may have been planted to fool South Vietnam and the United States. These documents and other intelligence information indicated Hanoi intends to abide by whatever new arrangement Kissinger anj Tho work out.

"What is more likely to happen is that Hanoi and the Viet Cong may ease off for a month or two. If they don't get some political advantage in that period then they will attack," one administration official said.

According to this source, an intelligence expert, it is unlikely the Kissinger-Tho sessions will result in any meaningful change in the balance of power in the South.

BOSTON (AP) — Heart specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White is reported in fair condition at Massachusetts General Hospital after suffering what doctors described as a "small stroke."

Secret papers shocking, Sen. Ervin declares

Top-level 'Gestapo mentality' seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the present and former top officials in government are telling very different stories about their mutual connections with the Watergate scandal.

And Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, says he has read secret White House documents that disclose a "Gestapo mentality" existed at the highest levels of the Nixon administration.

Ervin's comments at a news conference in Winston-Salem, N.C., Thursday were the strongest he has made about the explosive issues uncovered by the broadening Watergate investigation.

The top-secret papers he was discussing surfaced when fired White House Counsel John W. Dean III told a federal judge he had taken them from the White House. The judge gave the North Carolina senator a copy. They are a blueprint for domestic espionage, but President Nixon said the plan was never implemented because the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, objected to it.

"It would be a great shock to the American people" if the contents of the papers are made public, Ervin said, adding that he plans to ask the nation's intelligence agencies for their recommendations regarding release of the documents.

The Watergate committee chairman, a Democrat, said the papers detail White House plans to set up "an interagency operation to spy on Americans, especially those who disagreed with the administration."

Since the disclosure several weeks ago that the Central Intelligence Agency may have been pressed into Watergate-related service, a number of congressional watchdog committees have launched separate, secret inquiries into the activities of America's official espionage agency.

The resulting testimony has pitted former top White House aides against the highest echelons of the CIA and FBI.

As related by some of the officials themselves and by members of various committees, here are some of the conflicts that have shown up in recent sworn testimony behind closed doors:

—Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr., former deputy director of the CIA and now commandant of the Marine Corps, said that John D. Ehrlichman asked him by phone on July 8, 1971, for CIA assistance to E. Howard Hunt, since convicted in the Watergate conspiracy.

Ehrlichman, then President Nixon's domestic-affairs adviser, said he never made the request, told Cushman so and

Michigan solon declares war against Ohio

By STEF DONEV
Associated Press Writer

WYANDOTTE, Mich. (AP)— Michigan's mighty militia may march on Ohio to capture Toledo and other hamlets north of the 41st parallel, says a state senator who has declared war on the Buckeye State.

Sen. John McCauley, D-Wyandotte, declared war Thursday because of "nefarious demands by a group of Toledo businessmen and brigands" who want $11 billion from the Wolverine State in war reparations from the 1835-36 Michigan-Ohio war over Toledo which was fought over an apparent drawing error by a mapmaker.

That war cost one mule its life, a soldier a cut finger and a Toledo farmer his cabbage patch.

Congress and the U.S. Supreme Court finally ruled that Toledo is part of Ohio, a decision some chauvinistic Michiganders applauded.

McCauley—who recently helped a Roseville, Mich., girl fight a court order to get rid of her pet chicken—says declaring war is his "senatorial perogative since my district abuts Ohio.

"This is similar to other wars. The victors—which we clearly are—always have to go back after the holocaust to re-educate and support the losers, and I'm sick of it.

"The war is in the best interests of the misplaced persons who are rightful residents of Michigan," he told The Associated Press.

"We want to lead them out of the Ohio wilderness and return them to the good life."

Ohio has not responded to the challenge, but McCauley says he's willing to take the contested Ohio lands in trade for some of Ohio's Lake Erie floodwater which keeps parts of his district wet.

"Michigan's own Henry Kissinger, Sen. Harvey Lodge, says he's willing to lead the peace talks," he added.

McCauley said several state senators who served as pilots in World War II have volunteered for the Michigan Air Force.

"We might be forced to draft some men to man the barricades, but hopefully the true Michigander spirit will bring us a volunteer army mighty enough to quash the Buckeyes—11 or 12 should do it."

McCauley's Chief of Staff is Sen. John Bowman, his roommate in Lansing and his partner in the celebrated chicken case. 7

Sister Mary Karl George, R.S.M., the provincial administrator of the Roman Catholic Sisters of Mercy in Michigan and Iowa, has volunteered to serve as official historian for the Michigan militia "as long as I can watch the battle through field glasses."

Sister Karl authored "The Fall of Toledo, Mich." for the State Historical Commission. It is considered the definitive work on the war.

McCauley plans to finance the campaign with contributions, and says: "The war chest is growing. We have $10.25 already, and I expect $37.28 by Sunday."

McCauley also wants the legislature to declare the cardinal, the Ohio State Bird, a pest in Michigan.

Iceland cod war heats up

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — A government spokesman charged today that 10 to 20 British trawlers rammed an Icelandic tugboat three times in disputed waters east of Iceland, leaving it in danger of sinking.

At the same time, the British Trawler Federation announced in London that two British trawlers were rammed by an Icelandic gunboat Friday in a new surge of violence in the dispute between the two countries over fishing rights around the Atlantic island.

U.S. gives copters to Cambodians

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The U.S. government has given the Cambodian air force "a small squadron" of helicopter gunships for close air support in tight combat situations, military sources said today.

In South Vietnam, Viet Cong sappers blew up an ammunition dump 12 miles from Saigon, injuring 10 South Vietnamese soldiers and destroying 400 tons of mortar and artillery shells, authorities reported.

A normal squadron numbers about 20 aircraft. The sources said the UH1 "Huey" gunships, equipped with miniguns and rockets, arrived in Cambodia Tuesday. They were used for the first time Wednesday, escorting convoys along the Communist-infested Mekong River supply corridor. Security considerations precluded disclosure until today.

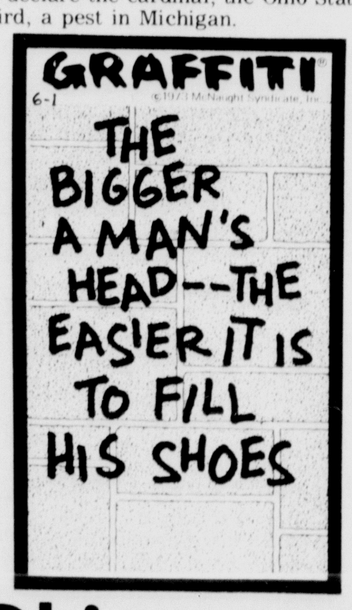
Cambodian pilots trained in Thailand "are doing a really good job with the choppers, both flying and maintenance," one informant said. "They're doing as well as Americans would and better than the Vietnamese."

Cambodia has about 20 propeller-driven bombers, 36 Huey helicopters, 36 twin-engine transports, about a dozen spotter planes, and a new squadron of highwing monoplanes that can be used for forward air control or as gunships.

Arrival of the new gunships comes at a time when the U.S. Senate has voted to cut off all funds for continued bombing in Cambodia and Laos and when the Cambodian armed forces are undergoing a major reorganization.

The U.S. Defense Department has reported that B52 bombing raids over Cambodia have been cut by one-third, in part because Congress has not yet acted on a request to transfer money from one military account to another.

However, B52s pounded suspected insurgent positions along the east bank of the Mekong River today, nine miles from Phnom Penh. The explosion in South Vietnam occurred before dawn and ripped through the big former American base at Long Binh. The blasts continued for eight hours, rattling doors and windows in Saigon.



Greek junta abolishes monarchy

ATHENS (AP) — Premier George Papadopoulos announced today that he was abolishing the monarchy and making Greece a presidential republic.

Papadopoulos proclaimed himself first president of the new republic in a radio brodcast to the nation.

Papadopoulos had taken over as strong man and crown regent in March 1972. He masterminded the April 1967 coup which brought the military junta to power, suspending parliamentary rule.

He said the junta made the decision to end the monarchy in a special Cabinet meeting today. A plebiscite will be held within two months to ratify the decision, he said.

Following the referendum, Greeks will vote in a general election for a new parliament by the end of 1974. It will be the first election in Greece since February 1964.

The premier said investigations showed that King Constantine was involved in the recent abortive attempt by admirals and navy officers to topple the government.

Papadopoulos accused Constantine, self-exiled in Rome since 1967, of "collaborating with foreign forces, of turning against the armed forces, of becoming a political leader and even collaborating with murderers."

The junta's decision was no surprise. For a week, the junta has been leaking rumors of its intentions to solve the monarchy issue.

Papadopoulos said that the 33-year-old king, instead of conforming to the 1968 constitution after his countercoup failed in 1967, "cooperated with all shades of reactionary political forces despite the constant warnings of the goverment."

AIRPORT WORK PROGRESSES — This airview shows progress on the Dallas-Fort Worth airport due to open in the fall, Runways are on either side of the terminal buildings where elimination of finger-like extensions will mean quick and convenient aircraft movement in and out of terminals. A 10-lane parkway runs the length of the airport and connects with major highways at each end. The airport will be the world's largest.

Skylab crewmen enjoying leisure

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab's astronauts today enjoy a luxury never before known in space — a day of leisure, which will include their first showers after a week of work in the warm space station.

It is one of three free days planned during the 28-day mission by Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz.

Experiments are suspended for the day. Unless there is an emergency, mission control will leave them alone, except for relaying routine messages.

Experts on the ground will continue to troubleshoot Skylab's power shortage, working on procedures for one of the astronauts to take a space walk to release a stuck solar panel.

Commander Conrad hinted Thursday night there may be at least some chores to do.

"It'll be more like a field day," he radioed. "We've got an awful lot of housekeeping to do. Things are scattered all over the place, so we'll spend some time cleaning house."

Conrad said he hoped to play orbiting tourist and snap some pictures from the window during the day. He asked the control center for the map coordinates of Egypt's pyramids and African Mt. Kilimanjaro.

One thing they're looking forward to is the shower, scheduled for late afternoon. Each will lather himself, step behind a circular plastic shower curtain and use a hand-held device to spray himself with about two quarts of water.

In the weightless environment of the space station, the water droplets were expected to cling to the curtain and the astronauts. The spacemen will suck them up with a hand-operated vacuum cleaner.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz have worked in 80-degree plus temperatures since boarding the station a week ago and have reported they are somewhat sweaty.

"The shower will be very welcome," Kerwin said.

Flight controller Don Puddy said the temperatures now are expected to stabilize at about 80 degrees in two or three days.

Futures market skyrockets; consumers to feel effects

By MARY GANZ
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — If you've never seen a bushel of soybeans it's hard to imagine why scores of men would be willing to pay $10 for them.

But scores of men are willing to pay that much and more for a bushel of the oily, pea-shaped beans. And many don't even know what soybeans look like.

Yet they buy and sell thousands of bushels of soybeans by dealing in commodities futures, contracts promising delivery at some future date.

Thousands, and sometimes hundreds of thousands, of dollars are won and lost daily in such dealings at the Board of Trade.

In the past few weeks, the traders have been mostly making money.

The commodities futures boom has nearly tripled the price of soybeans in a year and almost doubled that of wheat and corn.

Consumers will eventually feel the price increase at the meat counter, say many traders. The commodities bought and sold at the Board of Trade are used primarily as livestock feed.

"The farmer is getting pressure from both ends," one broker said. "He's faced with paying more and more for his feed grains, yet not being able to raise prices above the government ceiling. He has no choice but to cut production."

Soybeans are the "glamor stock" of the futures market. But other futures prices have been soaring, too.

Most traders say, with conviction, that prices are hitting record levels because the supply of food commodities simply can't keep pace with demand.

But there is another view expressed by one trader: "The only thing that's worth a damn in this country is its agriculture.

"They're not producing cameras or televisions any more in this country. Pretty soon they're not going to be making cars. Who wants to buy a 300 horsepower car that breaks down twice a week!"

Soybeans lead price increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by soybeans, farm prices jumped four per cent last month and averaged 33 per cent more than in May last year, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

The Crop Reporting Board said prices for the month ended May 15 also included increases for cattle, cotton, corn, and potatoes.

Soybeans registered the sharpest increase, rising to a national average of $8.27 per bushel, a boost of $2.13 from April. Since last fall, soybeans have increased $5.01 per bushel, the department said. In May last year, they brought $3.35 per bushel.

18-year-olds bill faces Ohio panel vote in week

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill extending adult rights to 18-21-year-olds will head to a committee vote next Thursday with a couple of amendments that could sign its death warrant if they remain when it goes to a floor vote.

The House Judiciary Committee Thursday amended the Senate-passed measure to include the right to drink hard liquor.

At the same time it put in another amendment that would prevent them from being policemen or state highway patrolmen.

There were indications the drinking amendment may have been put in with intentions of killing the bill. The House did reject it two years ago because of that provision.

When it came through the Senate this year, Sen. Stanley Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, rejected floor attempts to put it back in.

"Although I am in sympathy with giving them the right to drink," he said, "the House will never buy it. We will just kill the bill."

The committee action was the highlight of the final day of the legislative week. The House in floor action passed a bill banning studded tires on Ohio highways during summer months.

The studded tire bill, which now goes to the Senate, specifically bans the tires April 1 to Nov. 1. It passed 78-8.

Rep. John Bechtold, R-26 Cincinnati, attempted to amend it to ban the tires year around. Sponsors claimed they tear up roadways.

Although the amendment had the support of the bill's main sponsor, Rep. Jerome Stano, D-7 Parma, it was defeated 49-37.

The Senate passed and sent to the Senate three bills that would:

—Permit state-chartered banks to invest in Minibanc Corp., a firm that gives loans to minority businesses. National banks within Ohio can now invest in the firm. (31-1)

—Allow the secretary of state to initially approval different brands of voting equipment, which he can do now only if the legislature has authorized that type by statute. (32-0)

—Increase from two to three years the vacation time a state or county employe can accumulate and use at the same time. (32-0)

The House passed two bills already approved by the Senate and headed them to Gov. John Gilligan for signing into law.

They would:

—Permit jurors to serve in county courts even if they have served within the past 30 days.

—Permit schools to operate staggered attendance schedules if the Ohio Department of Education approves.

In other action, the House refused to concur in Senate amendments that would prohibit an auto dealer from permanently attaching his name tag to a new auto without the owner's consent.

Deputy held in slayings

ESCANABA, Mich. (AP) — A Delta County sheriff's deputy has been arraigned on charges of first-degree murder in the deaths of his wife and two infant sons.

The burned bodies of a Dennis Murphy's wife and children were found at the 25-year-old deputy's home in nearby Garden Thursday morning after Murphy was found beaten and handcuffed behind the village's firehouse.

State Police here Murphy's 20-year-old wife, Janet, and sons, Randy, 2, and Robbie, 7 months, died as a result of the blaze. But no autopsy results have been released.

Murphy was held here without bond after the arraignment in Escanaba District Court. A preliminary examintaion was set tentatively for June 11.

Deputies at the Delta County Sheriff's Department said County Prosecutor Tony Marcinkewicz had not released any information on why Murphy was arrested by State Police.

Watergate scandal

the general deleted his name from a memo recounting the incident. Cushman said Thursday that he has since checked his records and reaffirmed that Ehrlichman was the caller, adding: "I do not regard Mr. Ehrlichman's position and mine as being necessarily contradictory."

—Ehrlichman, presidential chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, CIA Director Richard Helms and Helms's deputy, Army Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, met at the White House on June 23, 1972, to discuss the CIA and the break-in six days earlier at Democratic headquarters in the Watergate.

Helms and Walters said the CIA wasn't involved in Watergate and the FBI's investigation of the incident wouldn't hurt the agency or compromise any of its other covert activities.

Walters said the White House officials, since resigned, sent him to see acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III to tell Gray the FBI's Watergate-related investigation of a Mexican money deal could jeopardize CIA operations.

Ehrlichman said Helms and Walters didn't give "a flat assurance" that the CIA wouldn't be hurt by the FBI probe.

Haldeman said there was "no intent or desire to impede or cover up any aspect of the Watergate investigation itself."

—Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of one of the subcommittees looking into the matter, said Haldeman and Ehrlichman were in substantial agreement with each other but their accounts were in "serious conflict" with the Helms, Walters and Gray versions of the White House meeting and subsequent Gray-Walters encounter.

—McClellan's counterpart on the other side of Congress, Rep. Lucien D. Nedzi, D-Mich., said: "We have two versions under oath that are not consistent." He called for a Justice Department review of the testimony, which could lead to filing of perjury charges against one or more of the congressional witnesses.

—Both Ehrlichman and Haldeman blamed Dean for reported efforts to get the CIA involved in the scandal. Dean has said a move is under way to discredit him before his testimony exposes other top people involved.

Mitchell action voided wiretaps, judge discloses

MIAMI (AP) — A federal judge says that because former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell ignored a command of Congress, the court had to suppress wiretaps showing evidence of guilt in 11 federal gambling, narcotics and bribery cases.

U.S. District Judge William Mehrtens said Thursday an April hearing in Miami at which Mitchell testified revealed the wiretaps were illegally authorized.

Only the attorney general and a few assistants can approve wiretaps under a law passed by Congress. It was revealed during the hearing that while Mitchell was attorney general, others in the U.S. Justice Department authorized wiretaps.

"For some reason unknown to this court, the highest law enforcement officer in the land believed he could ignore an express command of Congress," Mehrtens said.

Report tornado sightings top previous mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Weather Service says there have been more tornadoes so far this year than in the first five months of any previous year.

The service said Thursday that more than 700 tornadoes had been reported through May 29, with a month remaining in the peak tornado season.

The previous high for the first five months was 504 in 1957. The record for a year is 928 in 1967.

The Weather Service also announced that the hurricane season starts today and continues through November.

The list of names that will be given to 1973 tropical storms and hurricanes starts with Alice, Belinda and Christine.

Jobless figures remain unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate, still failing to respond to the economic boom, held stubbornly at five per cent of the work force in May, the government said today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the U.S. job picture was essentially unchanged since last November although the economy was in the midst of one of its most vigorous expansions in history during that period.

As in April, the number of people that the bureau counted out of work totaled 4.4 million. The work force remained at 84 million, the bureau said. The figures were adjusted to take seasonal job patterns into account.

Partly cloudy to sunny weather was promised by the weatherman for Ohio today with at least a threat of some showers over southern and central sections Saturday.

June was ushered into the state with clear skies and near normal temperatures Thursday night. At dawn the temperatures ranged from the upper 40s through the middle 50s and only scattered clouds were reported in most areas.

Some dense ground fog was noted in the valley sections near Cincinnati but this burned off quickly after sunrise.

Some showers and thunderstorms skirted just to the north of Ohio Thursday night but these moved on to the east.

Along with the comparatively good weather predicted for today the National Weather Service said temperatures would again be in the 70s and possibly reaching the low 80s in some southern sections. A weak frontal pushing southward across the Great Lakes will approach northern Ohio tonight, producing at least a threat of showers in the southern and central sections Saturday.

Little temperature change is expected for Saturday except in northern sections where the cold frontal passage will drop temperatures a few degrees from today's readings.

A chance of showers Sunday and Monday. Highs in the upper 70s and low 80s. Lows from the mid 50s to mid 60s.

Cab company finds gasoline more costly

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Yellow Cab Co. of Cleveland says it will have to pay 73.75 per cent more for bulk gasoline during the coming year.

Yellow Cab Treasurer William Klug said only one bid was received on the firm's bulk fuel contract. That bid, from last year's supplier, the Shell Oil Co., raised the price per gallon from 11.28 to 19.6 cents, he said.

Stock list goes lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower today in slow trading as heavy selling of the dollar continued and Wall Street worried about inflation, pressure on interest rates, and the rising price of gold.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 6.54 at 894.87. Declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange ran ahead of advances 828 to 292.

H&R Block was the most-active issue on the Big Board, up ⅛ at 6. Some of that action came in a 24,300-share block traded at 6⅛, up ¼. The noon index of some 1,500 broad-based common stocks on the NYSE was down 0.38 at 55.04.

On the American Stock Exchange, prices were also lower, with Trans World Airlines warrants the most-active issue. They were down ⅛ at 10¼.

The noon Amex price-change index was down .05 at 22.51.

Brazilian jet crash kills 23

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A Brazilian jetliner with 23 persons aboard crashed and exploded on landing in the northeast coastal city of Sao Luis today. The Cruzeiro do Sul airline said all were killed.

The airline reported that the two-engine Caravelle "had an accident during a landing operation." It added that the right wing hit the runway after touchdown at the Sao Luis airport.

The plane was on its daily run from Belem at the mouth of the Amazon River, to Rio je Janeiro, with stops along the way.

Soggy month's meaning studied

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Clevelanders could almost feel their skin starting to wrinkle during 24 days of rain tha fell on the city during May.

The rainy weather set a record, but experts disagree on what the soggy month means.

Cleveland State University professor Wayne Hamilton said he thinks the northern hemisphere is gradually entering an ice age and that more rain is a side effect.

Skyjackers to be paid $50,000

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two young hijackers, 22 passengers and a fresh crew of seven took off from Aruba bound for Lima, Peru, early today. The owner of the Colombian plane, SAM airlines, said it had forked over $50,000 in return for a promise that everyone aboard would be freed and the plane abandoned at the next stop.

Eighty-nine persons were aboard the plane when it was hijacked Wednesday, but all the women and children were set free, 11 men escaped Thursday and 9 more were released early today.

The two men ordered the plane flown to Aruba on Wednesday and threatened to blow it and the passengers up if they did not get $200,000 and the release of 140 leftists from Colombian jails.

The Colombian government stood firm, however, and the hijackers abandoned their demand for the leftists' release and reduced their ransom demand.

Before dawn Thursday the two men ordered the pilot to fly to Lima. The plane remained in the air for two hours, but then returned to the Aruba airport because problems developed with the propellor lubricating system.

The plane sat under a blazing sun on the Aruba runway most of Thursday as the hijackers negotiated with SAM officials and deliberated their next move.

The hijackers then ordered the plane flown to El Salvador, but it never touched down and returned to Aruba shortly before midnight.

Conference gets war fund cutoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conference committee will have the task of thrashing out a compromise between a Senate bill that would cut off all funds for U.S. military action in Indochina and a milder House version.

The Senate Thursday voted to cut off all funds for U.S. combat activity in Cambodia and Laos. The House had voted 219 to 188 May 10 to deny any funds in a $3.6-billion appropriation bill for any further hostility by the United States in Cambodia.

A majority of Republicans turned against President Nixon's bombing policy as the Senate voted 63 to 19 for the antibombing amendment sponsored by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo. The Senate ban, which applies to all money ever appropriated by Congress for any purpose, was attached to the same $3.6-billion bill.

Administration spokesmen had said that the House actipn, even if the Senate concurred, would not have stopped the bombing. B52 raids were started in March to force withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, in compliance with the Jan. 27 Vietnam ceasefire agreement, the administration said.

Eagleton said final adoption of his amendment after a House-Senate conference agreement would make any further U.S. combat activity in Cambodia and Laos illegal.

The conference probably will take up the bill next week.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., urged House conferees to remain firm against the all-inclusive Senate fund cutoff.

The Senate action, he said, undercuts presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger's negotiations with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho. The sessions resume in Paris June 6, as both men seek full compliance with the cease-fire accord.

"You are encouraging further bloodshed in Indochina," Tower told the Senate after the vote Thursday. "Don't think that lives are going to be spared just because we are out of it."

The Senate rejected two modifications of the Eagleton amendment proposed by administration backers who complained it would "tie the hands of the president."

The Eagleton amendment was approved by 43 Democrats and 20 Republicans. Another 16 Republicans and three Democrats voted against it.

The appropriation bill was passed 73 to 5.

Problems remain despite U.S.-Russian detente

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Between them, the Americans and Russians have whipped up an enticing batch of icing for their detente cake. But painfully visible and rock-hard lumps remain beneath, stirred in over generations of cold war.

The Soviet-American summit coming up shortly represents an attempt by the two leaders to keep their countries off a collision course.

At the same time, each hopes to reap benefits for his own side.

But neither is likely even for a moment to entertain the notion that genuine peace is either at hand or around the corner. Not peace, but peaceful coexistence, has broken out.

Some remarkable and even revolutionary things have been going on in advance of the visit of Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist general secretary, to President Nixon beginning June 18.

American capitalists have been roaming the Soviet Union, talking about and even sealing big deals. Westerners who, not many years ago, might have viewed any high Communist as a personification of menace now profess to find Russia's boss Communist a man of engaging charm and business wisdeom.

On the other hand, Russians read things in their papers that are practically unbelievable. The same Soviet journalists who devoted themselves industriously to lambasting everything Americans have accustomed themselves to casually dropping names like Rockefeller, Ford, American Can, Pepsi-Cola, and so forth. All are mentioned in tones of espect.

Soviet readers are told that some Americans are showing "common sense and realism," and the clear implication is that there can, after all, be such a thing as a good capitalist. Instead of giving readers the impression that absolutely nothing is right about American society, the press has taken to telling them some things are even pretty good, like the organization of the American consumer economy.

The Soviet press scarcely mentioned the Nixon administration's Watergate woes, and what little it did report was phrased with delicate care.

Yet Brezhnev and other Communist leaders repeatedly warn that peace mustn't be allowed to go too far, to interfere with the ideological war or to permit wide open East-West contacts that might have contaminating defects.

"The Communist party of the Soviet Union has always held and still holds that the class struggle between two systems, Communist and capitalist, in the economic, political and of course ideological domains will continue," said Brezhnev in a recent speech. All he promised to do was to "strive to shift this historically inevitable struggle to a path free from the perils of war."

The Russian military, however, seems to have less faith than the civilian politicians in the blessings of peaceful coexistence. The military press harps on a need for "constant vigilance and readiness to deal a rebuff to any intriques of the aggressive, reactionary circles of imperialism." That means the United States.

But the civilian press assures critics that "positive changes" in the world climate were forced on the capitalists because of the might and authority of the U.S.S.R. It tells them the policy now combines "flexibility and firmness" and creates "more favorable conditions externally for the building of communism in our country." This means that in an atmosphere of relaxed tension, internal problems can get more toplevel attention.

The Russians and Americans indeed have taken long strides in some areas, particularly trade and commerce, each for its own compelling reasons. Also, there is likely to be a look of progress at the Washington summit on how to bring the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks SALT into a new and complex phase dealing with offensive weapons.

What about other issues?

Europe and European Security

Moscow's appetite is sharper than ever for the sort of all-Europe security conference it wants to develop from preparatory talks now going on in Helsinki. The Soviet press has been enthusing about "progress" both in Helsinki and Vienna, where other talks are in progress on reduction of forces. Most of all, the Kremlin wants a security conference— soon.

The West is not against a conference, but has insisted that any security arrangement would be meaningless unless it provided for free exchange of people and ideas.

Moscow sought to overcome that hurdle by suggesting it was all for exchanges of information and people within the framework of "sovereignty." That meant Moscow would retain full control over the sort of people and ideas entering the Soviet orbit.

Later the Kremlin was reported amenable to freer movement of people and ideas within certain specified areas, possibly on the assumption that such movement into the orbit still would be subject to a large measure of control so that the population can be protected against any influx of "bourgeois" ideas.

Forces Reduction

The progress in Vienna has been hardly worth mentioning. The two sides have hardly been able to agree on what they want to talk about. The United States wants to talk about "balanced" reductions, because geography makes it so much easier for the Russians to reach Central Europe. Moscow objects to the word "balanced." It does not even agree that Communist-ruled Hungary is in Central Europe. The Russians have possibly 50,000 troops there and aren't disposed to move them out.

Brezhnev is aware of pressure in the U.S. Congress for withdrawal of troops. Why bargain if he can hope to get all he wants without giving much at all?

Berlin

In his Bonn summit with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, Brezhnev seemed to do well. He now has a prospect of German economic collaborations, technology and capital in exchange for raw materials. He gave little politically and in fact kept options open on West Berlin, where the East German Communists still want Bonn's hopes obstructed.

The Berlin wall, built 12 years ago to lock people into East Germany, remains standing. Nothing has been said about knocking it down. As for West Germany's claim to represent West Berlin in international organizations and prospectively in the United Nations, Brezhnev did some agile sidestepping.

A West German interviewer asked him directly whether Moscow would accept the principle of West German representation of West Berlin in the United Nations.

"I will not consider this question as to its content," Brezhnev replied.

"But I shall tell you something of my character. I do not like to revert to questions that have already been solved."

That didn't answer the question, which in fact hadn't been solved.

There may, however, be some cold war dividends yet to come from the Washington summit. Brezhnev, no less than President Nixon, has strong reasons for wanting to get something to show from it, some sort of glittering success.

While it is possible an impression that the President has been weakened by Watergate might make Brezhnev more aggressive, it is also clear that he badly wants the things he is shopping for — enough to pay a price.

For example, Brezhnev in two recent speeches has said flatly "the Vietnam war is over," although the fighting there continues. He has shown what seems to have been a fair dose of caution in the Middle East. Possibly his hope of hastening economic benefits for the Soviet Union might persuade him to contribute more generously to tranquility in such areas.

3-day 'jail-in' under way for solons, police officers

By HENRY HEILBRUNN
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There are 138 non-criminals being handcuffed, taken away in paddy wagons, fingerprinted and mug-shot at the Ohio Penitentiary today.

All have been warned, "You have some hard days ahead."

They are part of an experiment to sensitize a co-ed group of legislators, law enforcement and corrections officers, reporters and representatives of labor, business and citizen organizations to a prison environment.

The three-day "jail-in" is sponsored by the Ohio Citizens' Council Committee on Crime and Delinquency.

Thursday night the group met at the Sheraton-Columbus Motor Hotel—an attorney from Columbus, a police captain from Toledo, welfare worker from Youngstown, a married couple from Berea, chief justice from Cleveland and labor leader from Akron.

"Make bélieve deeply that you have been caught. 'I have been found out.' Take that attitude," one program director told the new inmates after they read their "rap" conviction sheets.

Their make-believe offenses range from embezzlement to petty larceny to first-degree murder.

"If you can't take the position of being indictable, then take the position you've been railroaded. That happens, too," he said.

No matter whether they liked their offense or not, these innocent people are to be locked up for the next three days to feel prison life.

"Do what you would. Be what you would be. Assume that either you have been incorrectly or correctly placed in jail," he instructed them.

Then he again cautioned them, "You have some hard days ahead."

Nixon, Pompidou talk

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Although still far apart on their approaches to major issues, President Nixon and French President Georges Pompidou have reached a summit agreement on how to begin resolving their differences.

With a final meeting set for today, the two presidents could point to nothing in the way of dramatic achievement from their private talks in Iceland's chilly capital. But their spokesmen indicated hope for eventual agreement through negotiating procedures endorsed by the two chief executives.

Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's foreign policy advisor, told newsmen Thursday that procedures now set in motion may produce an unprecedented summit of 16 Atlantic nations by the time Nixon visits major European capitals in October or early November.

The participants probably would include all members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Common Market.

Kissinger said, however, that "it really is too early to tell" whether enough progress can be made at lower levels to justify an autumn super-summit.

According to the rather flexible Nixon-Pompidou plan outlined by Kissinger, this is how representatives of the United States, France and other Western European countries will go about their search for solutions to monetary, trade and defense issues:

—Current and contemplated Atlantic Alliance negotiations on specific questions "will continue in established forums."

—The United States and France will hold continuing bilateral talks with the first to be next Wednesday when Kissinger and Foreign Minister Michel Jobert meet in Paris.

—As progress is made, "a meeting at the deputy foreign minister level, on an ad hoc basis, might be desirable" to determine whether the allies could agree on a statement of principles — another term for Kissinger's suggested "new Atlantic charter."

—"Whether or not there should be a summit of the European leaders with the President will be decided after the results of all these other negotiations can be evaluated."

Secrecy must have limits

If there is one thing the American public should have learned from the war in Vietnam, it is that government decision-makers often do things for a variety of reasons and then cloak their actions in the garb of "national security."

This must be borne in mind, now that the dangerous arguments about "national interests" and "national security" are once again rearing their ugly heads.

We now find in the Watergate case that the President requested that "all" information about Daniel Ellsberg be dug up because of possible imperilment of national security. The President also permitted the wiretapping of top-level aides in Henry Kissinger's National Security Council staff, an action that had the full acquiescence of Kissinger. In addition, newsmen's telephones were bugged.

To be sure, there are legitimate national security interests which must be preserved. The dispute arises over what should be kept secret, and over how far the government should go to preserve secrecy.

The President argues that the release of the Pentagon Papers harmed national security interests. Without specifics, it is hard to assess this contention, but there are clearly two sides to the question.

The Ellsberg trial elicited much testimony raising serious doubts as to the validity of the claim; there is some reason to believe that in fact no substantial affront to national security was involved in the Pentagon Papers' having made public.

None of the above should be taken as suggesting that a chief executive should on no occasion invoke the "national security" argument; that would be nonsense. However, no President has a corner on infallibility. Evaluation of what is and what is not in the national interest is a judgmental question.

Also involved are basic questions as to what democracy is all about. Individuals possess rights, one of which is the right not to be spied upon. It must be acknowledged that to some extent this right poses dangers; that is, in a society which safeguards the right of privacy, traitors may have an easier time of it than in a dictatorship where there is no effective right not to be spied upon. There is, in short, some inherent risk in a democratic system.

Unwillingness to live with this inherent risk leads to what happened with the National Security Council staff: wiretapping, bugging and the like, all justified under the general rubric of preventing leaks that might harm the national interest.

Up to a point, there is some legitimacy in this. Once begun, however, that type of activity tends to take on a life of its own, propagating and justifying itself with no end in sight.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Nixon hoist by his own petard

WASHINGTON — There are times when the political atmosphere of this city becomes as oppressive as tropical heat. Right now there is no refuge from Watergate.

Everywhere you go in governmental Washington, it is the sole topic of conversation and the mood strangely resembles that of a lynch mob. I don't like lynch mobs, but of that more later; what is interesting is the extent to which the President is totally isolated, the degree to which he lacks any political base.

Mr. Nixon set himself up for this treatment. The 1972 national election was run as a private affair. If there were other Republicans running for office, the President ignored their existence. The consequence, of course, was that GOP senators and representatives felt deserted by their "leader" and are now sitting around chortling at his misfortunes.

Vice President Spiro Agnew has been a model soldier, but those who are aware of his sense of humor must have been convulsed by his recent reply to a question about Watergate. The President, he suggested dead-pan, would answer any questions on that topic.

Since neither Haldeman nor Ehrlichman would return Agnew's calls, one might suspect that the Veep is not weeping at their downfall.

NOR DOES Mr. Nixon have much of a following in the nation. We forget the wacky circumstances of the 1972 election. Nixon deserted the Republicans, while the Democrats deserted Sen. McGovern. The result on its face was a landslide, but there was an earlier poll in which the options were Nixon, McGovern or "neither": "neither" received a plurality!

In short, the party system fell apart at the top of the ticket. As I pointed out at the time, the American electorate saw its choice as between "thieves" and "theocrats" and opted for thieves on the ground that this was an old-fashioned sin for which there were adequate remedies.

Well, the President had his time of glory, but now the bills are coming in. And they are big bills: the senator who was treated like a clown by some White House aide playing President, the Republican Party in states rebuffed by CREEP, and perhaps the biggest bill of all — the one from the media.

Having been treated as running dogs of the "liberal establishment" for printing hard news stories about CREEP, having in effect been called whores and liars by the President's press secretary, the media are understandably moving in for the kill.

Which brings me back to the lynch mob. For a quarter of a century Americans liberals have been objecting to "trial by newspaper," to "unsubstantiated smears," to "guilt by association."

I, for instance, opposed the Kefauver investigation of organized crime, the McClellan Committee's job on the Teamsters, and, of course, the various anti-subversive safaris carried out by the House UnAmerican Activities Committee, Joe McCarthy, and other congressional bodies.

This was not because my best friends were Mafiosi, Teamsters or Communists, but because the Ervin type of investigation violates in my judgment the fundamental principles of criminal justice.

DAY IN, DAY OUT — as millions of Americans watch the tube — normal rules of evidence are simply thrown out the window. True, Sen. Ervin does point out from time to time that some choice item of hearsay would not hold up in court, but on the torrent flows.

Again let me emphasize my belief that laws have obviously been broken — I hold no brief for anyone.

What I do insist, however, is that those accused be accorded the full protection of due process of law, that explorations take place in the grand jury room, not Sen. Ervin's circus, and that the trail of those indicted be in accordance with the laws of the land.

Protecting President Nixon from McCarthyism has a certain ironic quality, but if you are a civil libertarian that is the name of the game.

If you stick close to facts and control that imagination of yours, you should get along fine during this busy, sometimes hectic, period. Pick your way discreetly.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Don't give up on a pet project because it seems to lack luster. Try a novel twist in approach — to restore incentive and get going again.

YOU BORN TODAY are an extremely gregarious individual — a happy-go-lucky person, motivated by good will toward all. Also ambitious and unusually versatile, you have the potentialities for high attainment in many fields but, since you are restless and changeable in your desires, could stymie your own efforts if not careful. The Geminian usually excels in writing, music, promotional ventures, any field which involves travel. On the other hand, you may be attracted to science and (or) research and could succeed at either if you educate yourself along these lines. You would make an excellent teacher if you could master your innate impatience.

Kennedy winner on presidency in Gallup Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The latest Gallup Poll indicates Sen. Edward M. Kennedy would defeat John B. Connally by 14 percentage points if the 1976 election for the presidency were held today.

The poll of 1,531 adults taken May 4-6 gave the Massachusetts Democrat 50 per cent of the vote to 36 per cent for Connally, a former Texas governor and secretary of the treasury under President Nixon.

Connally, now a special adviser to the President, recently switched from the Democratic to the Republican party.

In a Gallup survey during April, Kennedy defeated Vice President Spiro T. Agnew 51 to 38 per cent.

Deadly trainloads

Less than a month separated two munitions train explosions in the West - one in the northern California town of Roseville on April 28, the second 15 miles east of Benson, Ariz. The fact that both were Southern Pacific trains is doubtless neither here nor there, but some comments by the line's public relations vice president, James Shea, are noteworthy for what was left unsaid.

Referring to the fact that there were injuries, but no deaths in either instance, Shea said this showed that safety regulations "are certainly high enough to protect lives." The press quoted him as adding that he hopes "that with research, investigations and improvements in existing technology, we will some day be able to make things safer."

This begs the question. The question is: Why must lethal cargo (and this applies to deadly chemicals as well as to munitions) be routinely moved through heavily populated areas? The question is especially pertinent with reference to the explosion in Arizona, since the munitions train was scheduled to pass through Tucson (population about 300,000) not long afterwards.

Had carloads of 500-ton bombs exploded in the heart of that city, the result would almost certainly have been a major disaster with heavy loss of life.

Whether the railroads, the military and other shippers of deadly loads, or federal, state and local safety authorities are to blame, it is hard to say; perhaps all share the blame. But blame there is.

It is simply not good sense to route such cargo through populous communities. To the utmost extent feasible, routings should be made around cities. The safety rules should be rewritten, if need be, to encompass this fundamental precaution.

Every 1.26 seconds: $10,000

The Bureau of the Census has for many years sported a population clock. Comes now the Chamber of Commerce of the United States with a federal spending clock, installed in the Chamber's national headquarters in Washington.

The federal spending clock is a wondrous toy, though not one designed to make gladsome the heart of the taxpayer. What the clock keeps saying is: There goes some more of our money!

At the present spending rate, the clock ticks away $10,000 every 1.26 seconds. Every 12.6 seconds, we are informed, a light flashes to indicate that another $100,000 has been spent by Uncle Sam. But there's more: Every two minutes and six seconds there's an ominous beep which heralds the passing of a million.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Daddy's money oils the skids for fiance

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl with a broken heart. I met Rick in college at the beginning of the year. We fell in love and planned to be married this summer. Rick is a graduate student.

My daddy is in oil and has a lot of money, but I wish we were poor because Daddy's money is what caused my problem.

When Rick went to talk to Daddy about marrying me, Daddy asked Rick to meet him in his office. Daddy had a lawyer there with some papers for Rick to sign, saying if the marriage didn't work out Rick wouldn't get any of my money I'll be getting when I turn 21.

Rick wouldn't sign anything, instead he called me up and said he didn't want any part of a family like mine, so now I am without a boy friend.

My daddy said if Rick really loved me he would have signed those papers. I told my Daddy he had no right to ask Rick to sign anything.

Please tell me what you think of all this? I don't have a mother.

CRYING MY EYES OUT

DEAR CRYING: Your father should have talked it over with you first. But if Rick gave you up just like that, your daddy could have been right. Dry your tears, honey. Rick could be back.

DEAR ABBY: Because my husband and I are unable to have children of our own, we applied as foster parents through our state welfare department.

Our first child was a teenager, fresh out of a girls correctional institution. It was a frustrating experience for us-and for her, too. After admitting our failure, the caseworker removed her from our care and gave us another foster child. Since then, we have had many, mostly teenagers. Many we've helped. A few we have not, but those we've helped have more than compensated for the others.

Abby, you wouldn't believe the number of friends and relatives who ask us: "Why do you take in those damaged kids who have been abused and kicked around and taught to lie and cheat? If they were your OWN, you'd have to put up with them, but you're crazy to ask for unnecessary headaches. Can you really love those kids?"

Our reply: "Most of our children are just like your children, with one exception. Our children have been denied the love and understanding of their natural parents. We have tried to provide them with that love and understanding. If you and your spouse happened to suddenly die, and neither friend nor relatives wanted to take on 'unnecessary headaches,' what would happen to your children? I guarantee you, we could love them as easily as we love the children we now have."

What else can we say, Abby?

FOSTER PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Nothing. You've said it all. And beautifully.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my wife and I went to the office of a physician by appointment. It was our first visit there. It was a nice morning, and on entering the waiting room I said: "Good morning, everybody!"

There were about a dozen people of all ages sitting there, and not a single person responded to my greeting! I thought perhaps I had come upon a group of deaf and dumb people, but they all answered when their names were called by the receptionist.

My question: Has it gotten to the point in this country where nobody speaks to anybody except by appointment?

SENIOR CITIZEN

DEAR CITIZEN: I'm surprised that out of a dozen people, not one returned your friendly greeting. But why make it an American trait? Such an unexpected burst of cheerfulness on entering a doctor's waiting room would probably have met with the same lack of response in England, France, or Italy.

Texas publishing house challenges Eastern firms

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Here in the old cattle country of Texas, a once-groping newcomer has become a prodigy of the religious publishing world.

Word, Inc., is the talk of the trade. It is one of the westward firms which have risen to challenge the religious publishing predominance of the East.

"A lot of it was providential and extremely fortuitous," says Jarrell McCracken, 45, the savvy founder-president of Word, whose sales now run $11.5 million annually, exceeding the religious output of most Eastern publishers.

Besides happenstance, however, some special insights into the religious concerns of the country also have gone into the shifting balance of religious publishing and into the stream of top-sellers from the houses of the West and Midwest.

"New York is not really the place to be to know the religious pulse of the American people," McCracken said in an interview. "I don't believe you can effectively publish religion without being a part of it and being with the people who are involved in it."

That specific, avowed commitment to nurturing faith has been a hallmark of the emerging big-time religious publishers of the inland region. Some have hewed to a distinctively conservative, evangelical output, such as Zondervan Publishing House of Grand Rapids, Mich., with ballooning sales.

While Word, Inc., also stemmed from that conservative, evangelical orientation in founder McCracken, a dedicated Southern Baptist, the company has broadened its range to enlist authors of various Christian views.

"The old liberal-conservative labels are not really viable," said Floyd Thatcher, 55, the company's vice president and executive editor, a veteran in the field. "We're concerned with the entire Christian arena.

"We want to reach the guy who has turned off the church as well as the church people locked into sterile approaches to religion and also those confused about why they are in church, people searching for the real meaning of Christianity."

The firm has turned out a long line of big sellers, including: "A Taste of New Wine," by Keith Miller, 650,000 copies in hard cover now going into paperback; "A Second Touch" and "Habitat of Dragons," also by Miller, totaling 400,000 in hard cover; and "The Stork is Dead" by Charlie W. Shedd, 125,000. The high figures compare with an average book's sales of under 5,000.

"Whatever an author's Christian position might be, we're interested in it if it carries authentic meaning, whether we agree with all of it or not," McCracken said. He said this has nettled some conservatives but their position gets ample attention, too.

"The church is in a transitional change as significant as that of the Protestant Reformation," he said. "The church is going to emerge with a totally different shape and form, and we're interested in the ideas pointing the way."

Word, Inc., got its beginning in 1951 when McCracken, then a sportscaster who preached and taught youth groups on weekends, recorded a catchy portrayal of Christianity as a football game, complete with dubbed in crowd noises.

Stores in the area soon were demanding the record, called "The Game of Life," and McCracken gradually was propelled into the record business. His firm grew into the country's largest religious record company; and in 1965, it entered the book field. It has turned out 325 titles so far—nearly 50 a year.

Five churches to sponsor youth program

Teen Bible Time, a joint effort of South Side Church of Christ, First Christian Church, Hickory Lane Church of Christ, Jeffersonville Church of Christ, and Pleasant View Church of Christ will be held June 4-8 for youth in grades seven through college age.

Toledo teachers keep bargaining unit

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Toledo public school teachers voted 1,246 to 1,061 Thursday in favor of keeping the Toledo Federation of Teachers as their bargaining unit.

The election, under the auspices of the American Arbitration Association, resulted after the rival Toledo Education Association gathered enough petitions to attempt to unseat the AFL-CIO affiliate.

The school is for all children of the community between the age of three years through the sixth grade. Classes will meet from 9 to 11:30 a.m. each day Tuesday through Friday.

Oriental Pork

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Oriental Pork is excellent for a Chinese supper. Because Oriental Pork is a sweet-and-sour dish, you may want to serve another main dish that has quite different flavoring on the same menu. Beef with Green Peppers (Pepper Steak) or Chicken Chow Mein would be a good choice to offer before the pork - and - pineapple combination.

When we tried the Oriental Pork in our test kitchen we bought a boneless pork loin (rolled and tied) that weighed between 2½ and 2¾ pounds. By the time we untied and unrolled the pork and cut it into cubes (removing the fat) we had just the amount of meat called for in the recipe.

ORIENTAL PORK

2 pounds boneless fat-free pork, cut into ¾- to 1-inch cubes.
1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) pineapple chunks in heavy syrup, drained and syrup reserved
Water
¼ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup dark corn syrup
1 green pepper, seeded and cut into thin strips
Hot cooked rice

In a 13- by 9- by 2-inch roasting pan, arrange pork. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven, stirring occasionally, until browned — about 45 minutes. Drain off any liquid and replace pork in roating pan; set aside.

Add enough water to reserved pineapple syrup to make 1¼ cups. Reserve pineapple chunks.

In a 1-quart saucepan stir together the sugar and cornstarch. Gradually stir in pineapple syrup mixture, keeping smooth. Stir in vinegar, soy sauce and corn syrup until blended. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil and boils 1 minute. Stir in pineapple and green pepper.

Pour pineapple mixture over meat in roasting pan; cover tightly with foil and return to 375-degree oven. Bake until pork is thoroughly cooked — 25 to 30 minutes longer. Serve with hot rice.

Crystal in tuna brings lawsuit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Cincinnati woman has filed suit against the Del Monte Corp. of San Francisco charging that crystals left in a can of tuna cut her left tonsil.

Hedwig Lindsey charged the firm with negligence alleging that the can contained "a magnesium ammonium phosphate crystal which was hidden in the salmon, and which could not be seen or avoided" by her.

'Mother' is meeting theme

The group voted to give a donation to the "Second Mile" project in India. Cheer cards were signed for the ill.

She was presented a corsage. The group also presented Mrs. Tway a gift and flower in honor of her golden wedding anniversary on June 6.

A baby picture contest was held, and refreshments were served by the hostess and Mrs. Smith to Mrs. Lois Burris of Sabina, a guest, and members Mrs. George Durnell, Mrs. Russell Grice, Mrs. C.A. Wilson, Mrs. Carson, Mrs. Ritter and Mrs. Bock.

Deputy Sarah Brown speaks to garden club

Town and Country Garden Club met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Mildred Henkelman, with Mrs. Lewis Thomson as the assisting hostess.

In the absence of the president and vice president, Mrs. Lee Cleland presided at the business meeting. In response to the roll call by secretary, Mrs. Richard Rankin, each member read a card describing a familiar plant or flower. The cards were provided by Mrs. Cleland.

Mrs. Cleland introduced Mrs. Sarah Brown, member of the Fayette County Sheriff's Department, who presented the program for the evening. Mrs. Brown showed a film entitled "The Invitation" concerning the protection of homes in the owner's absence. Many hints were given on making the home less attractive to prospective burglers. Following the film, Mrs. Brown answered questions concerning property protection and also spoke on methods women can use for self defense in an emergency.

Mrs. Henkelman reported on a recent tour some of the members had made to the Candle Shoppe at Goshen, and other points of interest.

Plans for participation in the Fayette County Fair Flower Show were discussed and members were reminded to contact Mrs. Eli Craig for their assignment for this event. The Speciman Show to be held in connection with the Fair Flower Show was also discussed.

The Regional Meeting which will be held at the Mahan Building Oct. 12 was discussed. Club members will be helping with the registration for this all-day meeting.

Various plans for the husbands' party were mentioned and definite arrangement will be announced later.

The nominating committee, composed of Mrs. Alvin Armintrout, Mrs. Rex Bloomer, Mrs. Rankin and Mrs. Dwight Duff, was requested to meet and present a slate of officers for the 1973-74 year at the next meeting.

At the conclusion of the evening, refreshments were served by the hostesses to the members and two guests, Mrs. Laura Hughes and Mrs. Roxy Thompson.

Mrs. Craig will be the hostess for the next meeting.

Foundation seeks to end cry 'Oh, My Aching Head!' victims

NEW YORK (AP) — Migraine gives women a real pain.

Of more than 10 million Americans who suffer from migraine headaches, 75 to 80 per cent are women, according to the National Migraine Foundation.

Dr. Seymour Diamond, foundation president, profiles the typical migraine sufferer as female, intelligent, trim and a hard-driving perfectionist with a history of headaches.

Each year, 2,000 persons have a new migraine headache, he added.

Diamond's organization is two and a half years old and was patterned after the British Migraine Foundation, a unit of lay people, and Migraine Trust, composed of physicians and scientists.

"When I visited Great Britain to talk about my headache studies, I was amazed by the amount and quality of research being done on migraine. There is widespread financial support among lay people for research, and this in a nation where there's no income tax deduction for contributions," Diamond said.

"I was impressed with the character and type of research. Almost all of our work is drug oriented because it is supported by pharmaceutical donors."

Diamond said the Chicago-based migraine unit is the first to study headache in the United States on a massive scale. So far the foundation has awarded two grants for migraine study to colleges.

"I would say that 90 per cent of the headache problems seen by the average physician are psychogenic in nature. Eight per cent are vascular, one-sided or cluster migraine. Two per cent of headache complaint is caused by organic disease," he added.

If a person has migraine headaches, it is likely his parents suffered from them, also. After heredity, factors which cause the headaches involved personality. Intelligent people who are compulsive and precise often suffer from migraine.

Diamond said that more than $400 million is spent annually on across the counter headache remedies.

"That's why we want to learn the cause of migraine, develop methods of relief and organize treatment centers throughout the nation. We need to educate the medical community and the public about migraine," he said.

"In addition to drug therapy, we are investigating biofeedback. Volunteers are working with special equipment to learn to control the temporal artery every time they feel a migraine coming on. This has worked quite well with younger people, but it seems to be difficult for older individuals to learn to control the autonomic nervous system."

Eventually the National Migraine foundation plans to establish clinics for headache across the nation. Diamond believes there are enough migraine sufferers around the country to support such clinics.

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Bogged down in a slump that some brokers call the worst in their memory, the stock market looks around warily like a turtle poking out its head, hoping to find assurance. And all it finds is instability.

Instability in politics, in monetary affairs, culturally, financially. In Watergate, gold and dollar prices, in the prices of grain at Chicago, in the level of consumer confidence.

And so, turned in upon themselves, all brokers can do is contemplate their own miserable, unstable state of affairs, while a prolonged and long delayed reorganization of the nation's investment machinery seems stalled.

The central marketplace, a goal that would eliminate much of the self-interest and peculiarities of the individual exchanges, is still but a goal. The Securities and Exchange Commission has lost two aggressive leaders in less than a year. And at a time when Wall Street was trying to encourage confidence, another brokerage house might have to be liquidated.

Seat prices on the Big Board, which once sold for more than $500,000 and which were relied upon by many brokers for their retirement, recently dipped below $90,000. American Stock Exchange seats are selling for less than $30,000.

Prices of shares in companies that are considered essential, strong, highly reputable and with good futures have fallen to what some brokers feel are their ultimate lows, and still the customers remain unexcited.

The market went right through one of the biggest booms in years, with corporate profits soaring — and stock prices falling. And now when they say it can't get worse, the economists are talking about a 1974 recession.

And so those who make sell stocks look for signs that the storms are ending. And the most welcome sign would be more selling.

Read the market literature, the letters that go to favorite customers, the newspapers, the industry magazines, and you find them talking about the coming climax, the big selloff that indicates rock bottom.

Following this, prices hopefully will bounce up to where they should be, accompanied by a resurrection of spirits that will energize even the most doubtful buyer.

Indicator Digest, which surveys market literature and business and money indicators, claims that its own average "now shows unmistakably that the present bear market rivals the historic 1929-1932 crash, and in some respects is even worse."

From the peak of December 1968, it says, "the entire body of stocks" has dropped 55 per cent on average. And "if you look beyond the top 50 institutional favorites," it notes, you can find 70 to 90 per cent declines.

Such erasure of values would seem to indicate rock bottom. However, nobody can really say for certain, because a selling climax that finally clears the air can only be seen in retrospect. Many declines look like climaxes, only to be followed by more declines. The convulsive shakeout now being sought couldn't be called a climax unless confirmed by sharply rising prices in following days.

STITCH & STEW 4-H

A trip to Kings Island was the topic at the Stitch & Stew 4-H Club meeting held in the home of Kim Riley. The pledges were led by Kathy Junk and roll call was answered by 'your favorite thing to do after school.' It was reported that the girls planted flowers around the Courthouse fountain with the aid and guidance of a local garden club. Plans were made to keep up the flowers and grass around the flag pole at the fairgrounds. June 7 is the date chosen by the girls for the trip to Kings Island.

A health report was given by Alisa Hughes on "Smiles and Frowns" reminding everyone to brush their teeth regularly and to have a dental checkup. "Play It Safe" was the theme of Kathy Junk's safety report. She gave us many tips on how to make our recreation safer. A demonstration on "How To Look Your Best" was given by Kim Riley.

Mrs. Meyers, home economics teacher at Miami Trace School, spoke on the four basic food groups. She told us how important it is to include these in our daily diets.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Janet Van Bibber on June 4.

ID cards bad idea

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Gov. John J. Gilligan administration today ran into criticism for identification cards it handed out last week to all state employes, including legislators.

"I wonder if the governor's high-priced idea man who thought up this idea is the same person who suggested closing the state parks two years ago?" asked Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati.

Aronoff said the plastic cards cost Ohio taxpayers "at least $10,000" and were "useless." They are similar to gasoline credit cards in appearance.

"It cannot be used to charge a dinner at a restaurant, for admission to a race track or even for identification when cashing a check," Aronoff said of the card.

He called the cards, which list the employe's name, social security number, department— and the governor's name—a "ridiculous piece of pocket pollution."

U.S. now Singapore's best trading partner

SINGAPORE (AP) — The United States became Singapore's foremost trading partner in the first quarter of this year with a sharp 50 per cent rise in two-way trade.

The rapid emergence of America as the major trading partner reflects massive investments plunged in this island republic particularly in the electronics and engineering industries.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writar

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC television network has aired a two-hour videotape of the Indianapolis 500. It'll probably show the 1974 model next May, but I can't see why.

The main saving grace of ABC's delayed Wednesday night broadcast of the Indy 500 was the sober, thoughtful commentary of Jim McKay and Scottish race driver Jackie Stewart.

They provided the few hopeful notes Wednesday night when ABC rebroadcast the day's earlier fiery Speedway accident that seriously injured a driver and resulted in the death of a pit crew member.

The scene of wreckage and massed fire trucks and ambulances on the track was followed within a minute on TV by a cheery STP commercial that began with Andy Granatelli booming out to his garage help: "Okay, fellas! Let's get going!"

ABC did give us later a trackside picture of a shocked, somber Granatelli on his way to the winner's circle, if that was any help.

Technically, ABC's camera work during the race was excellent. ABC's use of slow and stop-motion replays time and again captured and magnified the horror of two fiery crashes — one that stopped the race Monday and the second that delayed it more than an hour Wednesday.

Stewart, a top driver on any race circuit and an outspoken advocate of racing safety, had to leave the rain-delayed race Tuesday for one later this week at Monaco.

But before he left, he and McKay intelligently analyzed the way this year's Indy 500 was begun, pointed out for viewers what might have caused Monday's accident and unsparingly noted the potential hazards of both the Indianapolis Speedway and the cars racing on it.

McKay, working either solo or with a commentator, stood out — as he did during last year's Munich Olympics tragedy — as both a solid professional and as a man who can be deeply shaken, just like the rest of us, by disaster.

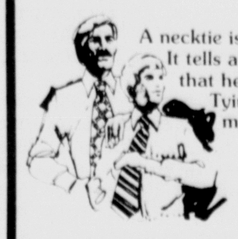
WHAT IS A NECKTIE?

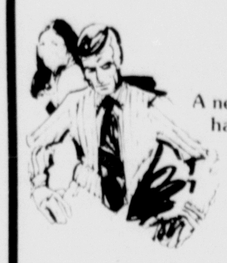
A necktie is a man's way of expressing his personality. It is a small strip of cloth that tells the world how he feels. A tie is his ego. His mood. His touch of individuality.

In this age of sameness, a necktie tells a man he's an individual: Unique. Discerning.

A necktie is a symbol. It tells a youngster that he has grown up. Tying a necktie is a special manly skill he must learn.



A necktie is small, but important; when you look at a man, you first see his face, then his tie.



A necktie says a man has fashion sense and confidence. It is as individual as his signature.

Quite simply, a necktie is the mark of a gentleman.

CAMERA Angles

"THAT'S funny, no dial tone."

"MUST be a dial tone in here someplace."

"HEY, Dad, call the phone company."

By SANDY COLTON
AP Director of Photography

What is a picture story? Just that, a series of pictures that tell a story.

Imagine, for example, what you might do with some of these ideas: Mom baking an apple pie; Jimmy on his first fishing trip; Dad mowing the lawn; Sally and her first doll.

Plot out your story and direct the action and camera position just as if you were shooting a movie. Make your "actors" carry out their parts just as if the camera weren't there.

FIRST get the establishing shot to lead you into the story: a closeup of Mom studying a cookbook recipe for apple pie; Jimmy walking down the road with a fishing pole slung over his shoulder; Dad sharpening the blades of the lawn mower; Sally's surprise as she's handed a box containing the doll.

As you get into your story remember to vary your camera position. Make the camera an eye and place it in the position to get the best view of what's going on. Shoot some of the pictures from as close as you can get and others from far enough away to capture the whole scene.

Try for unusual angles: over Mom's shoulder as she loads the pie into the oven; through the blades of the mower as Dad sharpens it; from the overhead branches of a tree as Jim sits on the bank of the pond fishing; framed by a doorway to her room as Sally opens her box in wonderment.

Try for a little human interest — some humor or sweetness. A good closeup of Dad as he forces a huge piece of Mom's pie into his mouth; Jimmy's face and contraction as he tries to put a worm on the hook; Dad leaning on the mower, tired and wiping his brow; a closeup of Sally's face as she ecstatically hugs the doll to her.

DON'T FORGET your ending: the empty pie plate sitting in front of Dad while he pats his stomach and Mom looks on in amazement; a proud Jimmy holding up his catch; Dad sleeping on the hammock while the lawn mower lies abandoned on a half-mown lawn in the background; Sally's angelic look as she sleeps with the new doll cradled in her arms.

Using your camera like this is fun but, even more importantly, as you progress with your stories you'll see your pictures improve. You'll see the value of capturing your subjects in some normal activity rather than have them stand and stare into the camera.

You'll see the impact of close-ups that show only what needs to be shown. You'll see, too, how much more interesting your pictures can be if you shoot from different angles — and high shot, the low shot and the framed picture.

All of these things will then be applied to all your picture shooting with improved results.

But the real kick comes years later when you're browsing through the family photo album.

WHILE LOOKING through ours the other day I came across some pictures of my son Jay "repairing" his toy telephone. I remember giving him the phone and the tools with which to dismantle it and even helping him a little as I photographed the activity.

Then, when it was all apart I asked him why he had broken his phone, in order to get the torrent of tears for that final picture.

It was mean, I suppose, to take advantage of that young innocence. Still, it seems worth it today.

Jay will be 20 this month. He's a big boy now, and a good boy apparently undamaged by the trauma of that broken phone so many years ago.

But how I love the memories of the curious, wonderful, lovable little boy in our photo album.

Ohio Perspective

Kurfess lowers political sights

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, once had his sights set on the governorship, but he has had to lower them a bit in recent years.

When he was thinking big, Kurfess was speaker of the Ohio House. His old Republican friends who helped him get the job began to consider him arrogant. So did several Democrats.

When Democrats took control of the House, 58-41, in the last legislative election, Kurfess had to go through a fight on the floor to become minority leader.

His chances for governor apparently gone, Kurfess for awhile acted as if he was shooting for GOP nomination as Attorney General next year.

Now there are reports he may drop out of the legislature and run for judge in Wood County. But, Kurfess is indicating he may still have a state race in mind.

Obviously more friendly and easy-going now that he isn't speaker, Kurfess often drops into the statehouse press room just to chat and exchange jibes. But he now does it with a smile. He used to do it with temper.

An aide has resumed delivering to newsmen a list of his speaking engagements. They include such places as Ironton, in the southeast, and Elida, in the northwest.

Hardly a place for a Wood County judicial candidate to pick up support.

★ ★ ★ ★

Ohio Democrats will try to make political hay this summer on the county fair circuit, maybe with benches and lots of ice water.

Mike Lorz, public relations man for the party's state headquarters, has been working with county chairmen on ways to improve Democratic campaign booths.

"Two things you always want at a fair are a drink of something cold and a place to sit down," says Lorz.

It's a far cry from the days of Gov. Michael DiSalle, the Democrat who hated fairs. James A. Rhodes, then his opponent, acted as if he loved him.

Gov. John J. Gilligan doesn't always look comfortable patrolling the midways, but he has apparently decided not to buck the system.

★ ★ ★ ★

The question of what Sen. William B. Saxbe will do, his retirement or announce to seek re-election, friends believe, is much of a mystery to Saxbe as it is to them.

REP. CHARLES KURFESS

Saxbe has frequently changed his mind, even after privately telling friends he had chartered a different course.

But there is one thing his friends agree upon: If he announces for governor, it will mean he has obligated the Republican Party to pick up all of his expenses.

It's the ploy he used when he ran for the U.S. Senate, since all the other GOP hopefuls thought the opposition would be an unbeatable Frank J. Lausche.

John G. Gilligan defeated Lausche in the primary and Saxbe went on to victory. When the campaign was over, he had no campaign debts. But the party did.

Women drawing 60 per cent of Social Security checks

CHILLICOTHE — Sixth per cent of adults getting monthly Social Security payments are women, according to Harry B. Bieber, Social Security district manager at Chillicothe.

"Twenty-three million adults are paid Social Security benefits," he said, "and 13.8 million are women. About 6 million women get monthly retirement benefits based on their own Social Security work records —20 times as many as in 1950."

About half of the women getting retirement checks became eligible on their husbands' earnings records, he said.

A working woman can retire at 62 and get reduced monthly payments on her own record. Or she can wait until she's 65 and get full benefits as well as Medicare coverage.

"But if she's entitled to higher benefits as a wife or a widow on her husband's record," Bieber pointed out," she'll be paid the higher amount."

THE WORKING woman has both disability and survivors protection from social security," he said. "If she becomes severely disabled and cannot work for a year or more, she and her family may be eligible for monthly cash payments for social security. And starting July 1, 1973, workers of any age who've been getting social security disability payments for 2 years or more may be eligible for Medicare.

About 460,000 children get monthly social security payments based on their mother's work records, he said. "A child who is entitled to monthly social security payments based on the mother's record can get them even though the child's father may be working at a full-time job," Mr. Bieber explained.

Contract Bridge ♠♥♦♣ B. Jay Becker

Test Your Dummy Play

1. This is a double-dummy problem, and a mighty tough one at that. You are declarer at Seven Spades and West leads the king of hearts. Bearing in mind that you see all four hands, how would you make the contract?

If the diamonds are divided 2-2 or 3-1, you have ten sure tricks, come what may. Only when they are divided 4-0 is the contract in danger. If North has the J-10-8-4, it does not matter whether you first lead the king or the six, for North has the suit stopped either way.

But if South has the J-10-8-4, it is necessary to lead the six rather than the king to allow you to score the four diamond tricks you need for the contract. Your K-Q-9 allow you to trap his J-10-9 as you lead the suit twice from dummy. The safety play renders his diamonds impotent.

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the queen of spades on which South plays the king. How would you play the hand?

♠ A 9 3 ♥ A J 10 4 ♦ K Q 9 6 ♣ K 9	N W E S	♠ 6 5 4 2 ♥ K Q ♦ A 7 5 3 2 ♣ 8 3

1. Win the heart with the ace, discarding a club from dummy, and finesse the eight of trumps. Ruff the six of diamonds and finesse the ten of trumps. Next ruff the queen of diamonds and finesse the queen of trumps. Then, on the ace of trumps and ace of diamonds, discard the A-K of clubs!

That's all there is to it.

2. Obviously you must win the spade, because South might shift to a club and quickly put you out of commission. Then play a low diamond to the ace. This is a safety measure to guard against South's having all four diamonds.

Jobs will also be available in Allen, Ashland, Athens, Butler, Delaware, Fairfield, Gallia, Geagua, Hancock, Hardin, Huron, Knox, Marion, Monroe, Ottawa, Perry, Pickaway, Portage, Ross, Sandusky, Scioto, Seneca, Vinton, Warren and Wood counties.

American dollar hits new lows across Europe

LONDON (AP) — The American dollar plunged to record lows at the opening of European exchanges today and the price of gold soared to new peaks.

Dealers said there appeared to be a massive distrust of the solidity of the dollar and selling orders were flowing in from all directions.

The rush to unload dollars was particularly heavy in Frankfurt, where the value of the American money dropped nearly five pfennigs during the first half hour.

Turmoil in the foreign exchanges spilled over into the bullion markets and sent the price to a record high of $119 dollars an ounce both in London and Zurich, the world's two biggest trading centers.

Venue shift sought for Hoffman trial

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Attorneys for Howard Hoffman III have renewed a request for a change of venue in his firstdegree murder trial because of publicity surrounding the case.

Hoffman's trial had been moved to Trumbull County earlier this year, but the proceedings ended in a mistrial. A Lake County judge ruled earlier this month that the retrial would not be moved back to Warren.

Hoffman is charged with the shooting deaths of his parents at their Mentor home a year ago.

No bargains in sirloin steaks

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sirloin steak is not a bargain anywhere in the world these days, except in South America where it sells for 74 cents a pound in Buenos Aires and 82 cents in Brasilia, according to U.S. supermarket watchers oversearf.

Further, the Agriculture department says, food prices generally appear to be climbing most of the world's capital cities, including here. A survey, made on May 2, was published today by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

The report updated a similar survey made of meat and some other food items last March. According to the latest information, meat prices have continued to climb this spring.

Sirloin steak, one of the most popular indicators, cost $1.79 per pound in Washington supermarkets in early May, up 10 cents from the March survey price. In Tokyo, where beef prices are the highest in the world, sirloin was $12.86 per pound, up from $11.90 in March.

Meat prices generally were higher in the May survey, the report said. Some prices for sirloin steak around the world included: Bonn $3.84 per pound; Brussels $2.78; Copenhagen $3.57; London $2.59; Ottawa $1.82; Paris $2.29; Rome $2.88; Stockholm $4.03 and The Hague $2.53.

Canberra, where Australian housewives have been protesting rising meat prices, sirloin steak sold at $1.66 per pound, the only capital other than Buenos Aires and Brasilia where it sold for less than here.

The survey included 14 items, ranging from sirloin and chuck roast to ham, frying chicken and bread. In 11 of the categories, shoppers in Washington where shown paying less than the median or mid-point price for all the countries.

According to the survey, for example, sirloin steak showed a median price of $2.56 per pound for all the countries, 77 cents more than in Washington, D.C.

Beef production was down to 14 per cent from April 1972, and pork was 9 per cent less, the department said.

The report said eating habits in other countries vary widely and that quality and types of meat cuts also differ by country.

Benicia, 32 miles northeast of San Francisco, was California's capital from 1853-1854.

Lifer B.J. Cat dies in prison

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — B.J. is gone, a lifetime served honorably behind prison walls without being charged, convicted or sentenced.

B.J., listed as Lifer 00001, now is in a tiny grave in a flowered garden tended by the men serving life terms at the Washington State Penitentiary.

A small metal plaque says simply: "B.J. The Cat, lifer. Born here, died here."

"He was a pretty good ol' cat," said lifer John Hawkins.

"There's a lot of people around here who miss him. You see a little cat walkin' along, it kind of makes you feel a little different."

B.J. showed up mysteriously as a tiny kitten inside Lifer's Acre several years ago.

Although prison rules forbid inmates to have pets, the cat, promptly named B.J., was tolerated.

B.J. just might have beaten the ground rules because the warden here is B.J. Rhay.

A few days ago, B.J. The Cat took sick.

He was taken to the veterinarian.

Nothing could be done, the vet said.

Fourteen dollars later — that was the bill — B.J. had gone to a cat's reward.

The vet's bill went to lifer Pappy Huson, who was B.J.'s cell partner.

Pappy is working it out. He's got the time.

Measles Vaccine is Safe

The mother of a child in a play group insists that the new measles vaccine is not safe.

Where she got the information we don't know, but the rest of us mothers are concerned about it.

Mrs. L. T., Kan.

Dear Mrs. T.:

The fear generated by misinformation and ignorance often spreads havoc.

Actually, the measles vaccine is no longer considered new; it was first used in 1963. Since then, more than 60 million doses of the live measles-virus have been administered with remarkable success.

Most people do not know that measles, when complicated, can be a serious disease.

Because of the excellent value of this vaccine, the number of deaths from measles in the United States has fallen from about 500 in 1962 to about 12 in 1971. These statistics are indeed a testimonial to the value of this, one of the safest of all vaccines.

It is true that occasionally a reaction does occur following the use of the vaccine. However, the risk is insignificant when compared to its benefits.

Don't deprive your children of the advantage of this and other recommended vaccines.

Can pollution and smog be responsible for a heart attack? Since I have been living in California I have developed pains in the chest that I did not have before I moved here two years ago.

Mr. D.S., Calif.

Dear Mr. S.:

It is generally accepted that some climatic and environmental factors have adverse effects on the respiratory and the heart and circulatory systems in the body.

Statisticians in the World Health Organization (WHO) of the United Nations have for years studied the relationship between heart attacks and unusual pollution and smog.

A number of epidemics of heart attacks seem to occur when there was air stagnation caused by heavily polluted air. This is known as "air inversion" to meteorologists.

It is suspected that smog and air pollution put added pressure on the lungs and, secondarily, on the heart. This may be the reason for the anginal pains you describe. There are, of course, other reasons for these pains which might have occurred even if you had not moved to California.

Cigarette smoking, for example, is a severe form of local pollution. This and all other forms of air pollution are the targets of attack by students of environmental conditions who are trying so desperately to return to man his rightful heritage of clean air.

It is not sufficient for you to speculate about the cause of your chest pain. More important is the need for you to find out the exact reason for it.

Let's tour Ohio

Itinerary: Malabar, Kingwood

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of short tours of Ohio travel attractions prepared by the Fayette County Automobile Club for The Record-Herald.

Do you know where the late actor Humphrey Bogart and actress Lauren Bacall were married in 1945?

The answer is Malabar Farm, home of the late Louis Bromfield, Pulitzer Prize winning author, located 12 miles southeast of Mansfield, the suggested tour area for this AAA trip of the week.

In and around Mansfield, a highly industrial city, are some 3,000 acres of public lakes, 2,000 camping sites, a championship race course, two ski centers, a toboggan run and a number of canoe liveries where 500 canoes are ready and waiting for the adventuresome river traveler.

One of Mansfield's outstanding attractions is Kingwood Center and Gardens. The Center's 47 acres bloom with many beautiful varieties between April and October, with at least one variety at its peak at all times. The center is an educational institution that puts emphasis on gardening, horticultural and nature study.

Kingwood Hall, a 27-room French provincial mansion, and the gardens are the estate of the late industrialist Charles Kelley King who died at the age of 84 in 1952.

IN THE SAME AREA as Kingwood Hall is the Blockhouse, a 20 by 20 foot timber fort built in 1812. Now a Scout meeting place, it was once used by Johnny Appleseed and later was converted to a jail. You will notice a monument to the famed appleseed planter located nearby.

Malabar Farm has 715 acres and the Big House, Bromfield's home, consists of 31 rooms. Many priceless heirlooms are on display and tours of the house and grounds are available.

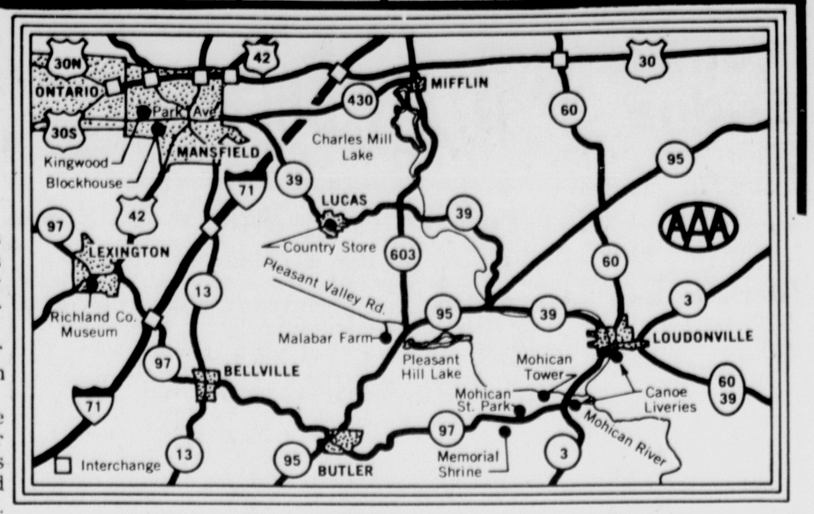
Malabar Farm recently was entered in the national registry of historic places which makes the state eligible for federal matching funds for restoration projects on the farm.

The Country Store, in nearby Lucas, contains collections of early American, Amish and Pennsylvania Dutch Country items.

The Muskingum Conservancy District, a short distance southeast of the tour area, is comprised of more than 16,000 acres of lakes with 365 miles of shoreline, affording ample facilities for outdoor activities.

AAA suggests this route to the tour area: From Washington C. H. take the CCC Highway to I-71. Continue north on I-71 to the Mansfield and touring area.

Wedding gifts should be sent to the bride's home where they may be displayed for reception guests to admire. However, if the reception is not held in the home, gifts should not be taken to a public place for viewing.



Import dollar prices boosted by Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The Central Bank announced Wednesday that prices of import dollars had been increased 50 to 200 per cent.

The increases exclude the importation of food and prime materials which will maintain an exchange of 20 to 25 escudos per dollar.

The adhesive postage stamp was invented by James Chalmers, a Scottish bookseller.

WCH man fined, jailed on telephone complaint

A 26-year-old Washington C.H. man was ordered by Municipal Court Judge Reed M. Winegardner to obtain psychiatric treatment after being found guilty of making obscene telephone calls.

The case, heard Thursday afternoon, involved calls made by Kenneth E. Blade, 26, of 332 E. Paint St., to a local woman.

Judge Winegardner also fined Blade $250 and sentenced him to 60 days in the county jail. He suspended 30 days of the jail term pending regular progress reports from a psychiatrist. He also placed Blade on two-year probation.

Blade was arrested Wednesday after a call to the woman had been traced by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. to Blade's phone. Officers said the woman had been receiving the calls since April and a tracer had been placed on her phone in mid-May.

Blade pleaded guilty to the charge.

Keith E. Blade, 20, of 162 Eastview Rd., was fined $100 and costs on a disorderly conduct complaint filed by city police.

Officers said Blade had become angry and began cursing when he was refused permission to visit his brother, Kenneth Blade, in jail Wednesday night. He entered a guilty plea.

William L. Paul, 34, of Grove City, forfeited $25 bond when he failed to appear in court on a charge of driving a motor vehicle beyond a "no vehicle" sign. He was arrested at Deer Creek Reservoir, by conservation officers May 18.

Theft, vandalism reports checked; trailer missing

A variety of theft and vandalism incidents were investigated by city police and sheriff's departments Thursday.

Police reported they are investigating a possible conversion of trust incident involving a car trailer rented from Phillip's Rent-All, 276 Oakland Ave.

Employes told police a man who had identified himself as Steve W. Kight, of Worthington, had rented the trailer, valued at $1,300, Tuesday morning and had agreed to return it Wednesday, but he never came back.

A check disclosed that the license was not registered to the car he was driving at the time.

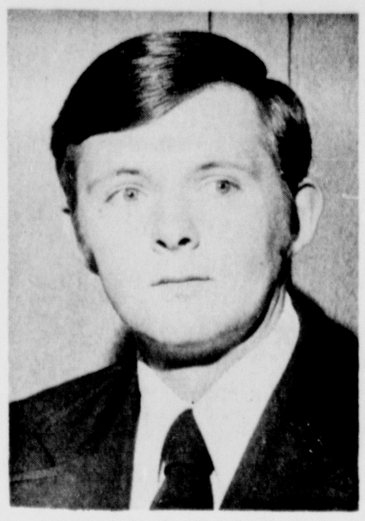
A burglar entered the office of Dr. Robert Harris, 1414 Washington Ave., sometime Wednesday night and made off with a radio and $55 in a cash box.

Police said the intruder had pried open the rear office door to gain entry. Nothing else was reported missing. Loss was set at $155.

Two batteries were stolen from a tractor and car parked in the barnyard of the Frank M. King farm, Rockwell Rd., Thursday afternoon. Loss was set at $49.

Sheriff's deputies also investigated an apparent burglary at the Martha J. Ruth home, Good Hope. She told officers that someone had entered her home sometime after Sunday, taking an iron, a radio and some clothing from the house. A 10-speed bicycle also was stolen from her yard. The items were valued at $161.

Donald E. Wood, 409 Van Deman St., reported four windows in his home had been knocked out by vandals throwing rocks early Friday morning. Damage was estimated at $25.



JAMES DUNN

Dunn to serve as Community Chest secretary

James Dunn, executive vice president of the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce, has accepted the additional position of secretary of the Community Chest, according to a joint statement by the boards of directors of the Community Chest and Chamber.

The two organizations will continue to function seperately and formulate their own programs. "The Chest assignment is not full time and should have no affect on Dunn's responsibilities in his other role," the statement said.

Dunn has been Chamber executive for about two years. He is replacing Perse Harlow and Miss Mary Frances Snyder on the Chest board.

Irish elections may bring trouble

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

The Irish Republic's surprise choice of English-born Protestant Erskine Childers as president opens the way for a new attack on religious feuding in Northern Ireland, but Childers doubts whether his victory will have any immediate effect.

Terrorists killed two persons in Belfast late Thursday as Northern Ireland held local council elections as a prelude to legislative elections June 28. The Protestant Unionist Party, which has ruled Ulster for 50 years, again held firm control.

More than 88 per cent of the electorate voted in some areas and observers saw this as a defeat for the Irish Republican Army, which had called for a total boycott of the polls.

In his presidential campaign Childers, 68, promised to try to get Northern Ireland's Protestants and Catholics to the conference table in an effort to bring peace to the six counties under British rule.

Despite his religion, his English upbringing and opposition to the Irish Republican Army, Childers is expected to have trouble persuading Ulster Protestants that a Dublin politician can offer a genuine hand of friendship.

Although the Republic's new government has also proclaimed aims of national reconciliation, the new president's personal initiative is limited by the constitutional role of the Irish presidency, which is largely ceremonial and akin to the British monarchy.

Some observers note, however, that such limitations did not prevent King George V from making personal initiatives to solve the Irish question in 1920.

"I would like to use whatever influence I have in establishing a common feeling between the two parts of the country and above all in helping the two communities in the North to get to know each other better," Childers said Thursday.

Childers replaces Eamon de Valera, the 91-year-old founder of Fianna Fail who held the presidency for more than a half century during the stormiest era of Irish politics.

The New York-born de Valera, now fragile and nearly blind, plans to retire to a home for the elderly in suburban Dublin with his 95-year-old wife, Sinead.

3 elderly Toledo residents killed

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Three elderly Toledo area people died Thursday night and early today as the result of separate traffic accidents.

Ralph Kendall, 74, of suburban Sylvania Township, died early today of injuries received Thursday night when struck by a car on a road near his home.

Mabel Gill, 64, of Sylvania, died Thursday night of injuries received earlier in the day in a three-car accident at an intersection in Sylvania Township.

David Byrne, 78, of Toledo, died Thursday night in a Toledo hospital. Byrne was injured in a two-car accident at a Toledo intersection May 19.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED

Dorothy Stolzenburg, 804 Maple St., is seeking $10,000 damages on behalf of her daughter, Carey, in a Common Pleas Court suit. The plaintiff charges that the child was bitten by a dog owned by William Smith, of 1357 Dennis Rd., in March, 1972, and that Smith is responsible for injuries sustained. The child lost part of her ear in the mishap, the petition states.

The plaintiff also states that the child was not on the defendant's property and that the dog was not tied, but running loose, contrary to city ordinance.

The suit seeks a judgement to pay for plastic surgery and to compensate for pain and mental anguish the child allegedly suffered.

DIVORCE ACTION FILED

Betty J. Hanners, Rt. 2, Washington C.H., has petitioned Common Pleas Court for a divorce from Alva L. Hanners on grounds of neglect and cruelty. The plaintiff seeks custody of four minor children, support for their care and alimony. The parties were married on July 3, 1959, in Richmond, Ind.

DIVORCE SUIT DISMISSED

On motion of the plaintiff, Margaret Garringer, of Rt. 4, Washington C.H., a divorce action filed against Neil Garringer May 4 has been dismissed in Common Pleas Court.

JUVENILE COURT

David E. Stolzenburg, of 1298 Oak St., was found to be guilty of neglecting a child in disposition of charges filed by Stella C. Stolzenburg, of 430 Lewis St., in Juvenile Court. The court ordered that Stolzenburg make weekly child support payments.

Fair skies and mild temperatures favored most of the nation today, but isolated thunderstorms were scattered from California to the Rockies, from the southern Plains to the south Atlantic coast and over the Great Lakes region.

A tornado touched down near Arcadia, Fla., Thursday night, causing several injuries and destroying a house. Another twister was sighted near Muskegon, Mich.; and high winds damaged parts of Lewisburg, Tenn.

The National Weather Service said there have been more tornadoes so far this year than in the first five months of any previous year. More than 700 have been reported with a month left in the tornado season.

The weather service also announced that the hurricane season opened today and continues through November. The first storms will be named Alice, Belinda and Christina.

More than 2½ inches of rain drenched Houston, Tex., Thursday evening. Thunderstorms stirred up dust and sand in the Southwest, and large hail pounded Tonto Hills, Ariz.

The official weather station in Phoenix, Ariz., registered one-tenth of an inch of rain Thursday, the greatest rainfall there on that date in 75 years. But in West Phoenix, more than 2.5 inches fell, causing local flooding.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 37 at Marquette, Mich., to 84 at Needles, Calif.

Property damage crashes reported

Only two minor traffic mishaps were reported in the city-county area by police and sheriff's departments.

A car driven by Betty A. Wilson, 21, Rt. 1, was traveling southbound in an alley in New Martinsburg and collided with a fence, Wednesday morning, sheriff's deputies reported.

Approximately 20 feet of fence on property owned by William H. Johnson, 406 Highland Ave., was damaged.

A car owned by Stephen E. Frazier, Rt. 2, was struck by a hitskip driver Thursday afternoon while parked in the Memorial Hospital lot. There was damage to the right front door and fender of the 1970 model car.

Learn To Drive Without Other Students In The Car.
If you learn to drive in a public school Driver Education program you will have three other students in the car to observe you and to make you nervous. During your 6 hours of driving you also must spend 18 hours of observation in the car with other students doing the driving.
In a commercial driving training course there are no other students in the car with you while you are receiving your instruction. You also receive 8 hours of behind the wheel instruction instead of the 6 hours that you receive in a public school program.
Any Educator will tell you that individual instruction is the best method to teach a student. Statistics also prove that a higher percentage of students that pass their driving test the first time.....have been taught at a commercial driving school.

Indian airlines jet crash fatal to 48 persons

NEW DELHI (AP) — As grieving relatives watched, policemen and firemen picked through the rubble of a crashed Indian Airlines Boeing 737 today searching for the remains of the last of 48 victims.

Hospitals reported that some of the 17 survivors of the crash Thursday night were suffering critical burns and other injuries.

Among the dead were several foreigners, including four Americans, three Britons and a Japanese.

Three Americans and a Japanese were reported to have survived. None had been positively identified.

By noon, 47 bodies had been recovered. Few were identifiable, officials said, but relatives of Mohan Kumaramangalam, an Indian government minister and confidant of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, positively identified his body by a pen and hearing aid.

The son of Gurnam Singh, India's high commissioner-designate to Australia, identified his father's body from a ring.

Rescue officials said the survivors were seated in the front of the aircraft, a twin-engine jet, when it crashed about three miles from New Delhi Airport one minute before it was scheduled to land.

Survivors said the 58 passengers were fastening their seat belts when the plane appeared to break apart and pitched into the earth.

The plane, Indian Airlines flight 440 from Madras, was demolished from the impact and the fire that followed.

It was unclear what caused the crash, which occurred in a driving dust and rainstorm in a rocky, desolate area about 1½ miles from an upper class residential area.

The crash was the third Indian Airlines disaster in 18 months. A Fokker Friendship crashed in South India in December 1971, killing all 31 persons aboard, and another Fokker Friendship crashed on landing at New Delhi Airport last Aug. 11. Eighteen persons died in that crash.

WCH students win honors at Bob Jones U.

Two Washington C.H. students, Miss Penelope Ann Pensyl and Thomas Nathan Coffman, received commencement awards at convocation exercises at Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C., Wednesday.

Coffman and his wife, the former Kathryn Ann Nelson, son and daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Coffman of 700 Van Deman Ave., were winners of the Otis Holmes Award to a Missionary Couple at BJU. The award was presented by Dr. James D. Edwards, dean of administration. The citation stated: "Dr. Otis Holmes, member of the executive committee of Bob Jones University, presents a sum of money to a missionary couple who have exemplified zeal for missions and are making plans for full-time foreign mission service."

Degrees and certificates were granted to 550 students from the five schools of the university. Coffman received the bachelor of arts degree in Bible from the School of Religion. He also was recently selected to appear in the 1972-73 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Mrs. Coffman was a 1973 graduate of BJU majoring in elementary education.

Miss Pensyl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pensyl of 613 S. The citation stated: "This award is presented annually to a young lady of fine Christian character who, by her consistent testimony and inspiration to others, has made a valuable contribution to the spiritual life of her literary society."

Miss Pensyl was graduated cum laude with a grade point average of 2.52985 out of a possible 3.0. She received the bachelor of science degree in biology from the College of Arts and Science.

Forget Watergate, Agnew urges

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Congressmen should be worrying less about Watergate and working more on the energy shortage and similar problems, Vice President Spiro Agnew says.

Agnew added that he didn't mean to include the Senate committee investigating the bugging incident.

He described President Nixon as "a man under intense pressure...reacting absolutely in a top-flight manner."

He used the phrase "juicy morsels of gossip and accusation" to describe unproven charges in the Watergate probe and said the Republican party "is not involved, not indicted and not responsible."

Agnew spoke to about 1,500 party faithful at a $150-a-plate fund raising dinner Thursday night.

"It might be a good idea for some members of Congress," Agnew said, "to think a little bit about the amount of time they're devoting to speculations over what might eventually emerge from the Watergate investigation."

The public, he said, those "who are currently worried about the energy shortage and the gasoline problem would like to see those congressmen get to work on some of those matters rather than worrying so much about the Watergate."

The presidency is normally a high-pressure position, he said, and "the constant assaults that are coming out of the current investigations" are pyramiding those pressures.

Add "the hearsay and rumor that swirls about him" and "the picking that is being done about minor matters such as security installations at San Clemente," Agnew said, and "you have a man under intense pressure."

But Nixon, the vice president said, "is reacting absolutely in a topflight manner under the most severe fire."

He said that though some are "hoping against hope to find the corpse of the presidency...the vultures will be disappointed. The President is alive and well and just as vigorous as ever."

The turnout was about 800 less than the crowd that showed up for an Agnew speech here in 1971. That gathering at $200 a plate, brought in about $460,000, compared with about $220,000 this time.

Robert Hughes, chairman of the Cuyahoga County GOP Executive Committee, said "ticket sales went very well." He indicated he felt Watergate wasn't a factor in the lower turnout. Other party spokesmen said the crowd was smaller because 1973 is an off year in Ohio and national politics.

Tours of Alcatraz Prison set by National Park Service

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "And that was Al Capone's cell, up there at the end, on the second tier."

The tour director was pointing to a steel cubicle where the late Chicago crime czar spent his years on Alcatraz, island home for 1,576 federal convicts for 29 years. It was closed in 1962.

The National Park Service, current overseers of the abandoned prison, plans to start public tours Nov. 1 after receiving thousands of requests from people curious to see the notorious penitentiary.

Behind the bars, locks, steel doors and gun walks once strode the elite of American crime. Besides Capone, there was Basil "The Owl" Banghart, Terrible Roger Touhy's triggerman; and Creepy Karpis, gunman, kidnaper and graduate of Ma Barker's Midwestern gang of the 1930s.

Reporters given a preview tour Thursday approached "The Rock" in San Francisco Bay from the west side, 2½ miles from the Golden Gate Bridge. Swift currents swirl around the rocky island, generating powerful surges on the shore that were a deterrent to escape.

The island is nearly choked with the wild growths of flowers, shrubs, grasses and trees planted over the years by the Army and later the families of guards who watched over the Alcatraz convicts. A glass greenhouse sits on a cliff nearly overgrown with weeds and has a million-dollar view of the San Francisco skyline.

Each cubicle in the cell areas measures 9-by-5 feet and is 7-feet high. Inside, inmates had a folding table and chair.

From this prison at least 25 prisoners tried to escape. Five were shot to death and at least 12 were recaptured before they made it into the water. In 1962, John Paul Scott, a Kentucky robber, made it all the way to shore — the first ever to have done it. He was recaptured.

Couple uses retirement checks for globetrotting

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A rocking chair holds no attraction for retirees Carolyn and Charles Planck. They much prefer a rocking boat, such as the little rusty bucket that took them from Pago Pago in American Samoa in Apia in Western Samoa on a recent six-month circuit of the Pacific.

In the 10 years since their retirement they have also traveled by freighter, local airlines, trains, buses, ferries — any vehicle that could help them "mosey about the world on our retirement check."

The couple's budget travel plan has taken them around the world in 387 days and has allowed them to spend a full year in Europe, in addition to their 21,000-mile tour of the South Pacific and Japan, at an average cost of $30 a day for two, including transportation.

"Most people live it up on a trip, but if you are willing to live at the level that you ordinarily do at home you can travel on your retirement income," explains Planck, a white-haired and hearty 76.

CHARLES AND CAROLYN PLANCK

HE RETIRED in 1962 as a public relations officer with the Federal Aviation Agency. At the same time Mrs. Planck, now 63, resigned from the editorial staff of the National Education Assn. Journal and they embarked on their first venture, the year in Europe.

"A spate of travel is a good bridge between full-time work and full-time leisure, and periodic travel is a good refresher for retirement living," Planck says. "If you leave home and go into an entirely strange milieu you get a new approach to life.

"If you're retired you have the complication of less money, but when you have the time you can take advantage of transportation bargains. You don't need deluxe rooms with baths," he adds. "When you're planning a trip ask specifically for information on travel and accommodations you can afford."

The Plancks have written a book about their latest tour, "Pacific Paradise on a Low Budget." They visited Hawaii, and Samoas, Tonga, Fiji Islands, Australia, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Japan, staying mostly in guest houses.

"IF YOU WANT to see how the people live go people-to-people," advises Mrs. Planck. "Aside from spending extra money, when you stay in big hotels you're just meeting a lot of tourists from America."

"A managed tour is probably best for the first-time traveler," her husband suggests. "You get to see everything and the next time you're sure of yourself and know it can be done."

The Plancks had liked Suva, capital of the Fijis, when they stopped off for one day on their world tour. This time they settled down there for two months. "We established a fixed base in an apartment," Planck says. "We have found you can live less expensively if you don't flit around like nervous birds, but nest in one tree for a time."

ONE of the highlights of their trip was going to see a genuine firewalking religious rite in Suva. Another was when a Tongan chief set out a feast for them, including a roast chicken complete with head and feet.

"You ought not to be afraid of food," warns Mrs. Planck. "I knew I would be confronted with a lot of raw fish in Japan and I deliberately learned to eat it before I got there. Why go if you're going to eat the same things as at home?"

The Plancks, who live in Fremont, Calif., in a house they rent while they travel, are preparing for their next trip. They're going to Yugoslavia for a year, boarding a freighter in New Orleans.

U.S. Navy opens barrage on San Diego's 'Tattoo City'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — "Tattoo City" is getting a little fire from the Navy.

Capt. William Carson, chief of dermatology at San Diego Naval Hospital, wants the state to close the dozens of tattoo parlors in the city.

"New York has done it, and I'm surprised that a state as progressive as California has made no move to stop it, said Carson.

As the site of a major Navy base, San Diego has been called "Tattoo City" since World War II and thousands of sailors have used the parlors.

But Carson said many often check into the hospital right after getting tattoos.

"They do not seem to realize that a tattoo is a permanent disfiguration...as far as infection goes, it's just something you don't see," he said, noting that the Navy has a program to remove unwanted tattoos.

Doc Webb, who has been in the tattoo business 40 years, says his shop is visited periodically by state health inspectors. And, he said servicemen account for only half his business. The rest include women and businessmen.

Today's most popular tatoo is one of Jesus Christ, Webb said.

But despite the protest, tattoos and sailors seem destined to go on.

A 23-year-old sailor from Long Beach who identified himself only as Clem says he set a personal goal of 52 tattoos, one for every month he'll spend in the Navy. He has exceeded that already.

Vinegar is made by converting alcohol to acetic acid.

Lil' Joe's shot benefits Grimsley

Morgan's homer ends Cardinal win string

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Joe Morgan describes himself as in a slump, but don't tell that to Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The bantam-size Cincinnati Reds' All-Star second baseman socked a pitch for a home run Thursday night that made others pine for such troubles.

Morgan's home run, his first off Gibson in nine major league seasons, decided a 3-2 decision and ended a Cardinals' winning streak at eight games.

But afterward the 5-foot-7 speedster called himself "not confident at the plate" and added, "I'm not swinging good.

"I didn't hit the ball real good," Morgan insisted of a 3- and-1 fast ball Gibson said was aimed at "just getting it over the plate."

"I reached for the ball," Morgan added. "I hit it more with my hands than my body. A guy goes through that at a certain time every year.

"When I hit it I thought it had a chance, but I didn't tie into it that well. I hit a couple in batting practice better, but neither one of them went out of the park."

JOE MORGAN

Morgan's blast, a 360-foot drive over the right field wall, was his second damaging blow to Gibson and the Cards for the night.

The other was a high-bouncing ball off the AstroTurf that skipped over first baseman Joe Torre and went for a double with none out and Pete Rose on first in the fourth.

Gibson, 3-6, struck out Larry Stahl, who batted next, but Johnny Bench beat out a 60-foot infield roller to score Rose and Tony Perez drove a sacrifice fly.

Lou Brock homered with rookie Mike Tyson aboard to pull St. Louis to a 2-2 tie, but a later Cards bid failed when Bench's arm rifled down Tyson on an attempted sacrifice and a subsequent Brock single was wasted.

The perplexed Gibson, who yielded six hits, said he was aware Morgan's shot was his first off him for the circuit.

"You know when guys have hit home runs off you," he said. "You know also whan they haven't hit them. You just don't know how many."

Benefitting from Morgan's hit was Reds' left-hander Ross Grimsley, 5-4, who pitched a seven-hitter and completed his first game since May 2.

"I was tired at the end," said Grimsley, who has a 6-0 career mark against the Cards, "but otherwise I felt good. I guess I just have it in for this club."

Cubs blitz Houston

Stargell's HR spoils tidy effort by Gentry

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I throw hard and Willie Stargell swings hard," said Gary Gentry, "so if he hits the ball, it stands to reason it's going to go a long way."

Stargell hit the ball hard, and it went a long way Thursday night.

Pittsburgh's veteran slugger blasted a three-run homer against the Atlanta right-hander in the bottom of the eighth inning, spoiling an otherwise neat job by Gentry and lifting the Pirates to a 3-1 victory over the Braves.

The homer was Stargell's 14th this season, tops in the major leagues. It also was a tape measure job, landing in the upper deck of Three Rivers Stadium, an area reached only three times before...each of those times by Stargell.

Nellie Briles, who doesn't have to worry about pitching to Stargell, earned the victory with a three-hitter.

Elsewhere in the slim National League schedule, Chicago battered Houston 16-8 and Cincinnati edged St. Louis 3-2.

Cincinnati ended St. Louis' winning streak at eight games, beating the Cardinals on a home run by Joe Morgan.

Morgan's sixth homer of the year snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning to beat Bob Gibson, 3-6. He had doubled in the fourth when the reds scored their first two runs.

Lou Brock had a two-run homer for the Cardinals.

Jose Cardenal and Carmen Fanzone each drilled two-run singles in a 10-run Chicago explosion in the first inning as the Cubs blitzed Houston.

All of the Cubs runs were unearned with Doug Rader's two-out error opening the gates. Randy Hundley singled home a run during the first inning rally and added a home run in the fifth. Rick Monday also homered for the Cubs.

Granatelli urges speed cuts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Before this year's accident-jinxed Indianapolis 500 race Andy Granatelli said speeds had increased to the point that the event was unsafe.

Now Granatelli, whose STP corporation ran the car Gordon Johncock drove to victory, says his team will pull out of Indianapolis and United States Automobile Club competition next year unless there are changes.

"All of us in racing must face the fact that we are simply going faster than our tracks and drivers can safely handle these flying missiles," he said Thursday. "This is not only a demand for reform but a sincere and sad plea to all of my fellows in racing to assist me in obtaining this kind of reform."

Granatelli has been involved in Indianapolis racing since 1946.

STP also sponsors entries in NASCAR stock car racing.

Granatelli said moves should be made to lower the speeds of the USAC race cars and the hazards of fire. He has urged limiting the amounts of fuel a car may carry or use in a race and fuel tanks with an extra bladder inside the normal bladder to cut down explosions.

Canadiens place 3 on NHL all-star unit

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens, the 1972-73 National Hockey League Stanley Cup champions, placed three players on the NHL All-Star first team, the NHL announced today.

The Canadiens, who finished first in the East Division, then defeated Buffalo, Philadelphia and Chicago for the Stanley Cup, placed goalie Ken Dryden, defenseman Guy Lapointe and left winger Frank Mahovlich on the NHL's first team.

Defenseman Bobby Orr and center Phil Esposito, both of the Boston Bruins, joined Mickey Redmond of the Detroit Red Wings in rounding out the team.

Gordon Johncock nets hefty Indy 500 check

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Gordon Johncock and the rest of the winning team in the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race will share a prize totaling $236,022.82.

It is the second largest firstplace prize in the 57 years the race has been run. For the fourth straight year, the total purse topped $1 million.

But this year's $1,006,105 bonanza fell short of the 1972 total — $1,011,845.

Al Unser, who wound up 20th this year, holds the individual payoff record with a $271,697 cut in 1970.

The payoff checks are being mailed because the victory dinner was canceled after the rain twice postponed the race. Johncock's victory Wednesday also was marred by bad weather with the race halted after 133 laps.

The lap money was prorated with each 2½-mile lap worth about $225 to the leader. Johncock led 34 laps.

Billy Vukovich, only other driver to complete the full 133 laps, earned $97,512.82 for second place. Roger McCluskey received $60,752.82 for third, Mel Kenyon $34,487.82 for fourth and Gary Bettenhausen $37,965.82 for fifth.

Salt Walther, injured in a first-lap accident the first time the race was started Monday, won $13,962.80 for 33rd place.

Walther was listed in serious condition today at Methodist Hospital, the same hospital where driver Swede Savage was taken after his car crashed during the 58th lap Wednesday.

Savage, 26, Santa Ana,Calif., was reported in critical condition. A spokesman for his team said Savage had experienced some kidney problems, has a collapsed lung and suffered some flame inhalation.

The spokesman said extensive surgery would be needed on Savage's right hand. Savage wrote notes with his left hand Thursday, asking his mother and father what had happened, the spokesman said. He added Savage reported he didn't know what caused the crash but didn't think the wing had come off his car as listed in one report.

Meanwhile, Frankie DelRoy, submitted his resignation of chairman of the technical committee for the Indianapolis race and technical chief for the U.S. Auto Club's championship trail. But USAC officials said they were trying to persuade DelRoy to tear up his resignation.

Holtzman retires 20 Yanks before injury

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Oakland pitcher Ken Holtzman said Jim Ray Hart was always able to hit him, he didn't mean it literally—at least not till now.

Holtzman, the A's ace lefthander, was breezing along with a one-hitter after retiring the first 20 Yankees in order until Hart led off the eighth inning with a line shot off Holtzman's left leg.

The ball caromed on the fly to Deron Johnson at first base for the out, but Holtzman had to limp off the field. Rollie Fingers came on to complete the A's one-hit, 6-0 triumph over New York Thursday night.

Reggie Jackson hit a two-run triple and a solo homer to provide batting support for Holtzman. Sal Bando also homered for the A's, who ended a five-game losing streak.

In other American League games, the California Angels edged the Boston Red Sox 7-6, the Kansas City Royals beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-1, the Chicago White Sox blasted the Detroit Tigers 10-2, the Minnesota Twins defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2 and the Texas Rangers beat the Cleveland Indians 9-5.

Bob Oliver, who came into the month of May with just three runs batted in, boosted his season total to 29 with a three-run homer in the seventh inning, lifting California past Boston. It was his seventh home run of the season.

Kansas City pitcher Gene Garber raised his record to 5-1 with a six-hitter over the Orioles, and he did it by not falling behind the batters.

Dick Allen blasted a three-run homer and a run-scoring double for the White Sox, who snapped Detroit's five-game winning streak. Ed Herrmann also homered for Chicago, and Eddie Fisher, 5-3, pitched a complete game.

Consecutive singles by George Mitterwald, Jim Holt and Danny Thompson broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning and put the Twins ahead to stay. Harmon Killebrew, who had a run-scoring single in the first inning, provided an insurance run with a solo homer in the eighth.

Texas scored eight runs in four innings against Cleveland. Jeff Burroughs' two-run double highlighted a four-run first inning, and Rico Carty blasted a homer for two more runs in the second.

Tom Weiskopf Kemper open golf leader

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf has two big pluses going for him.

"I'm playing about as well as I ever have," he said after his brilliant, course recordmatching 65 in Thursday's first round of the $200,000 Kemper Open.

The other plus——Jack Nicklaus isn't here.

Nicklaus, who scored a comfortable, front running victory over runner-up Weiskopf last week in Atlanta, isn't competing. He's the only man able to handle the streaking Weiskopf in recent weeks.

While his seven-under-par effort tied the course record at the 7,219-yard Quail Hollow Country Club layout, he needed every stroke to stay in front of youthful Lanny Wadkins. Wadkins, the Byron Nelson winner, had a 66.

At 67 were Ken Still, Mac McLendon, Bert Green, Leonard Thompson and red-headed rookie Pat Fitzsimons.

Arnold Palmer, coming off a one-month layoff, and Australian Bruce Crampton, a threetime winner this year, headed a group of more than a half dozen at 68 as the touring pros took advantage of near-perfect golfing weather to make a mockery of par.

More than half the field of 147 matched or bettered par 72 and there were 60 in sub-par figures.

Among them were 61-year-old marvel Sam Snead, 69; Lee Trevino, 70; and defending Kemper champion Doug Sanders, 71.

Gary Player, the little South African, making only his second start of the season in the United States, could do no better than 75 and must improve if he is to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Reeds Pence winner at Lebanon Raceway

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Lebanon Raceway tonight hosts the third annual James K. Hackett Memorial Race for Ohio-sired pacers.

A total of 22 horses are entered in the fifth and sixth races, which each have a $2,625 purse.

Ten fillies are entered in the fifth mile race and 12 geldings will run in the sixth.

Junior champ track event set Saturday

The annual junior champ track meet, sponsored by the Washington C.H. Jaycees, will be held Saturday at Gardner Park Stadium.

Don Gibbs, chairman of the Jaycee project, said the event is open to all youngsters in Fayette County ages 9-16 for competition in four divisions. Registration opens at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, Gibbs said.

Donohue challenges Jody Scheckter in Mid-Ohio race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Mark Donohue turns to the L&M Formula 5000 road racing series this weekend, throwing a challenge at pacesetter Jody Scheckter in the $80,600 MidOhio.

Roger Penske has his Javelin-powered Lola T330 ready for Donohue, an Indianapolis 500 veteran, to drive for the first time this season.

The crack twosome was scheduled earlier in the nine-race series sponsored by the Sports Car Club of America, but ran into difficulties. The original car was destroyed in a fire Jan. 22 after its first day of tests.

Meanwhile, Scheckter has been sensational in his first season in the series.

The 23-year-old South African finished second behind Briton Brian Redman in the opener at Riverside, Calif., April 29 and won the next two at Monterey, Calif., May 6 and Cambridge Junction, Mich., May 20.

Redman hasn't raced since the series opener and with Donohue and 38 drivers makes this the strongest stop in the nine-race series.

Scheckter has a commanding lead in the L&M points race with 55, 20 ahead of runnerup Peter Gethin of England and 33 in front of No. 3 David Hobbs, another Briton.

Tony Adamowicz, the last American to win the series title in 1969, is fifth in the standings with 18 points, two behind Redman.

Qualifying Saturday will determine the starting grids in twin 100-mile heat races Sunday before the 100-mile finals over the twisting 2.4-mile asphalt course.

Legion team launches summer slate Sunday

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Sports Editor

A classy cast of eight returning players will form the nucleus of the 1973 Washington C.H. Post 25 American Legion baseball edition.

Dennis Morris, the new Post 25 manager, will be depending on the eight veterans, a solid pitching staff plus a strong defense in hopes of a successful summer campaign.

The Post 25 Legionnaries, who will launch an ambitious 30-game schedule Sunday afternoon when Yellow Springs invades for a non-league doubleheader at the WSHS diamond, will be hoping to improve 26-10-1 all-games record and 12-3 South Central Ohio League chart posted by last year's team.

MORRIS, former head baseball coach and athletic director at Madison Plains, will campaign with a roster of 18 players, including seven from his 1973 Darby Valley League baseball championship team at Madison Plains.

Four players from head coach Dave Pellior's 1973 SCOL championship version at Miami Trace and four from Washington C.H.'s baseball team comprise the bulk of the Post 25 roster.

Circleville, Westfall and Jamestown-Greeneview high schools are also represented on the roster with one player each.

Veteran infielder Tony Grooms, a product of Miami Trace, and hard-throwing Randy Rodgers, a former Madison Plains pitching ace, top Post 25's stable of returning talent.

Grooms, who landed four consecutive All-SCOL baseball berths and is headed for Ohio University on a baseball scholarship after swatting .625 for the SCOL champion Panthers, is expected to nail down the starting second base spot.

RODGERS, a lanky righthander, was one of Washington C.H. Post 25's pitching aces a year ago.

Other veterans include Alan Coppock, a two-time All-SCOL first sacker with head coach Rodger Mickle's Washington C.H. Blue Lions; Paul England, the SCOL's all-star catcher from Circleville who was a regular with Post 25 last summer; Randy Reiber, of Miami Trace, and Chris Shaper, of Washington C.H., a pair of slick infielders who were named to All-SCOL honorable mention berths this spring; Scott Riddle, of Westfall, and Larry Rodgers, of Madison Plains.

Coppock is expected to grab the starting first base position in addition to seeing some duty in the outfield, while England looms as Post 25's backstop. Shaper and Larry Rodgers are billed for infield duty and Riddle will roam the outer garden.

Reiber will be one of the keys in Washington C.H.'s pitching staff which has seven hurlers, six of which had excellent experience in high school. Reiber is also scheduled for infield duty.

Tom Riley, who won All-SCOL honorable mention accolades as a sophomore, at Miami Trace, and spunky righthander Mark Johnson, of Washington C.H., will also be mainsprings in Post 25's mound corps. Johnson, who was named to an all-league honorable mention berth as a junior, is also tagged for action in the outfield.

Jay Mossbarger, of Miami Trace, and Randy Sparkman, of Washington C.H. are set for catching and infield duties, respectively.

Rodgers, Reiber, Riley and Johnson will be joined on the mound by Steve Bailey, a burly southpaw from Madison Plains. In addition, Morris has Jeff Green and Rick Forrest, both from Madison Plains, to compliment his solid pitching staff.

COMPLETING the Washington C.H. roster are Steve Haines, an infielder from Jamestown-Greeneview; Geoff Smith, a catcher-infielder from Madison Plains, and Don Parks, an infielder from Madison Plains.

Post 25's defense will be strong, particularly in the infield where Coppock is expected to handle the first base chores with the slick-fielding Grooms at second. Third base looms as one of the keys as Morris can employ Riley, Rodgers and Reiber there between their turns on the mound. The shortstop position is up for grabs between Shaper, Haines, Sparkman and Parks.

Johnson is scheduled for centerfield chores when he's not pitching and will probably be flanked by Bailey and Riddle.

England appears to be Post 25's front-line catcher, but Morris can spell the Circleville star with Mossbarger and Smith, especially during those gruelling doubleheaders this summer.

20 county merchants to co-sponsor team

A total of 20 Fayette County merchants will cooperate with the Paul H. Hughey American Legion Post in sponsoring the Washington C. H. Post 25 baseball team this summer.

The 20 co-sponsors of this year's team are Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, Carroll Halliday's, Inc., Coca Cola, Bell's Shell, Weade-Miller Real Estate, Kaufman's Bargain Store, Basic Construction, J & J Restaurant, Washington Lumber Co., Gerstner - Kinzer Funeral Home, Fenton-Oliver Sales, Robinson Road Appliances, Mark Hybrid, Pennington Bakery, Billie Wilson Chevrolet, Lafayette Inn, Washington Savings Bank, Steele Data Processing, Sagar Dairy and TV-3.

The names of the co-sponsors appear on the backs of the players' uniforms.

Ambitious 30-game schedule set

Washington C.H.'s Post 25 American Legion baseball team will launch an ambitious and prestigious 30-game schedule here Sunday afternoon.

The Post 25 Legionnaries, under the guidance of new manager Dennis Morris, will entertain Yellow Springs in a non-league doubleheader at the Washington Senior High School diamond at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

SCHEDULE conflicts prevented the Washington C.H. team from staging its traditional Memorial Day opener this season.

Wasyington C.H. Post 25 will be trying to recapture the South Central Ohio League and District 7 tournament championships that have eluded them the last two summer seasons, but brought fame and recognition to the team during the 1970 campaign.

This season's schedule includes former Ohio Legion champions and several other perennial baseball toughies. Former titleholders on the 1973 schedule include Grove City, Miamisburg and several times a state and national champion, Cincinnati Bentley Post.

The schedule, arranged by Richard Kelley of the Post 25 baseball committee, is tight and full of doubleheaders and includes a total of 18 games with the six SCOL rivals.

The Washington C.H.-based team will embark on its annual SCOL campaign June 6 in an 8 p.m. encounter with always-tough Chillicothe Post 757. The Chillicothe team is being touted as the SCOL's pre-season favorite, with a handsome number of veterans returning from last year's team. This marks Chillicothe 757's second season in the SCOL.

All of Washington C.H.'s 13 home dates will be played at the WSHS diamond which features a grass infield and is being developed into one of the finest fields in the area. There are no admission charges at the American Legion games, but donations are requested to help defray the cost of operation.

Members of the SCOL this season are Washington C.H., Portsmouth, Waverly, Greenfield, Hillsboro, Chillicothe, Post 62 and Chillicothe Post 757. Portsmouth is the defending SCOL champion.

THE SCOL games will be played on Wednesdays and Sundays and there will be no league tournament again this year as it tends to conflict with the District 7 tournament and the opening of high school football drills.

This year, as in the past, all single night games will be nine innings in length and the first game of the afternoon doubleheaders will also be nine innings. The nightcaps of the twinbills will be seven innings, as in past years.

The District 7 tournament is scheduled July 21-24 at Hillsboro and the state tournament site is Ashland College's diamond.

Morris braces for baptism as Post 25's baseball boss

Dennis Morris made his high school coaching debut over four years ago, but the young coach will be premiering in a different role Sunday.

Morris, former head baseball coach and athletic director at Madison Plains High School, will be receiving his baptism as manager of the Washington C.H. Post 25 American Legion baseball team Sunday afternoon when Yellow Springs invades for the opening game of the 1973 summer season.

Actually, a new era in the Washington C.H. American Legion baseball program will start when Morris starts calling the signals in Sunday's doubleheader at the WSHS diamond.

MORRIS, who had coached Madison Plains baseball teams three straight years before resigning recently to continue his education at Miami University and work in the Redskins' baseball program, was named to the Post 25 job August 16, shortly following the resignation of veteran Legion manager Russ Hatfield.

The popular and immensely successful Hatfield retired following the 1972 season. In six consecutive seasons as the Post 25 manager, Hatfield molded the Washington C.H. American Legion baseball program into one of the strongest and most consistent in Ohio.

During Hatfield's tenure, the Washington C.H. American Legion teams posted an enviable 145-96-1 all-games record; captured two district tournament championships, thus winning the same number of berths in the state tournament; won the South Central Ohio League baseball race once, and boasted the distinction of never finishing a league race lower than third place.

Before accepting the head coaching position at Madison Plains three years ago, the soft-spoken Morris was an assistant baseball coach under Paul Hoskins at Westfall High School.

Morris, a 1969 product of Miami University where he was a star baseball player, guided Madison Plains to the finals of the Central District Class AA baseball tournament a year ago only to drop a 7-6 struggle to defending champion Columbus Bishop Wherle.

This season, Madison Plains, under Morris' direction, captured the Darby Valley League baseball championship with a perfect 6-0 record and posted a fine 10-4 all-games chart.

Morris, a 26-year-old bachelor, resides in Mount Sterling and is a graduate of The Plains High School.

Former Post 25 star sparkles for Bobcats

Steve Bihl, a former Miami Trace High School and Paul H. Hughey Post 25 baseball whiz, turned in another sparkling performance with Ohio University's baseball team this spring.

Bihl, who received a full athletic scholarship to Ohio University and swatted .300 as a freshman, slugged .341 for the Bobcats to finish as the team's fourth leading hitter.

THE SOPHOMORE outfielder played in all of Ohio University's 37 games, made 129 trips to the plate and had scored 29 runs. Bihl's 44 hits was second high on the team and his 13 doubles and two triples tied for club leadership.

The 1971 product of Miami Trace High School cracked two home runs and had 67 total bases, which was second best among the Bobcat players. He knocked in 28 runs, drew 20 walks, made 53 putouts and only one error at his rightfield position. Bihl finished with a fine .987 fielding average.

The 6-foot-2, 195-pound son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bihl, Rt. 5, Washington C.H. was instrumental in Ohio University's 28-9 all-games record this spring. The Bobcats had a 14-4 record in the Mid-American Conference.

Bihl played three seasons with the Post 25 team and was a four-year letterman with the Panthers.

LL slate revamped because of showers

Rain has forced postponement of this week's action in the two Washington C.H. Little Leagues.

Bill Martin, Little League coordinator, said that all four days of action this week have been postponed, but will be rescheduled following the regular season of action which ends July 6 for the major league teams and July 12 for the minor league squads.

Tonight's action in both leagues has been postponed, Martin said. The teams were scheduled to play tonight due to the Memorial Day holiday.

The major league will extend its season July 9-10 and the minor league teams will play July 16-19.

Action will resume as scheduled Monday, Martin said.

All-SCOL baseball stars dot Hughey Post's roster

Stars from this spring's All-South Central Ohio League baseball team dot the roster of the Washington C.H. Post 25 American Legion squad.

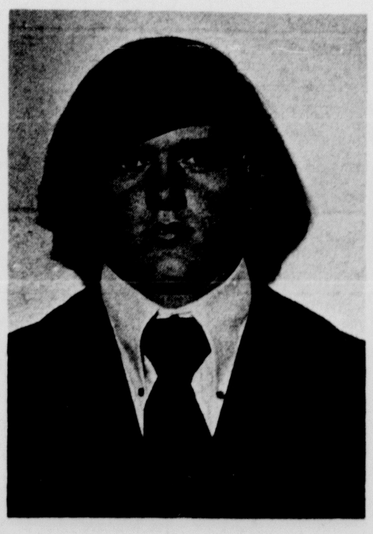
Tony Grooms, a product of Miami Trace High School, and Washington C.H.'s Alan Coppock are two members of the Paul H. Hughey Post 25 team who were named to All-SCOL first team berths this season.

Paul England, of Circleville, is the third All-SCOL member of the Post 25 team, however, four other American Legion players landed All-SCOL honorable mention accolades this spring.

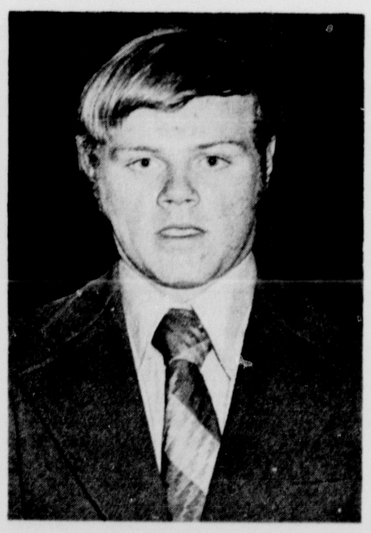
POST 25 players who were named to the league's honorable mention list are Mark Johnson and Chris Shaper, of Washington C.H., and Tom Riley and Randy Reiber, of Miami Trace.

Grooms, who is headed for Ohio University on a full athletic scholarship this fall, was voted the All SCOL team's honorary captain after he received a unanimous vote from the six member coaches. Grooms swatted a sizzling .625 this season and landed his fourth consecutive all-league baseball berth as well as a spot on the Class AAA All-Southeastern District team.

Coppock, who was named to his second straight all-league berth as a first baseman, slugged .358 for head coach Rodger Mickle's Washington C.H. Blue Lion baseball team this season.



TONY GROOMS



ALAN COPPOCK

England finished with a fine .366 average to help Circleville to a successful campaign.

Grooms, Coppock, Reiber and Shaper were members of the Washington C.H. Post 25 team a year ago, while Johnson and Riley will be participating in their first summer of the American Legion program.

Teacher-artist preserves crafts

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Many early American crafts are perishable, a good reason to make an effort to preserve them. So says an artist and teacher of decorative art, Mariette Paine Slayton.

AMERICANA—Mariette Paine Slayton teaches decorative art with Early American techniques. She tells beginners how to brighten their homes with eagles, flowers and stencils on furniture and household equipment.

"Lots of old American things have been lost forever because tin rusts and glass shatters," she explained. "Stone and bronze used in other cultures have survived the centuries in palaces, museums and sarcophagi because they were easier to preserve . . ."

Buried in attics and barns, there may still be much old "beat-up" furniture, tinware and glass that has survived the garbage dump, she remarked, and it should be refinished.

But she cautions anyone unsure of the procedure to consult an expert. If a design is removed or repainted haphazardly, its originality may be lost forever. Rarely are two early decorative designs exactly alike.

EAGLES, fruit, flowers and leaves were the most popular decoration on these old American objects, observed Mrs. Slayton who has just written a book, "Early American Decorating Techniques," which combines some early American techniques with those used in England and Wales.

"I'd like to see more old decorating techniques applied to contemporary things, but I would not like to see new techniques used on old things," she observed.

Simple country painting is a good way for amateurs to begin if they would use old designs on new articles. Coffee pots, syrup jugs, tea cans might be decorated. "In fact, breadboards are ideal for beginner decoration," she advised, suggesting that copies or patterns might be painted on acetate (a thin material) and mounted after one feels the technique has been mastered.

THE EARLY decorated objects, which provided cheeriness in colonial homes that were somber looking with objects made of wood and pewter, were being turned out as early as 1740 by Edward Pattison, an Irishman who had settled in Berlin, Conn. Mrs. Slayton was impressed by the records of his operation which showed the emphasis on good materials.

While women workers were paid only $2 a week, the brushes used by them cost $1 each and the best varnish cost $10 a quart.

The country rose, a primitive red stylized circle, is one of the most popular to be found on old American trays, canisters, candleholders, boxes, tea and coffee pots, she remarked.

Country painting used seven basic strokes — broad, knife, teardrop, straight, oval, "S" and crescent shapes. But other techniques — for example, patting (with the finger) — were used in Pennsylvania German design.

IN ENGLAND the rose used was Chippendale — from about 1760. A beautiful flower with filmy layers of hand painting and transparent washes, it was more like roses used by old expressionists, Rembrandt and Van Eyck.

Many of these old designs found their way to America. But in the latter part of the 19th century such work deteriorated. In her book Mrs. Slayton gives instructions for three types of Chippendale roses.

For beginners there are illustrations showing shadings on cubes, spheres, cones and cylinders which should help in creating the structure of flower forms.

Step by step directions are given for finishing and decorating Boston rockers, Windsor and Hitchcock chairs.

Chapters are devoted to gold leafing and stenciling and there are instructions in reverse glass painting and painting on velvet (theorems.)

Among the full-size patterns of motif are eagles and the designs used on lace-edge trays, among the most sought-after by collectors, many of whom visit Pontypool, Wales, where the fruit trays were first turned out.

A GOOD knowledge of decorating techniques may be parlayed into teaching crafts or provide a moneymaking business, Mrs. Slayton advises.

Most teaching is concentrated in the East, she says, and she has had a student from as far away as California.

"I was eventually supporting myself with my hobby," she remarked, pointing out that her first and best teacher was a self-taught craftsman.

In Danielson, Conn., where she was born, she worked with a cabinetmaker for about 10 years applying stencils to Hitchcock-style and fiddle-back chairs, and she has taught for more than 15 years at a school at Ludlow, Vt.

She now gives some instruction at her home in Montpelier, Vt., where she lives with her husband, an artist who paints in the abstract.

Although she is well known as a portrait painter and is very good at likenesses, she aims now "to improve my painting."

She is also painting miniatures which she finds "physically easier," providing quicker results than the larger painted articles.

2 slayings at prison spark anger

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Calls for restoring the death penalty followed the slaying of the warden and his deputy at Holmesburg Prison. Two inmates previously accused of killing policemen have been charged with the murders.

"When you take away the chair, what can you do with these men?" asked Capt. Leroy Taylor, 49, who received serious stab wounds in the back when he tried to save the two slain prison officials.

"This is a good case for the electric chair. We need the death penalty back," said Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo.

Warden Patrick Curran, 47, was stabbed three times in the back and Deputy Warden Robert Fromhold, 51, was knifed 13 times Thursday, a medical examiner said.

Police said inmates Frederick Burton, 25, and Joseph "Jojo" Bowen, 27, drew knives after being admitted to Fromhold's office. They reportedly sought permission to have Orthodox Muslim prayer meetings seven days a week instead of three.

Police said a fracas began while Fromhold was alone in his office with the two men. Curran and Taylor were attacked when they came to Fromhold's aid after hearing a scuffle, prison officials said.

Police said they recovered two table knives honed to razor sharpness. The 1,200 inmates in the facility built for 700 had been allowed only spoons during meals until this year, when they were allowed forks and knives.

Late corn planting may hurt Ohioans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Agriculture Director Gene Abercrombie says late corn planting could cause soaring meat prices in the state "unless we get some relief from the weather."

Abercrombie Thursday blamed steady rain for what he predicted would be the "worst corn crop in 20 years," if bad weather continues through next week.

Young organist pleases 600 at recital in WCH

A sophisticated audience of about 600 music lovers heard a dazzling performance Thursday night of organ masterpieces performed by Miss Anne Merrill Stewart in First Presbyterian Church.

The recital was the final concert of the season sponsored by the Washington Organ Club, and preceded a club meeting and election of officers.

Miss Stewart, a graduating student of Dr. Wilbert Held at Ohio State University, presented a program of the music of five composers.

The program included "Prelude, Fugue and Chaconne" by Dietrich Buxtehude, "Prelude and Fugue in G Major" by J.S. Bach, "Charale in B Minor" by Cesar Franck, "Toccata, Villancico and Fugue" by Alberto Ginastera, and "Petite Suite" by Gerald Bales.

Following the concert, Mrs. Earl Hartley was hostess at a reception for Miss Stewart and Organ Club members.

DON RIBER was re-elected as president of the club. Other officers are Mrs. John P. Case, vice president; Mrs. Hartley, secretary, and Mrs. Wayne Spengler, treasurer. Serving on the nominating committee were Mrs. Case and Barbara Lanum.

Two gifts were presented to La Tonda Bailey, a sixth grader at Belle Aire School, for having sold the most tickets to the five concerts sponsored during the year by the Organ Club. Through donations the club has raised money for a new harp for the high school in the name of Mrs. Florence Manchester. Money derived from the five concerts, totaling about $900, has been used to repair the organ at the Junior High School. The club hopes to renovate the organ and install a new console.

Burned baby doing well in hospital

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP)—The future remains uncertain for 21-month-old Jason Michael Bernath, who was found beaten and burned on a Brunswick doorstep more than two weeks ago, but Glynn County officials say he may be placed in a foster home.

Jason has been recovering well, according to Dr. E. R. Jennings, after the burned fingers of his left hand were amputated because of gangrene. Jennings said the baby may be released from Glynn-Brunswick Memorial Hospital in about a week.

A spokesman for the Department of Family and Children's Services said the foster home may be a temporary solution, and that the final decision rests with the Glynn County Juvenile Court.

The boy's mother and stepmother, Mrs. Sharon Marshall, 19, and Jimmy Wayne Marshall, 26, face a possible maximum penalty of 25 years each in prison if conficted on charges of aggravated battery and cruelty to a child.

The two are being held in the city jail while they await a Superior Court hearing on the charges.

Jason has had two offers of adoption, one from his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Barbara Wachuta of Middleburg, Ohio, and another from his great uncle, Thomas McKibben of Conneaut, Ohio.

Mrs. Wachuta identified the child after he was found and helped trace the mother. She has said she would also like to press charges against her daughter.

Deny state workers have new agreement

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Joseph Sommer, acting director of the Ohio Department of Personnel, says the new association of state employes has no agreement with the state and his department will continue to recognize the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

Sommer Thursday discounted a report that the new Ohio Government Employes Labor Alliance has signed a working agreement with the State Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

The hospital said 1,451 children and their parents have been invited to the June 27 party.

Experts wary

Vietpeace optimism baseless?

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some American diplomatic and intelligence experts are skeptical about Henry A. Kissinger's optimism over prospects of a meaningful cease-fire in Indochina.

The main point of concern at the moment is the reappearance of major North Vietnamese tank forces in at least two areas of South Vietnam recent days.

One intelligence source said a complete North Vietnamese tank regiment has infiltrated through the demilitarized zone into the area around Hue in Military Region I. He said the better part of a second tank regiment has been reported in the same area. That totals more than 300 tanks and other heavy armored vehicles.

He noted there was another infusion of armor last month down the Ho Chi Minh trail into South Vietnam along the border with Cambodia.

This bold move indicates Hanoi is very confident, these officials say, since such an operation requires moving sophisticated equipment far from supply bases.

They add it also means Hanoi is preparing to launch an offensive if new attempts fail to make the Jan. 27 cease-fire truly work.

Kissinger will meet in Paris Wednesday with special North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho in the second round of the latest effort to implement the original cease-fire.

Kissinger said after returning from the first session last week that he expected to reach "new understandings" next week on implementing the Jan. 27 agreement.

When asked about the national-security adviser's optimism, the sources said they "wished they could share" Kissinger's view, but they knew of nothing to substantiate his assessment.

The doubters also pointed out that Kissinger was optimistic about the chances of the original agreement to end the fighting. Instead, the combat level has stayed high throughout most of the post-cease-fire period.

Kissinger also predicted a quick cease-fire in Cambodia, and that has never come close to fulfillment, they said.

Another source also indicated recently captured enemy documents may have been planted to fool South Vietnam and the United States. These documents and other intelligence information indicated Hanoi intends to abide by whatever new arrangement Kissinger anj Tho work out.

"What is more likely to happen is that Hanoi and the Viet Cong may ease off for a month or two. If they don't get some political advantage in that period then they will attack," one administration official said.

According to this source, an intelligence expert, it is unlikely the Kissinger-Tho sessions will result in any meaningful change in the balance of power in the South.

BOSTON (AP) — Heart specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White is reported in fair condition at Massachusetts General Hospital after suffering what doctors described as a "small stroke."

Secret papers shocking, Sen. Ervin declares

Top-level 'Gestapo mentality' seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the present and former top officials in government are telling very different stories about their mutual connections with the Watergate scandal.

And Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, says he has read secret White House documents that disclose a "Gestapo mentality" existed at the highest levels of the Nixon administration.

Ervin's comments at a news conference in Winston-Salem, N.C., Thursday were the strongest he has made about the explosive issues uncovered by the broadening Watergate investigation.

The top-secret papers he was discussing surfaced when fired White House Counsel John W. Dean III told a federal judge he had taken them from the White House. The judge gave the North Carolina senator a copy. They are a blueprint for domestic espionage, but President Nixon said the plan was never implemented because the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, objected to it.

"It would be a great shock to the American people" if the contents of the papers are made public, Ervin said, adding that he plans to ask the nation's intelligence agencies for their recommendations regarding release of the documents.

The Watergate committee chairman, a Democrat, said the papers detail White House plans to set up "an interagency operation to spy on Americans, especially those who disagreed with the administration."

Since the disclosure several weeks ago that the Central Intelligence Agency may have been pressed into Watergate-related service, a number of congressional watchdog committees have launched separate, secret inquiries into the activities of America's official espionage agency.

The resulting testimony has pitted former top White House aides against the highest echelons of the CIA and FBI.

As related by some of the officials themselves and by members of various committees, here are some of the conflicts that have shown up in recent sworn testimony behind closed doors:

—Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr., former deputy director of the CIA and now commandant of the Marine Corps, said that John D. Ehrlichman asked him by phone on July 8, 1971, for CIA assistance to E. Howard Hunt, since convicted in the Watergate conspiracy.

Ehrlichman, then President Nixon's domestic-affairs adviser, said he never made the request, told Cushman so and

Michigan solon declares war against Ohio

By STEF DONEV
Associated Press Writer

WYANDOTTE, Mich. (AP)— Michigan's mighty militia may march on Ohio to capture Toledo and other hamlets north of the 41st parallel, says a state senator who has declared war on the Buckeye State.

Sen. John McCauley, D-Wyandotte, declared war Thursday because of "nefarious demands by a group of Toledo businessmen and brigands" who want $11 billion from the Wolverine State in war reparations from the 1835-36 Michigan-Ohio war over Toledo which was fought over an apparent drawing error by a mapmaker.

That war cost one mule its life, a soldier a cut finger and a Toledo farmer his cabbage patch.

Congress and the U.S. Supreme Court finally ruled that Toledo is part of Ohio, a decision some chauvinistic Michiganders applauded.

McCauley—who recently helped a Roseville, Mich., girl fight a court order to get rid of her pet chicken—says declaring war is his "senatorial perogative since my district abuts Ohio.

"This is similar to other wars. The victors—which we clearly are—always have to go back after the holocaust to re-educate and support the losers, and I'm sick of it.

"The war is in the best interests of the misplaced persons who are rightful residents of Michigan," he told The Associated Press.

"We want to lead them out of the Ohio wilderness and return them to the good life."

Ohio has not responded to the challenge, but McCauley says he's willing to take the contested Ohio lands in trade for some of Ohio's Lake Erie floodwater which keeps parts of his district wet.

"Michigan's own Henry Kissinger, Sen. Harvey Lodge, says he's willing to lead the peace talks," he added.

McCauley said several state senators who served as pilots in World War II have volunteered for the Michigan Air Force.

"We might be forced to draft some men to man the barricades, but hopefully the true Michigander spirit will bring us a volunteer army mighty enough to quash the Buckeyes—11 or 12 should do it."

McCauley's Chief of Staff is Sen. John Bowman, his roommate in Lansing and his partner in the celebrated chicken case. 7

Sister Mary Karl George, R.S.M., the provincial administrator of the Roman Catholic Sisters of Mercy in Michigan and Iowa, has volunteered to serve as official historian for the Michigan militia "as long as I can watch the battle through field glasses."

Sister Karl authored "The Fall of Toledo, Mich." for the State Historical Commission. It is considered the definitive work on the war.

McCauley plans to finance the campaign with contributions, and says: "The war chest is growing. We have $10.25 already, and I expect $37.28 by Sunday."

McCauley also wants the legislature to declare the cardinal, the Ohio State Bird, a pest in Michigan.

Iceland cod war heats up

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — A government spokesman charged today that 10 to 20 British trawlers rammed an Icelandic tugboat three times in disputed waters east of Iceland, leaving it in danger of sinking.

At the same time, the British Trawler Federation announced in London that two British trawlers were rammed by an Icelandic gunboat Friday in a new surge of violence in the dispute between the two countries over fishing rights around the Atlantic island.

Greek junta abolishes monarchy

ATHENS (AP) — Premier George Papadopoulos announced today that he was abolishing the monarchy and making Greece a presidential republic.

Papadopoulos proclaimed himself first president of the new republic in a radio brodcast to the nation.

Papadopoulos had taken over as strong man and crown regent in March 1972. He masterminded the April 1967 coup which brought the military junta to power, suspending parliamentary rule.

He said the junta made the decision to end the monarchy in a special Cabinet meeting today. A plebiscite will be held within two months to ratify the decision, he said.

Following the referendum, Greeks will vote in a general election for a new parliament by the end of 1974. It will be the first election in Greece since February 1964.

The premier said investigations showed that King Constantine was involved in the recent abortive attempt by admirals and navy officers to topple the government.

Papadopoulos accused Constantine, self-exiled in Rome since 1967, of "collaborating with foreign forces, of turning against the armed forces, of becoming a political leader and even collaborating with murderers."

The junta's decision was no surprise. For a week, the junta has been leaking rumors of its intentions to solve the monarchy issue.

Papadopoulos said that the 33-year-old king, instead of conforming to the 1968 constitution after his countercoup failed in 1967, "cooperated with all shades of reactionary political forces despite the constant warnings of the goverment."

Skylab crewmen enjoying leisure

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab's astronauts today enjoy a luxury never before known in space — a day of leisure, which will include their first showers after a week of work in the warm space station.

It is one of three free days planned during the 28-day mission by Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz.

Experiments are suspended for the day. Unless there is an emergency, mission control will leave them alone, except for relaying routine messages.

Experts on the ground will continue to troubleshoot Skylab's power shortage, working on procedures for one of the astronauts to take a space walk to release a stuck solar panel.

Commander Conrad hinted Thursday night there may be at least some chores to do.

"It'll be more like a field day," he radioed. "We've got an awful lot of housekeeping to do. Things are scattered all over the place, so we'll spend some time cleaning house."

Conrad said he hoped to play orbiting tourist and snap some pictures from the window during the day. He asked the control center for the map coordinates of Egypt's pyramids and African Mt. Kilimanjaro.

One thing they're looking forward to is the shower, scheduled for late afternoon. Each will lather himself, step behind a circular plastic shower curtain and use a hand-held device to spray himself with about two quarts of water.

In the weightless environment of the space station, the water droplets were expected to cling to the curtain and the astronauts. The spacemen will suck them up with a hand-operated vacuum cleaner.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz have worked in 80-degree plus temperatures since boarding the station a week ago and have reported they are somewhat sweaty.

"The shower will be very welcome," Kerwin said.

Flight controller Don Puddy said the temperatures now are expected to stabilize at about 80 degrees in two or three days.

U.S. gives copters to Cambodians

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The U.S. government has given the Cambodian air force "a small squadron" of helicopter gunships for close air support in tight combat situations, military sources said today.

In South Vietnam, Viet Cong sappers blew up an ammunition dump 12 miles from Saigon, injuring 10 South Vietnamese soldiers and destroying 400 tons of mortar and artillery shells, authorities reported.

A normal squadron numbers about 20 aircraft. The sources said the UH1 "Huey" gunships, equipped with miniguns and rockets, arrived in Cambodia Tuesday. They were used for the first time Wednesday, escorting convoys along the Communist-infested Mekong River supply corridor. Security considerations precluded disclosure until today.

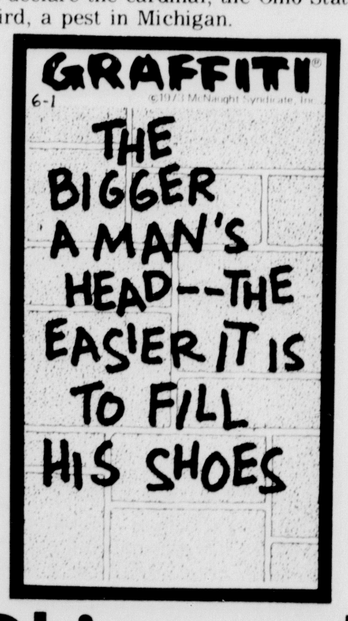
Cambodian pilots trained in Thailand "are doing a really good job with the choppers, both flying and maintenance," one informant said. "They're doing as well as Americans would and better than the Vietnamese."

Cambodia has about 20 propeller-driven bombers, 36 Huey helicopters, 36 twin-engine transports, about a dozen spotter planes, and a new squadron of highwing monoplanes that can be used for forward air control or as gunships.

Arrival of the new gunships comes at a time when the U.S. Senate has voted to cut off all funds for continued bombing in Cambodia and Laos and when the Cambodian armed forces are undergoing a major reorganization.

The U.S. Defense Department has reported that B52 bombing raids over Cambodia have been cut by one-third, in part because Congress has not yet acted on a request to transfer money from one military account to another.

However, B52s pounded suspected insurgent positions along the east bank of the Mekong River today, nine miles from Phnom Penh. The explosion in South Vietnam occurred before dawn and ripped through the big former American base at Long Binh. The blasts continued for eight hours, rattling doors and windows in Saigon.



Futures market skyrockets; consumers to feel effects

By MARY GANZ
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — If you've never seen a bushel of soybeans it's hard to imagine why scores of men would be willing to pay $10 for them.

But scores of men are willing to pay that much and more for a bushel of the oily, pea-shaped beans. And many don't even know what soybeans look like.

Yet they buy and sell thousands of bushels of soybeans by dealing in commodities futures, contracts promising delivery at some future date.

Thousands, and sometimes hundreds of thousands, of dollars are won and lost daily in such dealings at the Board of Trade.

In the past few weeks, the traders have been mostly making money.

The commodities futures boom has nearly tripled the price of soybeans in a year and almost doubled that of wheat and corn.

Consumers will eventually feel the price increase at the meat counter, say many traders. The commodities bought and sold at the Board of Trade are used primarily as livestock feed.

"The farmer is getting pressure from both ends," one broker said. "He's faced with paying more and more for his feed grains, yet not being able to raise prices above the government ceiling. He has no choice but to cut production."

Soybeans are the "glamor stock" of the futures market. But other futures prices have been soaring, too.

Most traders say, with conviction, that prices are hitting record levels because the supply of food commodities simply can't keep pace with demand.

But there is another view expressed by one trader: "The only thing that's worth a damn in this country is its agriculture.

"They're not producing cameras or televisions any more in this country. Pretty soon they're not going to be making cars. Who wants to buy a 300 horsepower car that breaks down twice a week!"

Soybeans lead price increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by soybeans, farm prices jumped four per cent last month and averaged 33 per cent more than in May last year, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

The Crop Reporting Board said prices for the month ended May 15 also included increases for cattle, cotton, corn, and potatoes.

Soybeans registered the sharpest increase, rising to a national average of $8.27 per bushel, a boost of $2.13 from April. Since last fall, soybeans have increased $5.01 per bushel, the department said. In May last year, they brought $3.35 per bushel.

18-year-olds bill faces Ohio panel vote in week

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill extending adult rights to 18-21-year-olds will head to a committee vote next Thursday with a couple of amendments that could sign its death warrant if they remain when it goes to a floor vote.

The House Judiciary Committee Thursday amended the Senate-passed measure to include the right to drink hard liquor.

At the same time it put in another amendment that would prevent them from being policemen or state highway patrolmen.

There were indications the drinking amendment may have been put in with intentions of killing the bill. The House did reject it two years ago because of that provision.

When it came through the Senate this year, Sen. Stanley Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, rejected floor attempts to put it back in.

"Although I am in sympathy with giving them the right to drink," he said, "the House will never buy it. We will just kill the bill."

The committee action was the highlight of the final day of the legislative week. The House in floor action passed a bill banning studded tires on Ohio highways during summer months.

The studded tire bill, which now goes to the Senate, specifically bans the tires April 1 to Nov. 1. It passed 78-8.

Rep. John Bechtold, R-26 Cincinnati, attempted to amend it to ban the tires year around. Sponsors claimed they tear up roadways.

Although the amendment had the support of the bill's main sponsor, Rep. Jerome Stano, D-7 Parma, it was defeated 49-37.

The Senate passed and sent to the Senate three bills that would:

—Permit state-chartered banks to invest in Minibanc Corp., a firm that gives loans to minority businesses. National banks within Ohio can now invest in the firm. (31-1)

—Allow the secretary of state to initially approval different brands of voting equipment, which he can do now only if the legislature has authorized that type by statute. (32-0)

—Increase from two to three years the vacation time a state or county employe can accumulate and use at the same time. (32-0)

The House passed two bills already approved by the Senate and headed them to Gov. John Gilligan for signing into law.

They would:

—Permit jurors to serve in county courts even if they have served within the past 30 days.

—Permit schools to operate staggered attendance schedules if the Ohio Department of Education approves.

In other action, the House refused to concur in Senate amendments that would prohibit an auto dealer from permanently attaching his name tag to a new auto without the owner's consent.

Deputy held in slayings

ESCANABA, Mich. (AP) — A Delta County sheriff's deputy has been arraigned on charges of first-degree murder in the deaths of his wife and two infant sons.

The burned bodies of a Dennis Murphy's wife and children were found at the 25-year-old deputy's home in nearby Garden Thursday morning after Murphy was found beaten and handcuffed behind the village's firehouse.

State Police here Murphy's 20-year-old wife, Janet, and sons, Randy, 2, and Robbie, 7 months, died as a result of the blaze. But no autopsy results have been released.

Deputies at the Delta County Sheriff's Department said County Prosecutor Tony Marcinkewicz had not released any information on why Murphy was arrested by State Police.

the general deleted his name from a memo recounting the incident. Cushman said Thursday that he has since checked his records and reaffirmed that Ehrlichman was the caller, adding: "I do not regard Mr. Ehrlichman's position and mine as being necessarily contradictory."

—Ehrlichman, presidential chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, CIA Director Richard Helms and Helms's deputy, Army Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, met at the White House on June 23, 1972, to discuss the CIA and the break-in six days earlier at Democratic headquarters in the Watergate.

Helms and Walters said the CIA wasn't involved in Watergate and the FBI's investigation of the incident wouldn't hurt the agency or compromise any of its other covert activities.

Walters said the White House officials, since resigned, sent him to see acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III to tell Gray the FBI's Watergate-related investigation of a Mexican money deal could jeopardize CIA operations.

Ehrlichman said Helms and Walters didn't give "a flat assurance" that the CIA wouldn't be hurt by the FBI probe.

Haldeman said there was "no intent or desire to impede or cover up any aspect of the Watergate investigation itself."

—Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of one of the subcommittees looking into the matter, said Haldeman and Ehrlichman were in substantial agreement with each other but their accounts were in "serious conflict" with the Helms, Walters and Gray versions of the White House meeting and subsequent Gray-Walters encounter.

—McClellan's counterpart on the other side of Congress, Rep. Lucien D. Nedzi, D-Mich., said: "We have two versions under oath that are not consistent." He called for a Justice Department review of the testimony, which could lead to filing of perjury charges against one or more of the congressional witnesses.

—Both Ehrlichman and Haldeman blamed Dean for reported efforts to get the CIA involved in the scandal. Dean has said a move is under way to discredit him before his testimony exposes other top people involved.

Mitchell action voided wiretaps, judge discloses

MIAMI (AP) — A federal judge says that because former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell ignored a command of Congress, the court had to suppress wiretaps showing evidence of guilt in 11 federal gambling, narcotics and bribery cases.

U.S. District Judge William Mehrtens said Thursday an April hearing in Miami at which Mitchell testified revealed the wiretaps were illegally authorized.

Only the attorney general and a few assistants can approve wiretaps under a law passed by Congress. It was revealed during the hearing that while Mitchell was attorney general, others in the U.S. Justice Department authorized wiretaps.

"For some reason unknown to this court, the highest law enforcement officer in the land believed he could ignore an express command of Congress," Mehrtens said.

Report tornado sightings top previous mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Weather Service says there have been more tornadoes so far this year than in the first five months of any previous year.

The service said Thursday that more than 700 tornadoes had been reported through May 29, with a month remaining in the peak tornado season.

The previous high for the first five months was 504 in 1957. The record for a year is 928 in 1967.

The Weather Service also announced that the hurricane season starts today and continues through November.

The list of names that will be given to 1973 tropical storms and hurricanes starts with Alice, Belinda and Christine.

Jobless figures remain unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate, still failing to respond to the economic boom, held stubbornly at five per cent of the work force in May, the government said today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the U.S. job picture was essentially unchanged since last November although the economy was in the midst of one of its most vigorous expansions in history during that period.

As in April, the number of people that the bureau counted out of work totaled 4.4 million. The work force remained at 84 million, the bureau said. The figures were adjusted to take seasonal job patterns into account.

Partly cloudy to sunny weather was promised by the weatherman for Ohio today with at least a threat of some showers over southern and central sections Saturday.

June was ushered into the state with clear skies and near normal temperatures ranged from the upper 40s through the middle 50s and only scattered clouds were reported in most areas.

Some dense ground fog was noted in the valley sections near Cincinnati but this burned off quickly after sunrise.

Some showers and thunderstorms skirted just to the north of Ohio Thursday night but these moved on to the east.

Along with the comparatively good weather predicted for today the National Weather Service said temperatures would again be in the 70s and possibly reaching the low 80s in some southern sections. A weak frontal pushing southward across the Great Lakes will approach northern Ohio tonight, producing at least a threat of showers in the southern and central sections Saturday.

Little temperature change is expected for Saturday except in northern sections where the cold frontal passage will drop temperatures a few degrees from today's readings.

A chance of showers Sunday and Monday. Highs in the upper 70s and low 80s. Lows from the mid 50s to mid 60s.

Brazilian jet crash kills 23

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A Brazilian jetliner with 23 persons aboard crashed and exploded on landing in the northeast coastal city of Sao Luis today. The Cruzeiro do Sul airline said all were killed.

The airline reported that the two-engine Caravelle "had an accident during a landing operation." It added that the right wing hit the runway after touchdown at the Sao Luis airport.

The plane was on its daily run from Belem at the mouth of the Amazon River, to Rio je Janeiro, with stops along the way.

Skyjackers to be paid $50,000

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two young hijackers, 22 passengers and a fresh crew of seven took off from Aruba bound for Lima, Peru, early today. The owner of the Colombian plane, SAM airlines, said it had forked over $50,000 in return for a promise that everyone aboard would be freed and the plane abandoned at the next stop.

Eighty-nine persons were aboard the plane when it was hijacked Wednesday, but all the women and children were set free, 11 men escaped Thursday and 9 more were released early today.

The two men ordered the plane flown to Aruba on Wednesday and threatened to blow it and the passengers up if they did not get $200,000 and the release of 140 leftists from Colombian jails.

The Colombian government stood firm, however, and the hijackers abandoned their demand for the leftists' release and reduced their ransom demand.

Before dawn Thursday the two men ordered the pilot to fly to Lima. The plane remained in the air for two hours, but then returned to the Aruba airport because problems developed with the propellor lubricating system.

The plane sat under a blazing sun on the Aruba runway most of Thursday as the hijackers negotiated with SAM officials and deliberated their next move.

The hijackers then ordered the plane flown to El Salvador, but it never touched down and returned to Aruba shortly before midnight.

Conference gets war fund cutoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conference committee will have the task of thrashing out a compromise between a Senate bill that would cut off all funds for U.S. military action in Indochina and a milder House version.

The Senate Thursday voted to cut off all funds for U.S. combat activity in Cambodia and Laos. The House had voted 219 to 188 May 10 to deny any funds in a $3.6-billion appropriation bill for any further hostility by the United States in Cambodia.

A majority of Republicans turned against President Nixon's bombing policy as the Senate voted 63 to 19 for the antibombing amendment sponsored by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo. The Senate ban, which applies to all money ever appropriated by Congress for any purpose, was attached to the same $3.6-billion bill.

Administration spokesmen had said that the House actipn, even if the Senate concurred, would not have stopped the bombing. B52 raids were started in March to force withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, in compliance with the Jan. 27 Vietnam ceasefire agreement, the administration said.

Eagleton said final adoption of his amendment after a House-Senate conference agreement would make any further U.S. combat activity in Cambodia and Laos illegal.

The conference probably will take up the bill next week.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., urged House conferees to remain firm against the all-inclusive Senate fund cutoff.

The Senate action, he said, undercuts presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger's negotiations with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho. The sessions resume in Paris June 6, as both men seek full compliance with the cease-fire accord.

"You are encouraging further bloodshed in Indochina," Tower told the Senate after the vote Thursday. "Don't think that lives are going to be spared just because we are out of it."

The Senate rejected two modifications of the Eagleton amendment proposed by administration backers who complained it would "tie the hands of the president."

The Eagleton amendment was approved by 43 Democrats and 20 Republicans. Another 16 Republicans and three Democrats voted against it.

The appropriation bill was passed 73 to 5.

Cab company finds gasoline more costly

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Yellow Cab Co. of Cleveland says it will have to pay 73.75 per cent more for bulk gasoline during the coming year.

Yellow Cab Treasurer William Klug said only one bid was received on the firm's bulk fuel contract. That bid, from last year's supplier, the Shell Oil Co., raised the price per gallon from 11.28 to 19.6 cents, he said.

Problems remain despite U.S.-Russian detente

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Between them, the Americans and Russians have whipped up an enticing batch of icing for their detente cake. But painfully visible and rock-hard lumps remain beneath, stirred in over generations of cold war.

The Soviet-American summit coming up shortly represents an attempt by the two leaders to keep their countries off a collision course.

At the same time, each hopes to reap benefits for his own side.

But neither is likely even for a moment to entertain the notion that genuine peace is either at hand or around the corner. Not peace, but peaceful coexistence, has broken out.

Some remarkable and even revolutionary things have been going on in advance of the visit of Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist general secretary, to President Nixon beginning June 18.

American capitalists have been roaming the Soviet Union, talking about and even sealing big deals. Westerners who, not many years ago, might have viewed any high Communist as a personification of menace now profess to find Russia's boss Communist a man of engaging charm and business wisdeom.

On the other hand, Russians read things in their papers that are practically unbelievable. The same Soviet journalists who devoted themselves industriously to lambasting everything Americans have accustomed themselves to casually dropping names like Rockefeller, Ford, American Can, Pepsi-Cola, and so forth. All are mentioned in tones of espect.

Soviet readers are told that some Americans are showing "common sense and realism," and the clear implication is that there can, after all, be such a thing as a good capitalist. Instead of giving readers the impression that absolutely nothing is right about American society, the press has taken to telling them some things are even pretty good, like the organization of the American consumer economy.

The Soviet press scarcely mentioned the Nixon administration's Watergate woes, and what little it did report was phrased with delicate care.

Yet Brezhnev and other Communist leaders repeatedly warn that peace mustn't be allowed to go too far, to interfere with the ideological war or to permit wide open East-West contacts that might have contaminating defects.

"The Communist party of the Soviet Union has always held and still holds that the class struggle between two systems, Communist and capitalist, in the economic, political and of course ideological domains will continue," said Brezhnev in a recent speech. All he promised to do was to "strive to shift this historically inevitable struggle to a path free from the perils of war."

The Russian military, however, seems to have less faith than the civilian politicians in the blessings of peaceful coexistence. The military press harps on a need for "constant vigilance and readiness to deal a rebuff to any intriques of the aggressive, reactionary circles of imperialism." That means the United States.

But the civilian press assures critics that "positive changes" in the world climate were forced on the capitalists because of the might and authority of the U.S.S.R. It tells them the policy now combines "flexibility and firmness" and creates "more favorable conditions externally for the building of communism in our country." This means that in an atmosphere of relaxed tension, internal problems can get more toplevel attention.

The Russians and Americans indeed have taken long strides in some areas, particularly trade and commerce, each for its own compelling reasons. Also, there is likely to be a look of progress at the Washington summit on how to bring the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks SALT into a new and complex phase dealing with offensive weapons.

What about other issues?

Europe and European Security

Moscow's appetite is sharper than ever for the sort of all-Europe security conference it wants to develop from preparatory talks now going on in Helsinki. The Soviet press has been enthusing about "progress" both in Helsinki and Vienna, where other talks are in progress on reduction of forces. Most of all, the Kremlin wants a security conference— soon.

The West is not against a conference, but has insisted that any security arrangement would be meaningless unless it provided for free exchange of people and ideas.

Moscow sought to overcome that hurdle by suggesting it was all for exchanges of information and people within the framework of "sovereignty." That meant Moscow would retain full control over the sort of people and ideas entering the Soviet orbit.

Later the Kremlin was reported amenable to freer movement of people and ideas within certain specified areas, possibly on the assumption that such movement into the orbit still would be subject to a large measure of control so that the population can be protected against any influx of "bourgeois" ideas.

Forces Reduction

The progress in Vienna has been hardly worth mentioning. The two sides have hardly been able to agree on what they want to talk about. The United States wants to talk about "balanced" reductions, because geography makes it so much easier for the Russians to reach Central Europe. Moscow objects to the word "balanced." It does not even agree that Communist-ruled Hungary is in Central Europe. The Russians have possibly 50,000 troops there and aren't disposed to move them out.

Brezhnev is aware of pressure in the U.S. Congress for withdrawal of troops. Why bargain if he can hope to get all he wants without giving much at all?

Berlin

In his Bonn summit with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, Brezhnev seemed to do well. He now has a prospect of German economic collaborations, technology and capital in exchange for raw materials. He gave little politically and in fact kept options open on West Berlin, where the East German Communists still want Bonn's hopes obstructed.

The Berlin wall, built 12 years ago to lock people into East Germany, remains standing. Nothing has been said about knocking it down. As for West Germany's claim to represent West Berlin in international organizations and prospectively in the United Nations, Brezhnev did some agile sidestepping.

A West German interviewer asked him directly whether Moscow would accept the principle of West German representation of West Berlin in the United Nations.

"I will not consider this question as to its content," Brezhnev replied.

"But I shall tell you something of my character. I do not like to revert to questions that have already been solved."

That didn't answer the question, which in fact hadn't been solved.

There may, however, be some cold war dividends yet to come from the Washington summit. Brezhnev, no less than President Nixon, has strong reasons for wanting to get something to show from it, some sort of glittering success.

While it is possible an impression that the President has been weakened by Watergate might make Brezhnev more aggressive, it is also clear that he badly wants the things he is shopping for — enough to pay a price.

For example, Brezhnev in two recent speeches has said flatly "the Vietnam war is over," although the fighting there continues. He has shown what seems to have been a fair dose of caution in the Middle East. Possibly his hope of hastening economic benefits for the Soviet Union might persuade him to contribute more generously to tranquility in such areas.

3-day 'jail-in' under way for solons, police officers

By HENRY HEILBRUNN
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There are 138 non-criminals being handcuffed, taken away in paddy wagons, fingerprinted and mug-shot at the Ohio Penitentiary today.

All have been warned, "You have some hard days ahead."

They are part of an experiment to sensitize a co-ed group of legislators, law enforcement and corrections officers, reporters and representatives of labor, business and citizen organizations to a prison environment.

The three-day "jail-in" is sponsored by the Ohio Citizens' Council Committee on Crime and Delinquency.

Thursday night the group met at the Sheraton-Columbus Motor Hotel—an attorney from Columbus, a police captain from Toledo, welfare worker from Youngstown, a married couple from Berea, chief justice from Cleveland and labor leader from Akron.

"Make believe deeply that you have been caught. 'I have been found out.' Take that attitude," one program director told the new inmates after they read their "rap" conviction sheets.

Their make-believe offenses range from embezzlement to petty larceny to first-degree murder.

"If you can't take the position of being indictable, then take the position you've been railroaded. That happens, too," he said.

No matter whether they liked their offense or not, these innocent people are to be locked up for the next three days to feel prison life.

"Do what you would. Be what you would be. Assume that either you have been incorrectly or correctly placed in jail," he instructed them.

Then he again cautioned them, "You have some hard days ahead."

Nixon, Pompidou talk

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Although still far apart on their approaches to major issues, President Nixon and French President Georges Pompidou have reached a summit agreement on how to begin resolving their differences.

With a final meeting set for today, the two presidents could point to nothing in the way of dramatic achievement from their private talks in Iceland's chilly capital. But their spokesmen indicated hope for eventual agreement through negotiating procedures endorsed by the two chief executives.

Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's foreign policy advisor, told newsmen Thursday that procedures now set in motion may produce an unprecedented summit of 16 Atlantic nations by the time Nixon visits major European capitals in October or early November.

The participants probably would include all members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Common Market.

Kissinger said, however, that "it really is too early to tell" whether enough progress can be made at lower levels to justify an autumn super-summit.

According to the rather flexible Nixon-Pompidou plan outlined by Kissinger, this is how representatives of the United States, France and other Western European countries will go about their search for solutions to monetary, trade and defense issues:

—Current and contemplated Atlantic Alliance negotiations on specific questions "will continue in established forums."

—The United States and France will hold continuing bilateral talks with the first to be next Wednesday when Kissinger and Foreign Minister Michel Jobert meet in Paris.

—As progress is made, "a meeting at the deputy foreign minister level, on an ad hoc basis, might be desirable" to determine whether the allies could agree on a statement of principles — another term for Kissinger's suggested "new Atlantic charter."

—"Whether or not there should be a summit of the European leaders with the President will be decided after the results of all these other negotiations can be evaluated."

Opinion And Comment

Secrecy must have limits

If there is one thing the American public should have learned from the war in Vietnam, it is that government decision-makers often do things for a variety of reasons and then cloak their actions in the garb of "national security."

This must be borne in mind, now that the dangerous arguments about "national interests" and "national security" are once again rearing their ugly heads.

We now find in the Watergate case that the President requested that "all" information about Daniel Ellsberg be dug up because of possible imperilment of national security. The President also permitted the wiretapping of top-level aides in Henry Kissinger's National Security Council staff, an action that had the full acquiescence of Kissinger. In addition, newsmen's telephones were bugged.

To be sure, there are legitimate national security interests which must be preserved. The dispute arises over what should be kept secret, and over how far the government should go to preserve secrecy.

The President argues that the release of the Pentagon Papers harmed national security interests. Without specifics, it is hard to assess this contention, but there are clearly two sides to the question.

The Ellsberg trial elicited much testimony raising serious doubts as to the validity of the claim; there is some reason to believe that in fact no substantial affront to national security was involved in the Pentagon Papers' having made public.

None of the above should be taken as suggesting that a chief executive should on no occasion invoke the "national security" argument; that would be nonsense. However, no President has a corner on infallibility. Evaluation of what is and what is not in the national interest is a judgmental question.

Also involved are basic questions as to what democracy is all about. Individuals possess rights, one of which is the right not to be spied upon. It must be acknowledged that to some extent this right poses dangers; that is, in a society which safeguards the right of privacy, traitors may have an easier time of it than in a dictatorship where there is no effective right not to be spied upon. There is, in short, some inherent risk in a democratic system.

Unwillingness to live with this inherent risk leads to what happened with the National Security Council staff: wiretapping, bugging and the like, all justified under the general rubric of preventing leaks that might harm the national interest.

Up to a point, there is some legitimacy in this. Once begun, however, that type of activity tends to take on a life of its own, propagating and justifying itself with no end in sight.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Nixon hoist by his own petard

WASHINGTON — There are times when the political atmosphere of this city becomes as oppressive as tropical heat. Right now there is no refuge from Watergate.

Everywhere you go in governmental Washington, it is the sole topic of conversation and the mood strangely resembles that of a lynch mob. I don't like lynch mobs, but of that more later; what is interesting is the extent to which the President is totally isolated, the degree to which he lacks any political base.

Mr. Nixon set himself up for this treatment. The 1972 national election was run as a private affair. If there were other Republicans running for office, the President ignored their existence. The consequence, of course, was that GOP senators and representatives felt deserted by their "leader" and are now sitting around chortling at his misfortunes.

Vice President Spiro Agnew has been a model soldier, but those who are aware of his sense of humor must have been convulsed by his recent reply to a question about Watergate. The President, he suggested dead-pan, would answer any questions on that topic.

Since neither Haldeman nor Ehrlichman would return Agnew's calls, one might suspect that the Veep is not weeping at their downfall.

NOR DOES Mr. Nixon have much of a following in the nation. We forget the wacky circumstances of the 1972 election. Nixon deserted the Republicans, while the Democrats deserted Sen. McGovern. The result on its face was a landslide, but there was an earlier poll in which the options were Nixon, McGovern or "neither": "neither" received a plurality!

In short, the party system fell apart at the top of the ticket. As I pointed out at the time, the American electorate saw its choice as between "thieves" and "theocrats" and opted for thieves on the ground that this was an old-fashioned sin for which there were adequate remedies.

Well, the President had his time of glory, but now the bills are coming in. And they are big bills: the senator who was treated like a clown by some White House aide playing President, the Republican Party in states rebuffed by CREEP, and perhaps the biggest bill of all — the one from the media.

Having been treated as running dogs of the "liberal establishment" for printing hard news stories about CREEP, having in effect been called whores and liars by the President's press secretary, the media are understandably moving in for the kill.

Which brings me back to the lynch mob. For a quarter of a century Americans liberals have been objecting to "trial by newspaper," to "unsubstantiated smears," to "guilt by association."

I, for instance, opposed the Kefauver investigation of organized crime, the McClellan Committee's job on the Teamsters, and, of course, the various anti-subversive safaris carried out by the House UnAmerican Activities Committee, Joe McCarthy, and other congressional bodies.

This was not because my best friends were Mafiosi, Teamsters or Communists, but because the Ervin type of investigation violates in my judgment the fundamental principles of criminal justice.

DAY IN, DAY OUT — as millions of Americans watch the tube — normal rules of evidence are simply thrown out the window. True, Sen. Ervin does point out from time to time that some choice item of hearsay would not hold up in court, but on the torrent flows.

Again let me emphasize my belief that laws have obviously been broken — I hold no brief for anyone.

What I do insist, however, is that those accused be accorded the full protection of due process of law, that explorations take place in the grand jury room, not Sen. Ervin's circus, and that the trail of those indicted be in accordance with the laws of the land.

Protecting President Nixon from McCarthyism has a certain ironic quality, but if you are a civil libertarian that is the name of the game.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

SATURDAY, JUNE 2

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

A day for rejoicing. Some unexpected cooperation will tide you over a difficult spot, money-wise.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Control a tendency to be introspective and moody during the morning hours. It could only take some of the bloom off happy late-day surprises.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

You may not get all the help you want at first but if you really NEED an associate's cooperation, offer him an incentive.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Not a good day in which to speculate, but a fine one in which to seek information regarding future investments.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Curb your innate aggressiveness now. Use more subtle tactics to get what you want. Benefits CAN be gained, but all will depend on your approach.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

You are inclined to be extremely critical of others, but the shoe may be on the other foot now. Don't be resentful. Listen — and learn!

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Pull up the rains rather than rush ahead helter-skelter. You could get into trouble if you use the wrong tactics. Heed your creative urges.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Organize your program so as to eliminate time-wasting confusion. A good activity day for those born under this Sign.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Superior quality of workmanship and tact in all matters advised. Balance things; gear endeavors in keeping with high hopes. Results can be gratifying.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Your judgment a bit cloudy now, so make no major decisions and, above all, don't launch any new undertakings. Stick with the familiar.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

If you stick close to facts and control that imagination of yours, you should get along fine during this busy, sometimes hectic, period. Pick your way discreetly.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Don't give up on a pet project because it seems to lack luster. Try a novel twist in approach — to restore incentive and get going again.

YOU BORN TODAY are an extremely gregarious individual — a happy-go-lucky person, motivated by good will toward all. Also ambitious and unusually versatile, you have the potentialities for high attainment in many fields but, since you are restless and changeable in your desires, could stymie your own efforts if not careful. The Geminian usually excels in writing, music, promotional ventures, any field which involves travel. On the other hand, you may be attracted to science and (or) research and could succeed at either if you educate yourself along these lines. You would make an excellent teacher if you could master your innate impatience.

Kennedy winner on presidency in Gallup Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The latest Gallup Poll indicates Sen. Edward M. Kennedy would defeat John B. Connally by 14 percentage points if the 1976 election for the presidency were held today.

The poll of 1,531 adults taken May 4-6 gave the Massachusetts Democrat 50 per cent of the vote to 36 per cent for Connally, a former Texas governor and secretary of the treasury under President Nixon.

Connally, now a special adviser to the President, recently switched from the Democratic to the Republican party.

In a Gallup survey during April, Kennedy defeated Vice President Spiro T. Agnew 51 to 38 per cent.

Deadly trainloads

Less than a month separated two munitions train explosions in the West - one in the northern California town of Roseville on April 28, the second 15 miles east of Benson, Ariz. The fact that both were Southern Pacific trains is doubtless neither here nor there, but some comments by the line's public relations vice president, James Shea, are noteworthy for what was left unsaid.

Referring to the fact that there were injuries, but no deaths in either instance, Shea said this showed that safety regulations "are certainly high enough to protect lives." The press quoted him as adding that he hopes "that with research, investigations and improvements in existing technology, we will some day be able to make things safer."

This begs the question. The question is: Why must lethal cargo (and this applies to deadly chemicals as well as to munitions) be routinely moved through heavily populated areas? The question is especially pertinent with reference to the explosion in Arizona, since the munitions train was scheduled to pass through Tucson (population about 300,000) not long afterwards.

Had carloads of 500-ton bombs exploded in the heart of that city, the result would almost certainly have been a major disaster with heavy loss of life.

Whether the railroads, the military and other shippers of deadly loads, or federal, state and local safety authorities are to blame, it is hard to say; perhaps all share the blame. But blame there is.

It is simply not good sense to route such cargo through populous communities. To the utmost extent feasible, routings should be made around cities. The safety rules should be rewritten, if need be, to encompass this fundamental precaution.

Every 1.26 seconds: $10,000

The Bureau of the Census has for many years sported a population clock. Comes now the Chamber of Commerce of the United States with a federal spending clock, installed in the Chamber's national headquarters in Washington.

The federal spending clock is a wondrous toy, though not one designed to make gladsome the heart of the taxpayer. What the clock keeps saying is: There goes some more of our money!

At the present spending rate, the clock ticks away $10,000 every 1.26 seconds. Every 12.6 seconds, we are informed, a light flashes to indicate that another $100,000 has been spent by Uncle Sam. But there's more: Every two minutes and six seconds there's an ominous beep which heralds the passing of a million.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Daddy's money oils the skids for fiance

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl with a broken heart. I met Rick in college at the beginning of the year. We fell in love and planned to be married this summer. Rick is a graduate student.

My daddy is in oil and has a lot of money, but I wish we were poor because Daddy's money is what caused my problem.

When Rick went to talk to Daddy about marrying me, Daddy asked Rick to meet him in his office. Daddy had a lawyer there with some papers for Rick to sign, saying if the marriage didn't work out Rick wouldn't get any of my money I'll be getting when I turn 21.

Rick wouldn't sign anything, instead he called me up and said he didn't want any part of a family like mine, so now I am without a boy friend.

My daddy said if Rick really loved me he would have signed those papers. I told my Daddy he had no right to ask Rick to sign anything.

Please tell me what you think of all this? I don't have a mother.

CRYING MY EYES OUT

DEAR CRYING: Your father should have talked it over with you first. But if Rick gave you up just like that, your daddy could have been right. Dry your tears, honey. Rick could be back.

DEAR ABBY: Because my husband and I are unable to have children of our own, we applied as foster parents through our state welfare department.

Our first child was a teenager, fresh out of a girls correctional institution. It was a frustrating experience for us-and for her, too. After admitting our failure, the caseworker removed her from our care and gave us another foster child. Since then, we have had many, mostly teenagers. Many we've helped. A few we have not, but those we've helped have more than compensated for the others.

Abby, you wouldn't believe the number of friends and relatives who ask us: "Why do you take in those damaged kids who have been abused and kicked around and taught to lie and cheat? If they were your OWN, you'd have to put up with them, but you're crazy to ask for unnecessary headaches. Can you really love those kids?"

Our reply: "Most of our children are just like your children, with one exception. Our children have been denied the love and understanding of their natural parents. We have tried to provide them with that love and understanding. If you and your spouse happened to suddenly die, and neither friend nor relatives wanted to take on 'unnecessary headaches,' what would happen to your children? I guarantee you, we could love them as easily as we love the children we now have."

What else can we say, Abby?

FOSTER PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Nothing. You've said it all. And beautifully.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my wife and I went to the office of a physician by appointment. It was our first visit there. It was a nice morning, and on entering the waiting room I said: "Good morning, everybody!"

There were about a dozen people of all ages sitting there, and not a single person responded to my greeting! I thought perhaps I had come upon a group of deaf and dumb people, but they all answered when their names were called by the receptionist.

My question: Has it gotten to the point in this country where nobody speaks to anybody except by appointment?

SENIOR CITIZEN

DEAR CITIZEN: I'm surprised that out of a dozen people, not one returned your friendly greeting. But why make it an American trait? Such an unexpected burst of cheerfulness on entering a doctor's waiting room would probably have met with the same lack of response in England, France, or Italy.

Texas publishing house challenges Eastern firms

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Here in the old cattle country of Texas, a once-groping newcomer has become a prodigy of the religious publishing world.

Word, Inc., is the talk of the trade. It is one of the westward firms which have risen to challenge the religious publishing predominance of the East.

"A lot of it was providential and extremely fortuitous," says Jarrell McCracken, 45, the savvy founder-president of Word, whose sales now run $11.5 million annually, exceeding the religious output of most Eastern publishers.

Besides happenstance, however, some special insights into the religious concerns of the country also have gone into the shifting balance of religious publishing and into the stream of top-sellers from the houses of the West and Midwest.

"New York is not really the place to be to know the religious pulse of the American people," McCracken said in an interview. "I don't believe you can effectively publish religion without being a part of it and being with the people who are involved in it."

That specific, avowed commitment to nurturing faith has been a hallmark of the emerging big-time religious publishers of the inland region. Some have hewed to a distinctively conservative, evangelical output, such as Zondervan Publishing House of Grand Rapids, Mich., with ballooning sales.

While Word, Inc., also stemmed from that conservative, evangelical orientation in founder McCracken, a dedicated Southern Baptist, the company has broadened its range to enlist authors of various Christian views.

"The old liberal-conservative labels are not really viable," said Floyd Thatcher, 55, the company's vice president and executive editor, a veteran in the field. "We're concerned with the entire Christian arena.

"We want to reach the guy who has turned off the church as well as the church people locked into sterile approaches to religion and also those confused about why they are in church, people searching for the real meaning of Christianity."

The firm has turned out a long line of big sellers, including: "A Taste of New Wine," by Keith Miller, 650,000 copies in hard cover now going into paperback; "A Second Touch" and "Habitat of Dragons," also by Miller, totaling 400,000 in hard cover; and "The Stork is Dead" by Charlie W. Shedd, 125,000. The high figures compare with an average book's sales of under 5,000.

"Whatever an author's Christian position might be, we're interested in it if it carries authentic meaning, whether we agree with all of it or not," McCracken said. He said this has nettled some conservatives but their position gets ample attention, too.

"The church is in a transitional change as significant as that of the Protestant Reformation," he said. "The church is going to emerge with a totally different shape and form, and we're interested in the ideas pointing the way."

Word, Inc., got its beginning in 1951 when McCracken, then a sportscaster who preached and taught youth groups on weekends, recorded a catchy portrayal of Christianity as a football game, complete with dubbed in crowd noises.

Stores in the area soon were demanding the record, called "The Game of Life," and McCracken gradually was propelled into the record business. His firm grew into the country's largest religious record company; and in 1965, it entered the book field. It has turned out 325 titles so far—nearly 50 a year.

Oriental Pork

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Oriental Pork is excellent for a Chinese supper. Because Oriental Pork is a sweet-and-sour dish, you may want to serve another main dish that has quite different flavoring on the same menu. Beef with Green Peppers (Pepper Steak) or Chicken Chow Mein would be a good choice to offer before the pork - and - pineapple combination.

When we tried the Oriental Pork in our test kitchen we bought a boneless pork loin (rolled and tied) that weighed between 2½ and 2¾ pounds. By the time we untied and unrolled the pork and cut it into cubes (removing the fat) we had just the amount of meat called for in the recipe.

ORIENTAL PORK

2 pounds boneless fat-free pork, cut into ¾- to 1-inch cubes.
1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) pineapple chunks in heavy syrup, drained and syrup reserved
Water
¼ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup dark corn syrup
1 green pepper, seeded and cut into thin strips
Hot cooked rice

In a 13- by 9- by 2-inch roasting pan, arrange pork. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven, stirring occasionally, until browned — about 45 minutes. Drain off any liquid and replace pork in roating pan; set aside.

Add enough water to reserved pineapple syrup to make 1¼ cups. Reserve pineapple chunks.

In a 1-quart saucepan stir together the sugar and cornstarch. Gradually stir in pineapple syrup mixture, keeping smooth. Stir in vinegar, soy sauce and corn syrup until blended. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil and boils 1 minute. Stir in pineapple and green pepper.

Pour pineapple mixture over meat in roasting pan; cover tightly with foil and return to 375-degree oven. Bake until pork is thoroughly cooked — 25 to 30 minutes longer. Serve with hot rice.

'Mother' is meeting theme

The group voted to give a donation to the "Second Mile" project in India. Cheer cards were signed for the ill.

The devotions and program were presented by Mrs. Ritter, whose theme was "Mother." She used various selections pertaining to "Mother" and Mrs. Cecil Smith was chosen to represent a mother. She was presented a corsage. The group also presented Mrs. Tway a gift and flower in honor of her golden wedding anniversary on June 6.

A baby picture contest was held, and refreshments were served by the hostess and Mrs. Smith to Mrs. Lois Burris of Sabina, a guest, and members Mrs. George Durnell, Mrs. Russell Grice, Mrs. C.A. Wilson, Mrs. Carson, Mrs. Ritter and Mrs. Bock.

Deputy Sarah Brown speaks to garden club

Town and Country Garden Club met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Mildred Henkelman, with Mrs. Lewis Thomson as the assisting hostess.

In the absence of the president and vice president, Mrs. Lee Cleland presided at the business meeting. In response to the roll call by secretary, Mrs. Richard Rankin, each member read a card describing a familiar plant or flower. The cards were provided by Mrs. Cleland.

Mrs. Cleland introduced Mrs. Sarah Brown, member of the Fayette County Sheriff's Department, who presented the program for the evening. Mrs. Brown showed a film entitled "The Invitation" concerning the protection of homes in the owner's absence. Many hints were given on making the home less attractive to prospective burglers. Following the film, Mrs. Brown answered questions concerning property protection and also spoke on methods women can use for self defense in an emergency.

Mrs. Henkelman reported on a recent tour some of the members had made to the Candle Shoppe at Goshen, and other points of interest.

Plans for participation in the Fayette County Fair Flower Show were discussed and members were reminded to contact Mrs. Eli Craig for their assignment for this event. The Speciman Show to be held in connection with the Fair Flower Show was also discussed.

The Regional Meeting which will be held at the Mahan Building Oct. 12 was discussed. Club members will be helping with the registration for this all-day meeting.

Various plans for the husbands' party were mentioned and definite arrangement will be announced later.

The nominating committee, composed of Mrs. Alvin Armintrout, Mrs. Rex Bloomer, Mrs. Rankin and Mrs. Dwight Duff, was requested to meet and present a slate of officers for the 1973-74 year at the next meeting.

At the conclusion of the evening, refreshments were served by the hostesses to the members and two guests, Mrs. Laura Hughes and Mrs. Roxy Thompson.

Foundation seeks to end cry 'Oh, My Aching Head!' victims

NEW YORK (AP) — Migraine gives women a real pain.

Of more than 10 million Americans who suffer from migraine headaches, 75 to 80 per cent are women, according to the National Migraine Foundation.

Dr. Seymour Diamond, foundation president, profiles the typical migraine sufferer as female, intelligent, trim and a hard-driving perfectionist with a history of headaches.

Each year, 2,000 persons have a new migraine headache, he added.

Diamond's organization is two and a half years old and was patterned after the British Migraine Foundation, a unit of lay people, and Migraine Trust, composed of physicians and scientists.

"When I visited Great Britain to talk about my headache studies, I was amazed by the amount and quality of research being done on migraine. There is widespread financial support among lay people for research, and this in a nation where there's no income tax deduction for contributions," Diamond said.

"I was impressed with the character and type of research. Almost all of our work is drug oriented because it is supported by pharmaceutical donors."

Diamond said the Chicago-based migraine unit is the first to study headache in the United States on a massive scale. So far the foundation has awarded two grants for migraine study to colleges.

"I would say that 90 per cent of the headache problems seen by the average physician are psychogenic in nature. Eight per cent are vascular, one-sided or cluster migraine. Two per cent of headache complaint is caused by organic disease," he added.

If a person has migraine headaches, it is likely his parents suffered from them, also. After heredity, factors which cause the headaches involved personality. Intelligent people who are compulsive and precise often suffer from migraine.

Diamond said that more than $400 million is spent annually on across the counter headache remedies.

"That's why we want to learn the cause of migraine, develop methods of relief and organize treatment centers throughout the nation. We need to educate the medical community and the public about migraine," he said.

"In addition to drug therapy, we are investigating biofeedback. Volunteers are working with special equipment to learn to control the temporal artery every time they feel a migraine coming on. This has worked quite well with younger people, but it seems to be difficult for older individuals to learn to control the autonomic nervous system."

Eventually the National Migraine foundation plans to establish clinics for headache across the nation. Diamond believes there are enough migraine sufferers around the country to support such clinics.

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Bogged down in a slump that some brokers call the worst in their memory, the stock market looks around warily like a turtle poking out its head, hoping to find assurance. And all it finds is instability.

Instability in politics, in monetary affairs, culturally, financially. In Watergate, gold and dollar prices, in the prices of grain at Chicago, in the level of consumer confidence.

And so, turned in upon themselves, all brokers can do is contemplate their own miserable, unstable state of affairs, while a prolonged and long delayed reorganization of the nation's investment machinery seems stalled.

The central marketplace, a goal that would eliminate much of the self-interest and peculiarities of the individual exchanges, is still but a goal. The Securities and Exchange Commission has lost two aggressive leaders in less than a year. And at a time when Wall Street was trying to encourage confidence, another brokerage house might have to be liquidated.

Seat prices on the Big Board, which once sold for more than $500,000 and which were relied upon by many brokers for their retirement, recently dipped below $90,000. American Stock Exchange seats are selling for less than $30,000.

Prices of shares in companies that are considered essential, strong, highly reputable and with good futures have fallen to what some brokers feel are their ultimate lows, and still the customers remain unexcited.

The market went right through one of the biggest booms in years, with corporate profits soaring — and stock prices falling. And now when they say it can't get worse, the economists are talking about a 1974 recession.

And so those who make sell stocks look for signs that the storms are ending. And the most welcome sign would be more selling.

Read the market literature, the letters that go to favorite customers, the newspapers, the industry magazines, and you find them talking about the coming climax, the big selloff that indicates rock bottom.

Following this, prices hopefully will bounce up to where they should be, accompanied by a resurrection of spirits that will energize even the most doubtful buyer.

Indicator Digest, which surveys market literature and business and money indicators, claims that its own average "now shows unmistakably that the present bear market rivals the historic 1929-1932 crash, and in some respects is even worse."

From the peak of December 1968, it says, "the entire body of stocks" has dropped 55 per cent on average. And "if you look beyond the top 50 institutional favorites," it notes, you can find 70 to 90 per cent declines.

Such erasure of values would seem to indicate rock bottom. However, nobody can really say for certain, because a selling climax that finally clears the air can only be seen in retrospect. Many declines look like climaxes, only to be followed by more declines. The convulsive shakeout now being sought couldn't be called a climax unless confirmed by sharply rising prices in following days.

GIRL SCOUT TROOP 612

The members of Girl Scout Troop 612 met in the home of Mrs. M. Barnett. She and Miss Stacy Johns were the two leaders present and the meeting began with a flag ceremony.

In the ceremony were Tammy Stone, Sandy Stone, Debbie Kingery, Paula Cummins, Cindy Rudd and Beth Van Meter.

Following the ceremony, we talked about Day Camp and Court of Awards. Refreshments were served by Terri Williams. Four girls, Michelle Knisley, Terri Williams, Carla Barnett and Tammy Stone were on TV following the meeting.

Mrs. Rita Johnson remained to help with the invitations.

STITCH & STEW 4-H

A trip to Kings Island was the topic at the Stitch & Stew 4-H Club meeting held in the home of Kim Riley. The pledges were led by Kathy Junk and roll call was answered by 'your favorite thing to do after school.' It was reported that the girls planted flowers around the Courthouse fountain with the aid and guidance of a local garden club. Plans were made to keep up the flowers and grass around the flag pole at the fairgrounds. June 7 is the date chosen by the girls for the trip to Kings Island.

A health report was given by Alisa Hughes on "Smiles and Frowns" reminding everyone to brush their teeth regularly and to have a dental checkup. "Play It Safe" was the theme of Kathy Junk's safety report. She gave us many tips on how to make our recreation safer. A demonstration on "How To Look Your Best" was given by Kim Riley.

Mrs. Meyers, home economics teacher at Miami Trace School, spoke on the four basic food groups. She told us how important it is to include these in our daily diets.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Janet Van Bibber on June 4.

ID cards bad idea

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Gov. John J. Gilligan administration today ran into criticism for identification cards it handed out last week to all state employes, including legislators.

"I wonder if the governor's high-priced idea man who thought up this idea is the same person who suggested closing the state parks two years ago?" asked Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati.

Aronoff said the plastic cards cost Ohio taxpayers "at least $10,000" and were "useless." They are similar to gasoline credit cards in appearance.

"It cannot be used to charge a dinner at a restaurant, for admission to a race track or even for identification when cashing a check," Aronoff said of the card.

He called the cards, which list the employe's name, social security number, department— and the governor's name—a "ridiculous piece of pocket pollution."

U.S. now Singapore's best trading partner

SINGAPORE (AP) — The United States became Singapore's foremost trading partner in the first quarter of this year with a sharp 50 per cent rise in two-way trade.

The rapid emergence of America as the major trading partner reflects massive investments plunged in this island republic particularly in the electronics and engineering industries.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writar

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC television network has aired a two-hour videotape of the Indianapolis 500. It'll probably show the 1974 model next May, but I can't see why.

The main saving grace of ABC's delayed Wednesday night broadcast of the Indy 500 was the sober, thoughtful commentary of Jim McKay and Scottish race driver Jackie Stewart.

They provided the few hopeful notes Wednesday night when ABC rebroadcast the day's earlier fiery Speedway accident that seriously injured a driver and resulted in the death of a pit crew member.

The scene of wreckage and massed fire trucks and ambulances on the track was followed within a minute on TV by a cheery STP commercial that began with Andy Granatelli booming out to his garage help: "Okay, fellas! Let's get going!"

ABC did give us later a trackside picture of a shocked, somber Granatelli on his way to the winner's circle, if that was any help.

Technically, ABC's camera work during the race was excellent. ABC's use of slow and stop-motion replays time and again captured and magnified the horror of two fiery crashes — one that stopped the race Monday and the second that delayed it more than an hour Wednesday.

Stewart, a top driver on any race circuit and an outspoken advocate of racing safety, had to leave the rain-delayed race Tuesday for one later this week at Monaco.

But before he left, he and McKay intelligently analyzed the way this year's Indy 500 was begun, pointed out for viewers what might have caused Monday's accident and unsparingly noted the potential hazards of both the Indianapolis Speedway and the cars racing on it.

McKay, working either solo or with a commentator, stood out — as he did during last year's Munich Olympics tragedy — as both a solid professional and as a man who can be deeply shaken, just like the rest of us, by disaster.

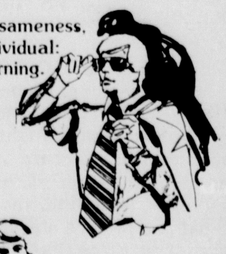
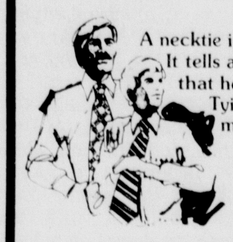
WHAT IS A NECKTIE?

A necktie is a man's way of expressing his personality. It is a small strip of cloth that tells the world how he feels. A tie is his ego. His mood. His touch of individuality.

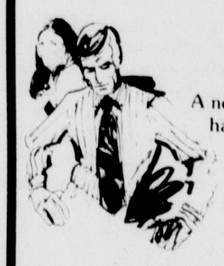
In this age of sameness, a necktie tells a man he's an individual: Unique. Discerning.



A necktie is a symbol. It tells a youngster that he has grown up. Tying a necktie is a special manly skill he must learn.



A necktie is small, but important; when you look at a man, you first see his face, then his tie.



A necktie says a man has fashion sense and confidence. It is as individual as his signature.

Quite simply, a necktie is the mark of a gentleman.

CAMERA Angles

"THAT'S funny, no dial tone."

"MUST be a dial tone in here someplace."

"HEY, Dad, call the phone company."

By SANDY COLTON

What is a picture story? Just that, a series of pictures that tell a story.

Imagine, for example, what you might do with some of these ideas: Mom baking an apple pie; Jimmy on his first fishing trip; Dad mowing the lawn; Sally and her first doll.

Plot out your story and direct the action and camera position just as if you were shooting a movie. Make your "actors" carry out their parts just as if the camera weren't there.

FIRST get the establishing shot to lead you into the story: a closeup of Mom studying a cookbook recipe for apple pie; Jimmy walking down the road with a fishing pole slung over his shoulder; Dad sharpening the blades of the lawn mower; Sally's surprise as she's handed a box containing the doll.

As you get into your story remember to vary your camera position. Make the camera an eye and place it in the position to get the best view of what's going on. Shoot some of the pictures from as close as you can get and others from far enough away to capture the whole scene.

Try for unusual angles: over Mom's shoulder as she loads the pie into the oven; through the blades of the mower as Dad sharpens it; from the overhead branches of a tree as Jim sits on the bank of the pond fishing; framed by a doorway to her room as Sally opens her box in wonderment.

Try for a little human interest — some humor or sweetness. A good closeup of Dad as he forces a huge piece of Mom's pie into his mouth; Jimmy's face and contraction as he tries to put a worm on the hook; Dad leaning on the mower, tired and wiping his brow; a closeup of Sally's face as she ecstatically hugs the doll to her.

DON'T FORGET your ending: the empty pie plate sitting in front of Dad while he pats his stomach and Mom looks on in amazement; a proud Jimmy holding up his catch; Dad sleeping on the hammock while the lawn mower lies abandoned on a half-mown lawn in the background; Sally's angelic look as she sleeps with the new doll cradled in her arms.

Using your camera like this is fun but, even more importantly, as you progress with your stories you'll see your pictures improve. You'll see the value of capturing your subjects in some normal activity rather than have them stand and stare into the camera.

You'll see the impact of close-ups that show only what needs to be shown. You'll see, too, how much more interesting your pictures can be if you shoot from different angles — and high shot, the low shot and the framed picture.

All of these things will then be applied to all your picture shooting with improved results.

But the real kick comes years later when you're browsing through the family photo album.

WHILE LOOKING through ours the other day I came across some pictures of my son Jay "repairing" his toy telephone. I remember giving him the phone and the tools with which to dismantle it and even helping him a little as I photographed the activity.

Then, when it was all apart I asked him why he had broken his phone, in order to get the torrent of tears for that final picture.

It was mean, I suppose, to take advantage of that young innocence. Still, it seems worth it today.

Jay will be 20 this month. He's a big boy now, and a good boy apparently undamaged by the trauma of that broken phone so many years ago.

But how I love the memories of the curious, wonderful, lovable little boy in our photo album.

Ohio Perspective

Kurfess lowers political sights

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, once had his sights set on the governorship, but he has had to lower them a bit in recent years.

When he was thinking big, Kurfess was speaker of the Ohio House. His old Republican friends who helped him get the job began to consider him arrogant. So did several Democrats.

When Democrats took control of the House, 58-41, in the last legislative election, Kurfess had to go through a fight on the floor to become minority leader.

His chances for governor apparently gone, Kurfess for awhile acted as if he was shooting for GOP nomination as Attorney General next year.

Now there are reports he may drop out of the legislature and run for judge in Wood County. But, Kurfess is indicating he may still have a state race in mind.

Obviously more friendly and easy-going now that he isn't speaker, Kurfess often drops into the statehouse press room just to chat and exchange jibes. But he now does it with a smile. He used to do it with temper.

An aide has resumed delivering to newsmen a list of his speaking engagements. They include such places as Ironton, in the southeast, and Elida, in the northwest.

Hardly a place for a Wood County judicial candidate to pick up support.

★ ★ ★ ★

Ohio Democrats will try to make political hay this summer on the county fair circuit, maybe with benches and lots of ice water.

Mike Lorz, public relations man for the party's state headquarters, has been working with county chairmen on ways to improve Democratic campaign booths.

"Two things you always want at a fair are a drink of something cold and a place to sit down," says Lorz.

It's a far cry from the days of Gov. Michael DiSalle, the Democrat who hated fairs. James A. Rhodes, then his opponent, acted as if he loved him.

Gov. John J. Gilligan doesn't always look comfortable patrolling the midways, but he has apparently decided not to buck the system.

The question of what Sen. William B. Saxbe will do, his retirement or announce to seek re-election, friends believe, is much of a mystery to Saxbe as it is to them.

REP. CHARLES KURFESS

Saxbe has frequently changed his mind, even after privately telling friends he had chartered a different course.

But there is one thing his friends agree upon: If he announces for governor, it will mean he has obligated the Republican Party to pick up all of his expenses.

It's the ploy he used when he ran for the U.S. Senate, since all the other GOP hopefuls thought the opposition would be an unbeatable Frank J. Lausche.

John G. Gilligan defeated Lausche in the primary and Saxbe went on to victory. When the campaign was over, he had no campaign debts. But the party did.

Women drawing 60 per cent of Social Security checks

CHILLICOTHE — Sixth per cent of adults getting monthly Social Security payments are women, according to Harry B. Bieber, Social Security district manager at Chillicothe.

"Twenty-three million adults are paid Social Security benefits," he said, "and 13.8 million are women. About 6 million women get monthly retirement benefits based on their own Social Security work records —20 times as many as in 1950."

About half of the women getting retirement checks became eligible on their husbands' earnings records, he said.

A working woman can retire at 62 and get reduced monthly payments on her own record. Or she can wait until she's 65 and get full benefits as well as Medicare coverage.

"But if she's entitled to higher benefits as a wife or a widow on her husband's record," Bieber pointed out," she'll be paid the higher amount."

THE WORKING woman has both disability and survivors protection from social security," he said. "If she becomes severely disabled and cannot work for a year or more, she and her family may be eligible for monthly cash payments for social security. And starting July 1, 1973, workers of any age who've been getting social security disability payments for 2 years or more may be eligible for Medicare.

About 460,000 children get monthly social security payments based on their mother's work records, he said. "A child who is entitled to monthly social security payments based on the mother's record can get them even though the child's father may be working at a full-time job," Mr. Bieber explained.

Contract Bridge ♠♥♦♣ B. Jay Becker

Test Your Dummy Play

1. This is a double-dummy problem, and a mighty tough one at that. You are declarer at Seven Spades and West leads the king of hearts. Bearing in mind that you see all four hands, how would you make the contract?

If the diamonds are divided 2-2 or 3-1, you have ten sure tricks, come what may. Only when they are divided 4-0 is the contract in danger. If North has the J-10-8-4, it does not matter whether you first lead the king or the six, for North has the suit stopped either way.

But if South has the J-10-8-4, it is necessary to lead the six rather than the king to allow you to score the four diamond tricks you need for the contract. Your K-Q-9 allow you to trap his J-10-9 as you lead the suit twice from dummy. The safety play renders his diamonds impotent.

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the queen of spades on which South plays the king. How would you play the hand?

1. Win the heart with the ace, discarding a club from dummy, and finesse the eight of trumps. Ruff the six of diamonds and finesse the ten of trumps. Next ruff the queen of diamonds and finesse the queen of trumps. Then, on the ace of trumps and ace of diamonds, discard the A-K of clubs!

That's all there is to it.

2. Obviously you must win the spade, because South might shift to a club and quickly put you out of commission. Then play a low diamond to the ace. This is a safety measure to guard against South's having all four diamonds.

Federal funds freed for jobs across Ohio

Jobs will also be available in Allen, Ashland, Athens, Butler, Delaware, Fairfield, Gallia, Geagua, Hancock, Hardin, Huron, Knox, Marion, Monroe, Ottawa, Perry, Pickaway, Portage, Ross, Sandusky, Scioto, Seneca, Vinton, Warren and Wood counties.

American dollar hits new lows across Europe

LONDON (AP) — The American dollar plunged to record lows at the opening of European exchanges today and the price of gold soared to new peaks.

Dealers said there appeared to be a massive distrust of the solidity of the dollar and selling orders were flowing in from all directions.

The rush to unload dollars was particularly heavy in Frankfurt, where the value of the American money dropped nearly five pfennigs during the first half hour.

Turmoil in the foreign exchanges spilled over into the bullion markets and sent the price to a record high of $119 dollars an ounce both in London and Zurich, the world's two biggest trading centers.

Venue shift sought for Hoffman trial

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Attorneys for Howard Hoffman III have renewed a request for a change of venue in his firstdegree murder trial because of publicity surrounding the case.

Hoffman's trial had been moved to Trumbull County earlier this year, but the proceedings ended in a mistrial. A Lake County judge ruled earlier this month that the retrial would not be moved back to Warren.

Hoffman is charged with the shooting deaths of his parents at their Mentor home a year ago.

No bargains in sirloin steaks

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sirloin steak is not a bargain anywhere in the world these days, except in South America where it sells for 74 cents a pound in Buenos Aires and 82 cents in Brasilia, according to U.S. supermarket watchers oversearf.

Further, the Agriculture department says, food prices generally appear to be climbing most of the world's capital cities, including here. A survey, made on May 2, was published today by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

The report updated a similar survey made of meat and some other food items last March. According to the latest information, meat prices have continued to climb this spring.

Sirloin steak, one of the most popular indicators, cost $1.79 per pound in Washington supermarkets in early May, up 10 cents from the March survey price. In Tokyo, where beef prices are the highest in the world, sirloin was $12.86 per pound, up from $11.90 in March.

Meat prices generally were higher in the May survey, the report said. Some prices for sirloin steak around the world included: Bonn $3.84 per pound; Brussels $2.78; Copenhagen $3.57; London $2.59; Ottawa $1.82; Paris $2.29; Rome $2.88; Stockholm $4.03 and The Hague $2.53.

Canberra, where Australian housewives have been protesting rising meat prices, sirloin steak sold at $1.66 per pound, the only capital other than Buenos Aires and Brasilia where it sold for less than here.

The survey included 14 items, ranging from sirloin and chuck roast to ham, frying chicken and bread. In 11 of the categories, shoppers in Washington where shown paying less than the median or mid-point price for all the countries.

According to the survey, for example, sirloin steak showed a median price of $2.56 per pound for all the countries, 77 cents more than in Washington, D.C.

Beef production was down to 14 per cent from April 1972, and pork was 9 per cent less, the department said.

The report said eating habits in other countries vary widely and that quality and types of meat cuts also differ by country.

Benicia, 32 miles northeast of San Francisco, was California's capital from 1853-1854.

Lifer B.J. Cat dies in prison

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — B.J. is gone, a lifetime served honorably behind prison walls without being charged, convicted or sentenced.

B.J., listed as Lifer 00001, now is in a tiny grave in a flowered garden tended by the men serving life terms at the Washington State Penitentiary.

A small metal plaque says simply: "B.J. The Cat, lifer. Born here, died here."

"He was a pretty good ol' cat," said lifer John Hawkins.

"There's a lot of people around here who miss him. You see a little cat walkin' along, it kind of makes you feel a little different."

B.J. showed up mysteriously as a tiny kitten inside Lifer's Acre several years ago.

Although prison rules forbid inmates to have pets, the cat, promptly named B.J., was tolerated.

B.J. just might have beaten the ground rules because the warden here is B.J. Rhay.

A few days ago, B.J. The Cat took sick.

He was taken to the veterinarian.

Nothing could be done, the vet said.

Fourteen dollars later — that was the bill — B.J. had gone to a cat's reward.

The vet's bill went to lifer Pappy Huson, who was B.J.'s cell partner.

Pappy is working it out. He's got the time.

Measles Vaccine is Safe

The mother of a child in a play group insists that the new measles vaccine is not safe.

Where she got the information we don't know, but the rest of us mothers are concerned about it.

Mrs. L. T., Kan.

Dear Mrs. T.:

The fear generated by misinformation and ignorance often spreads havoc.

Actually, the measles vaccine is no longer considered new; it was first used in 1963. Since then, more than 60 million doses of the live measles-virus have been administered with remarkable success.

Most people do not know that measles, when complicated, can be a serious disease.

Because of the excellent value of this vaccine, the number of deaths from measles in the United States has fallen from about 500 in 1962 to about 12 in 1971. These statistics are indeed a testimonial to the value of this, one of the safest of all vaccines.

It is true that occasionally a reaction does occur following the use of the vaccine. However, the risk is insignificant when compared to its benefits.

Don't deprive your children of the advantage of this and other recommended vaccines.

Can pollution and smog be responsible for a heart attack? Since I have been living in California I have developed pains in the chest that I did not have before I moved here two years ago.

Mr. D.S., Calif.

Dear Mr. S.:

It is generally accepted that some climatic and environmental factors have adverse effects on the respiratory and the heart and circulatory systems in the body.

Statisticians in the World Health Organization (WHO) of the United Nations have for years studied the relationship between heart attacks and unusual pollution and smog.

A number of epidemics of heart attacks seem to occur when there was air stagnation caused by heavily polluted air. This is known as "air inversion" to meteorologists.

It is suspected that smog and air pollution put added pressure on the lungs and, secondarily, on the heart. This may be the reason for the anginal pains you describe. There are, of course, other reasons for these pains which might have occurred even if you had not moved to California.

Cigarette smoking, for example, is a severe form of local pollution. This and all other forms of air pollution are the targets of attack by students of environmental conditions who are trying so desperately to return to man his rightful heritage of clean air.

It is not sufficient for you to speculate about the cause of your chest pain. More important is the need for you to find out the exact reason for it.

Let's tour Ohio

Itinerary: Malabar, Kingwood

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of short tours of Ohio travel attractions prepared by the Fayette County Automobile Club for The Record-Herald.

Do you know where the late actor Humphrey Bogart and actress Lauren Bacall were married in 1945?

The answer is Malabar Farm, home of the late Louis Bromfield, Pulitzer Prize winning author, located 12 miles southeast of Mansfield, the suggested tour area for this AAA trip of the week.

In and around Mansfield, a highly industrial city, are some 3,000 acres of public lakes, 2,000 camping sites, a championship race course, two ski centers, a toboggan run and a number of canoe liveries where 500 canoes are ready and waiting for the adventuresome river traveler.

One of Mansfield's outstanding attractions is Kingwood Center and Gardens. The Center's 47 acres bloom with many beautiful varieties between April and October, with at least one variety at its peak at all times. The center is an educational institution that puts emphasis on gardening, horticultural and nature study.

Kingwood Hall, a 27-room French provincial mansion, and the gardens are the estate of the late industrialist Charles Kelley King who died at the age of 84 in 1952.

IN THE SAME AREA as Kingwood Hall is the Blockhouse, a 20 by 20 foot timber fort built in 1812. Now a Scout meeting place, it was once used by Johnny Appleseed and later was converted to a jail. You will notice a monument to the famed appleseed planter located nearby.

Malabar Farm has 715 acres and the Big House, Bromfield's home, consists of 31 rooms. Many priceless heirlooms are on display and tours of the house and grounds are available.

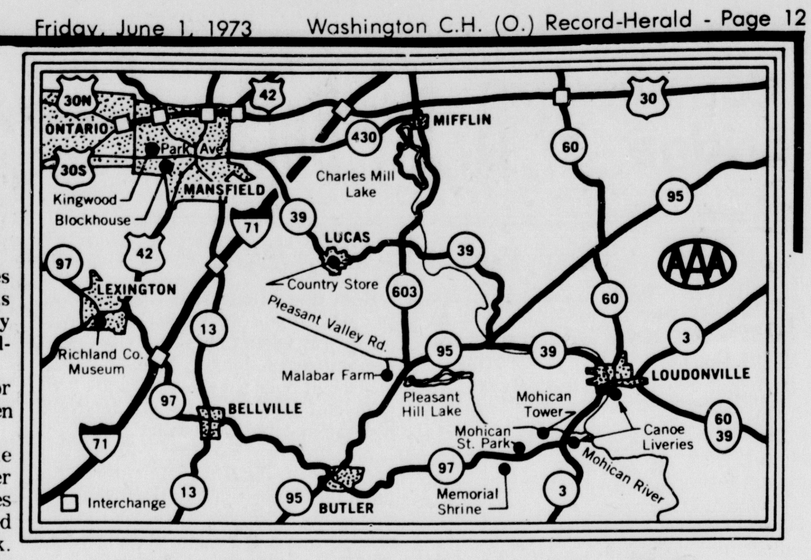
Malabar Farm recently was entered in the national registry of historic places which makes the state eligible for federal matching funds for restoration projects on the farm.

The Country Store, in nearby Lucas, contains collections of early American, Amish and Pennsylvania Dutch Country items.

The Muskingum Conservancy District, a short distance southeast of the tour area, is comprised of more than 16,000 acres of lakes with 365 miles of shoreline, affording ample facilities for outdoor activities.

AAA suggests this route to the tour area: From Washington C. H. take the CCC Highway to I-71. Continue north on I-71 to the Mansfield and touring area.

Wedding gifts should be sent to the bride's home where they may be displayed for reception guests to admire. However, if the reception is not held in the home, gifts should not be taken to a public place for viewing.



Import dollar prices boosted by Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The Central Bank announced Wednesday that prices of import dollars had been increased 50 to 200 per cent.

The increases exclude the importation of food and prime materials which will maintain an exchange of 20 to 25 escudos per dollar.

The adhesive postage stamp was invented by James Chalmers, a Scottish bookseller.

WCH man fined, jailed on telephone complaint

A 26-year-old Washington C.H. man was ordered by Municipal Court Judge Reed M. Winegardner to obtain psychiatric treatment after being found guilty of making obscene telephone calls.

The case, heard Thursday afternoon, involved calls made by Kenneth E. Blade, 26, of 332 E. Paint St., to a local woman.

Judge Winegardner also fined Blade $250 and sentenced him to 60 days in the county jail. He suspended 30 days of the jail term pending regular progress reports from a psychiatrist. He also placed Blade on two-year probation.

Blade was arrested Wednesday after a call to the woman had been traced by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. to Blade's phone. Officers said the woman had been receiving the calls since April and a tracer had been placed on her phone in mid-May.

Blade pleaded guilty to the charge.

Keith E. Blade, 20, of 162 Eastview Rd., was fined $100 and costs on a disorderly conduct complaint filed by city police.

Officers said Blade had become angry and began cursing when he was refused permission to visit his brother, Kenneth Blade, in jail Wednesday night. He entered a guilty plea.

William L. Paul, 34, of Grove City, forfeited $25 bond when he failed to appear in court on a charge of driving a motor vehicle beyond a "no vehicle" sign. He was arrested at Deer Creek Reservoir, by conservation officers May 18.

Theft, vandalism reports checked; trailer missing

A variety of theft and vandalism incidents were investigated by city police and sheriff's departments Thursday.

Police reported they are investigating a possible conversion of trust incident involving a car trailer rented from Phillip's Rent-All, 276 Oakland Ave.

Employes told police a man who had identified himself as Steve W. Kight, of Worthington, had rented the trailer, valued at $1,300, Tuesday morning and had agreed to return it Wednesday, but he never came back.

A check disclosed that the license was not registered to the car he was driving at the time.

A burglar entered the office of Dr. Robert Harris, 1414 Washington Ave., sometime Wednesday night and made off with a radio and $55 in a cash box.

Police said the intruder had pried open the rear office door to gain entry. Nothing else was reported missing. Loss was set at $155.

Two batteries were stolen from a tractor and car parked in the barnyard of the Frank M. King farm, Rockwell Rd., Thursday afternoon. Loss was set at $49.

Sheriff's deputies also investigated an apparent burglary at the Martha J. Ruth home, Good Hope. She told officers that someone had entered her home sometime after Sunday, taking an iron, a radio and some clothing from the house. A 10-speed bicycle also was stolen from her yard. The items were valued at $161.

Donald E. Wood, 409 Van Deman St., reported four windows in his home had been knocked out by vandals throwing rocks early Friday morning. Damage was estimated at $25.

JAMES DUNN

Dunn to serve as Community Chest secretary

James Dunn, executive vice president of the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce, has accepted the additional position of secretary of the Community Chest, according to a joint statement by the boards of directors of the Community Chest and Chamber.

The two organizations will continue to function seperately and formulate their own programs. "The Chest assignment is not full time and should have no affect on Dunn's responsibilities in his other role," the statement said.

Dunn has been Chamber executive for about two years. He is replacing Perse Harlow and Miss Mary Frances Snyder on the Chest board.

Irish elections may bring trouble

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

The Irish Republic's surprise choice of English-born Protestant Erskine Childers as president opens the way for a new attack on religious feuding in Northern Ireland, but Childers doubts whether his victory will have any immediate effect.

Terrorists killed two persons in Belfast late Thursday as Northern Ireland held local council elections as a prelude to legislative elections June 28. The Protestant Unionist Party, which has ruled Ulster for 50 years, again held firm control.

More than 88 per cent of the electorate voted in some areas and observers saw this as a defeat for the Irish Republican Army, which had called for a total boycott of the polls.

In his presidential campaign Childers, 68, promised to try to get Northern Ireland's Protestants and Catholics to the conference table in an effort to bring peace to the six counties under British rule.

Despite his religion, his English upbringing and opposition to the Irish Republican Army, Childers is expected to have trouble persuading Ulster Protestants that a Dublin politician can offer a genuine hand of friendship.

Although the Republic's new government has also proclaimed aims of national reconciliation, the new president's personal initiative is limited by the constitutional role of the Irish presidency, which is largely ceremonial and akin to the British monarchy.

Some observers note, however, that such limitations did not prevent King George V from making personal initiatives to solve the Irish question in 1920.

"I would like to use whatever influence I have in establishing a common feeling between the two parts of the country and above all in helping the two communities in the North to get to know each other better," Childers said Thursday.

Childers replaces Eamon de Valera, the 91-year-old founder of Fianna Fail who held the presidency for more than a half century during the stormiest era of Irish politics.

The New York-born de Valera, now fragile and nearly blind, plans to retire to a home for the elderly in suburban Dublin with his 95-year-old wife, Sinead.

3 elderly Toledo residents killed

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Three elderly Toledo area people died Thursday night and early today as the result of separate traffic accidents.

Mabel Gill, 64, of Sylvania, died Thursday night of injuries received earlier in the day in a three-car accident at an intersection in Sylvania Township.

David Byrne, 78, of Toledo, died Thursday night in a Toledo hospital. Byrne was injured in a two-car accident at a Toledo intersection May 19.

Court News

DAMAGE SUIT FILED

Dorothy Stolzenburg, 804 Maple St., is seeking $10,000 damages on behalf of her daughter, Carey, in a Common Pleas Court suit. The plaintiff charges that the child was bitten by a dog owned by William Smith, of 1357 Dennis Rd., in March, 1972, and that Smith is responsible for injuries sustained. The child lost part of her ear in the mishap, the petition states.

The plaintiff also states that the child was not on the defendant's property and that the dog was not tied, but running loose, contrary to city ordinance.

The suit seeks a judgement to pay for plastic surgery and to compensate for pain and mental anguish the child allegedly suffered.

DIVORCE ACTION FILED

Betty J. Hanners, Rt. 2, Washington C.H., has petitioned Common Pleas Court for a divorce from Alva L. Hanners on grounds of neglect and cruelty. The plaintiff seeks custody of four minor children, support for their care and alimony. The parties were married on July 3, 1959, in Richmond, Ind.

DIVORCE SUIT DISMISSED

On motion of the plaintiff, Margaret Garringer, of Rt. 4, Washington C.H., a divorce action filed against Neil Garringer May 4 has been dismissed in Common Pleas Court.

JUVENILE COURT

David E. Stolzenburg, of 1298 Oak St., was found to be guilty of neglecting a child in disposition of charges filed by Stella C. Stolzenburg, of 430 Lewis St., in Juvenile Court. The court ordered that Stolzenburg make weekly child support payments.

Twister hits in Florida; several hurt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fair skies and mild temperatures favored most of the nation today, but isolated thunderstorms were scattered from California to the Rockies, from the southern Plains to the south Atlantic coast and over the Great Lakes region.

A tornado touched down near Arcadia, Fla., Thursday night, causing several injuries and destroying a house. Another twister was sighted near Muskegon, Mich.; and high winds damaged parts of Lewisburg, Tenn.

The National Weather Service said there have been more tornadoes so far this year than in the first five months of any previous year. More than 700 have been reported with a month left in the tornado season.

The weather service also announced that the hurricane season opened today and continues through November. The first storms will be named Alice, Belinda and Christina.

More than 2½ inches of rain drenched Houston, Tex., Thursday evening. Thunderstorms stirred up dust and sand in the Southwest, and large hail pounded Tonto Hills, Ariz.

The official weather station in Phoenix, Ariz., registered one-tenth of an inch of rain Thursday, the greatest rainfall there on that date in 75 years. But in West Phoenix, more than 2.5 inches fell, causing local flooding.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 37 at Marquette, Mich., to 84 at Needles, Calif.

Property damage crashes reported

Only two minor traffic mishaps were reported in the city-county area by police and sheriff's departments.

A car driven by Betty A. Wilson, 21, Rt. 1, was traveling southbound in an alley in New Martinsburg and collided with a fence, Wednesday morning, sheriff's deputies reported.

Approximately 20 feet of fence on property owned by William H. Johnson, 406 Highland Ave., was damaged.

A car owned by Stephen E. Frazier, Rt. 2, was struck by a hitskip driver Thursday afternoon while parked in the Memorial Hospital lot. There was damage to the right front door and fender of the 1970 model car.

DO OTHER PEOPLE MAKE YOU NERVOUS?
Learn To Drive Without Other Students In The Car.

If you learn to drive in a public school Driver Education program you will have three other students in the car to observe you and to make you nervous. During your 6 hours of driving you also must spend 18 hours of observation in the car with other students doing the driving.

In a commercial driving training course there are no other students in the car with you while you are receiving your instruction. You also receive 8 hours of behind the wheel instruction instead of the 6 hours that you receive in a public school program.

Any Educator will tell you that individual instruction is the best method to teach a student. Statistics also prove that a higher percentage of students that pass their driving test the first time.....have been taught at a commercial driving school.

Indian airlines jet crash fatal to 48 persons

NEW DELHI (AP) — As grieving relatives watched, policemen and firemen picked through the rubble of a crashed Indian Airlines Boeing 737 today searching for the remains of the last of 48 victims.

Hospitals reported that some of the 17 survivors of the crash Thursday night were suffering critical burns and other injuries.

Among the dead were several foreigners, including four Americans, three Britons and a Japanese.

Three Americans and a Japanese were reported to have survived. None had been positively identified.

By noon, 47 bodies had been recovered. Few were identifiable, officials said, but relatives of Mohan Kumaramangalam, an Indian government minister and confidant of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, positively identified his body by a pen and hearing aid.

The son of Gurnam Singh, India's high commissioner-designate to Australia, identified his father's body from a ring.

Rescue officials said the survivors were seated in the front of the aircraft, a twin-engine jet, when it crashed about three miles from New Delhi Airport one minute before it was scheduled to land.

Survivors said the 58 passengers were fastening their seat belts when the plane appeared to break apart and pitched into the earth.

The plane, Indian Airlines flight 440 from Madras, was demolished from the impact and the fire that followed.

It was unclear what caused the crash, which occurred in a driving dust and rainstorm in a rocky, desolate area about 1½ miles from an upper class residential area.

The crash was the third Indian Airlines disaster in 18 months. A Fokker Friendship crashed in South India in December 1971, killing all 31 persons aboard, and another Fokker Friendship crashed on landing at New Delhi Airport last Aug. 11. Eighteen persons died in that crash.

Both men have been at the facility in the Industrial Park since 1967, the first year of operation.

Forget Watergate, Agnew urges

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Congressmen should be worrying less about Watergate and working more on the energy shortage and similar problems, Vice President Spiro Agnew says.

Agnew added that he didn't mean to include the Senate committee investigating the bugging incident.

He described President Nixon as "a man under intense pressure...reacting absolutely in a top-flight manner."

He used the phrase "juicy morsels of gossip and accusation" to describe unproven charges in the Watergate probe and said the Republican party "is not involved, not indicted and not responsible."

Agnew spoke to about 1,500 party faithful at a $150-a-plate fund raising dinner Thursday night.

"It might be a good idea for some members of Congress," Agnew said, "to think a little bit about the amount of time they're devoting to speculations over what might eventually emerge from the Watergate investigation."

The public, he said, those "who are currently worried about the energy shortage and the gasoline problem would like to see those congressmen get to work on some of those matters rather than worrying so much about the Watergate."

The presidency is normally a high-pressure position, he said, and "the constant assaults that are coming out of the current investigations" are pyramiding those pressures.

Add "the hearsay and rumor that swirls about him" and "the picking that is being done about minor matters such as security installations at San Clemente," Agnew said, and "you have a man under intense pressure."

But Nixon, the vice president said, "is reacting absolutely in a topflight manner under the most severe fire."

He said that though some are "hoping against hope to find the corpse of the presidency...the vultures will be disappointed. The President is alive and well and just as vigorous as ever."

The turnout was about 800 less than the crowd that showed up for an Agnew speech here in 1971. That gathering at $200 a plate, brought in about $460,000, compared with about $220,000 this time.

Robert Hughes, chairman of the Cuyahoga County GOP Executive Committee, said "ticket sales went very well." He indicated he felt Watergate wasn't a factor in the lower turnout. Other party spokesmen said the crowd was smaller because 1973 is an off year in Ohio and national politics.

Actors needed for 'Tecumseh' support roles

CHILLICOTHE — Approximately 15 actors are needed to fill supporting roles in "Tecumseh!", outdoor historical drama which will premiere June 30 in Chillicothe, Ohio's new Sugarloaf Mountain amphitheatre.

Actors should be at least 16 years old, and over 5 feet, 10 inches tall.

"Since the actors will be performing as Indians and soldiers in some of the scenes, they should be prepared for fairly active participation," said Dr. David Weiss, director of the drama.

"The actors will be working full days from June 11 until June 30, but after that only in the evenings," Dr. Weiss noted.

Tours of Alcatraz Prison set by National Park Service

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "And that was Al Capone's cell, up there at the end, on the second tier."

The tour director was pointing to a steel cubicle where the late Chicago crime czar spent his years on Alcatraz, island home for 1,576 federal convicts for 29 years. It was closed in 1962.

The National Park Service, current overseers of the abandoned prison, plans to start public tours Nov. 1 after receiving thousands of requests from people curious to see the notorious penitentiary.

Behind the bars, locks, steel doors and gun walks once strode the elite of American crime. Besides Capone, there was Basil "The Owl" Banghart, Terrible Roger Touhy's triggerman; and Creepy Karpis, gunman, kidnaper and graduate of Ma Barker's Midwestern gang of the 1930s.

Reporters given a preview tour Thursday approached "The Rock" in San Francisco Bay from the west side, 2½ miles from the Golden Gate Bridge. Swift currents swirl around the rocky island, generating powerful surges on the shore that were a deterrent to escape.

The island is nearly choked with the wild growths of flowers, shrubs, grasses and trees planted over the years by the Army and later the families of guards who watched over the Alcatraz convicts. A glass greenhouse sits on a cliff nearly overgrown with weeds and has a million-dollar view of the San Francisco skyline.

Each cubicle in the cell areas measures 9-by-5 feet and is 7-feet high. Inside, inmates had a folding table and chair.

From this prison at least 25 prisoners tried to escape. Five were shot to death and at least 12 were recaptured before they made it into the water. In 1962, John Paul Scott, a Kentucky robber, made it all the way to shore — the first ever to have done it. He was recaptured.

Couple uses retirement checks for globetrotting

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A rocking chair holds no attraction for retirees Carolyn and Charles Planck. They much prefer a rocking boat, such as the little rusty bucket that took them from Pago Pago in American Samoa in Apia in Western Samoa on a recent six-month circuit of the Pacific.

In the 10 years since their retirement they have also traveled by freighter, local airlines, trains, buses, ferries — any vehicle that could help them "mosey about the world on our retirement check."

The couple's budget travel plan has taken them around the world in 387 days and has allowed them to spend a full year in Europe, in addition to their 21,000-mile tour of the South Pacific and Japan, at an average cost of $30 a day for two, including transportation.

"Most people live it up on a trip, but if you are willing to live at the level that you ordinarily do at home you can travel on your retirement income," explains Planck, a white-haired and hearty 76.

CHARLES AND CAROLYN PLANCK

HE RETIRED in 1962 as a public relations officer with the Federal Aviation Agency. At the same time Mrs. Planck, now 63, resigned from the editorial staff of the National Education Assn. Journal and they embarked on their first venture, the year in Europe.

"A spate of travel is a good bridge between full-time work and full-time leisure, and periodic travel is a good refresher for retirement living," Planck says. "If you leave home and go into an entirely strange milieu you get a new approach to life.

"If you're retired you have the complication of less money, but when you have the time you can take advantage of transportation bargains. You don't need deluxe rooms with baths," he adds. "When you're planning a trip ask specifically for information on travel and accommodations you can afford."

The Plancks have written a book about their latest tour, "Pacific Paradise on a Low Budget." They visited Hawaii, and Samoas, Tonga, Fiji Islands, Australia, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Japan, staying mostly in guest houses.

"IF YOU WANT to see how the people live go people-to-people," advises Mrs. Planck. "Aside from spending extra money, when you stay in big hotels you're just meeting a lot of tourists from America."

"A managed tour is probably best for the first-time traveler," her husband suggests. "You get to see everything and the next time you're sure of yourself and know it can be done."

The Plancks had liked Suva, capital of the Fijis, when they stopped off for one day on their world tour. This time they settled down there for two months. "We established a fixed base in an apartment," Planck says. "We have found you can live less expensively if you don't flit around like nervous birds, but nest in one tree for a time."

ONE of the highlights of their trip was going to see a genuine firewalking religious rite in Suva. Another was when a Tongan chief set out a feast for them, including a roast chicken complete with head and feet.

"You ought not to be afraid of food," warns Mrs. Planck. "I knew I would be confronted with a lot of raw fish in Japan and I deliberately learned to eat it before I got there. Why go if you're going to eat the same things as at home?"

The Plancks, who live in Fremont, Calif., in a house they rent while they travel, are preparing for their next trip. They're going to Yugoslavia for a year, boarding a freighter in New Orleans.

U.S. Navy opens barrage on San Diego's 'Tattoo City'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — "Tattoo City" is getting a little fire from the Navy.

Capt. William Carson, chief of dermatology at San Diego Naval Hospital, wants the state to close the dozens of tattoo parlors in the city.

"New York has done it, and I'm surprised that a state as progressive as California has made no move to stop it, said Carson.

As the site of a major Navy base, San Diego has been called "Tattoo City" since World War II and thousands of sailors have used the parlors.

But Carson said many often check into the hospital right after getting tattoos.

"They do not seem to realize that a tattoo is a permanent disfiguration...as far as infection goes, it's just something you don't see," he said, noting that the Navy has a program to remove unwanted tattoos.

Doc Webb, who has been in the tattoo business 40 years, says his shop is visited periodically by state health inspectors. And, he said servicemen account for only half his business. The rest include women and businessmen.

Today's most popular tatoo is one of Jesus Christ, Webb said.

But despite the protest, tattoos and sailors seem destined to go on.

A 23-year-old sailor from Long Beach who identified himself only as Clem says he set a personal goal of 52 tattoos, one for every month he'll spend in the Navy. He has exceeded that already.

Lil' Joe's shot benefits Grimsley

Morgan's homer ends Cardinal win string

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Joe Morgan describes himself as in a slump, but don't tell that to Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The bantam-size Cincinnati Reds' All-Star second baseman socked a pitch for a home run Thursday night that made others pine for such troubles.

Morgan's home run, his first off Gibson in nine major league seasons, decided a 3-2 decision and ended a Cardinals' winning streak at eight games.

But afterward the 5-foot-7 speedster called himself "not confident at the plate" and added, "I'm not swinging good.

"I didn't hit the ball real good," Morgan insisted of a 3- and-1 fast ball Gibson said was aimed at "just getting it over the plate."

"I reached for the ball," Morgan added. "I hit it more with my hands than my body. A guy goes through that at a certain time every year.

"When I hit it I thought it had a chance, but I didn't tie into it that well. I hit a couple in batting practice better, but neither one of them went out of the park."

JOE MORGAN

Morgan's blast, a 360-foot drive over the right field wall, was his second damaging blow to Gibson and the Cards for the night.

The other was a high-bouncing ball off the AstroTurf that skipped over first baseman Joe Torre and went for a double with none out and Pete Rose on first in the fourth.

Gibson, 3-6, struck out Larry Stahl, who batted next, but Johnny Bench beat out a 60-foot infield roller to score Rose and Tony Perez drove a sacrifice fly.

Lou Brock homered with rookie Mike Tyson aboard to pull St. Louis to a 2-2 tie, but a later Cards bid failed when Bench's arm rifled down Tyson on an attempted sacrifice and a subsequent Brock single was wasted.

The perplexed Gibson, who yielded six hits, said he was aware Morgan's shot was his first off him for the circuit.

"You know when guys have hit home runs off you," he said. "You know also whan they haven't hit them. You just don't know how many."

Benefitting from Morgan's hit was Reds' left-hander Ross Grimsley, 5-4, who pitched a seven-hitter and completed his first game since May 2.

"I was tired at the end," said Grimsley, who has a 6-0 career mark against the Cards, "but otherwise I felt good. I guess I just have it in for this club."

Cubs blitz Houston

Stargell's HR spoils tidy effort by Gentry

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I throw hard and Willie Stargell swings hard," said Gary Gentry, "so if he hits the ball, it stands to reason it's going to go a long way."

Stargell hit the ball hard, and it went a long way Thursday night.

Pittsburgh's veteran slugger blasted a three-run homer against the Atlanta right-hander in the bottom of the eighth inning, spoiling an otherwise neat job by Gentry and lifting the Pirates to a 3-1 victory over the Braves.

The homer was Stargell's 14th this season, tops in the major leagues. It also was a tape measure job, landing in the upper deck of Three Rivers Stadium, an area reached only three times before...each of those times by Stargell.

Neliie Briles, who doesn't have to worry about pitching to Stargell, earned the victory with a three-hitter.

Elsewhere in the slim National League schedule, Chicago battered Houston 16-8 and Cincinnati edged St. Louis 3-2.

Cincinnati ended St. Louis' winning streak at eight games, beating the Cardinals on a home run by Joe Morgan.

Morgan's sixth homer of the year snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning to beat Bob Gibson, 3-6. He had doubled in the fourth when the reds scored their first two runs.

Lou Brock had a two-run homer for the Cardinals.

Jose Cardenal and Carmen Fanzone each drilled two-run singles in a 10-run Chicago explosion in the first inning as the Cubs blitzed Houston.

All of the Cubs runs were unearned with Doug Rader's two-out error opening the gates. Randy Hundley singled home a run during the first inning rally and added a home run in the fifth. Rick Monday also homered for the Cubs.

Granatelli urges speed cuts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Before this year's accident-jinxed Indianapolis 500 race Andy Granatelli said speeds had increased to the point that the event was unsafe.

Now Granatelli, whose STP corporation ran the car Gordon Johncock drove to victory, says his team will pull out of Indianapolis and United States Automobile Club competition next year unless there are changes.

"All of us in racing must face the fact that we are simply going faster than our tracks and drivers can safely handle these flying missiles," he said Thursday. "This is not only a demand for reform but a sincere and sad plea to all of my fellows in racing to assist me in obtaining this kind of reform."

Granatelli has been involved in Indianapolis racing since 1946.

STP also sponsors entries in NASCAR stock car racing.

Granatelli said moves should be made to lower the speeds of the USAC race cars and the hazards of fire. He has urged limiting the amounts of fuel a car may carry or use in a race and fuel tanks with an extra bladder inside the normal bladder to cut down explosions.

Canadiens place 3 on NHL all-star unit

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens, the 1972-73 National Hockey League Stanley Cup champions, placed three players on the NHL All-Star first team, the NHL announced today.

The Canadiens, who finished first in the East Division, then defeated Buffalo, Philadelphia and Chicago for the Stanley Cup, placed goaiie Ken Dryden, defenseman Guy Lapointe and left winger Frank Mahovlich on the NHL's first team.

Defenseman Bobby Orr and center Phil Esposito, both of the Boston Bruins, joined Mickey Redmond of the Detroit Red Wings in rounding out the team.

Gordon Johncock nets hefty Indy 500 check

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Gordon Johncock and the rest of the winning team in the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race will share a prize totaling $236,022.82.

It is the second largest firstplace prize in the 57 years the race has been run. For the fourth straight year, the total purse topped $1 million.

But this year's $1,006,105 bonanza fell short of the 1972 total — $1,011,845.

Al Unser, who wound up 20th this year, holds the individual payoff record with a $271,697 cut in 1970.

The payoff checks are being mailed because the victory dinner was canceled after the rain twice postponed the race. Johncock's victory Wednesday also was marred by bad weather with the race halted after 133 laps.

The lap money was prorated with each 2½-mile lap worth about $225 to the leader. Johncock led 34 laps.

Billy Vukovich, only other driver to complete the full 133 laps, earned $97,512.82 for second place. Roger McCluskey received $60,752,82 for third, Mel Kenyon $34,487.82 for fourth and Gary Bettenhausen $37,965.82 for fifth.

Salt Walther, injured in a first-lap accident the first time the race was started Monday, won $13,962.80 for 33rd place.

Walther was listed in serious condition today at Methodist Hospital, the same hospital where driver Swede Savage was taken after his car crashed during the 58th lap Wednesday.

Savage, 26, Santa Ana,Calif., was reported in critical condition. A spokesman for his team said Savage had experienced some kidney problems, has a collapsed lung and suffered some flame inhalation.

The spokesman said extensive surgery would be needed on Savage's right hand. Savage wrote notes with his left hand Thursday, asking his mother and father what had happened, the spokesman said. He added Savage reported he didn't know what caused the crash but didn't think the wing had come off his car as listed in one report.

Meanwhile, Frankie DelRoy, submitted his resignation of chairman of the technical committee for the Indianapolis race and technical chief for the U.S. Auto Club's championship trail. But USAC officials said they were trying to persuade DelRoy to tear up his resignation.

Holtzman retires 20 Yanks before injury

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Oakland pitcher Ken Holtzman said Jim Ray Hart was always able to hit him, he didn't mean it literally—at least not till now.

Holtzman, the A's ace lefthander, was breezing along with a one-hitter after retiring the first 20 Yankees in order until Hart led off the eighth inning with a line shot off Holtzman's left leg.

The ball caromed on the fly to Deron Johnson at first base for the out, but Holtzman had to limp off the field. Rollie Fingers came on to complete the A's one-hit, 6-0 triumph over New York Thursday night.

Reggie Jackson hit a two-run triple and a solo homer to provide batting support for Holtzman. Sal Bando also homered for the A's, who ended a five-game losing streak.

In other American League games, the California Angels edged the Boston Red Sox 7-6, the Kansas City Royals beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-1, the Chicago White Sox blasted the Detroit Tigers 10-2, the Minnesota Twins defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2 and the Texas Rangers beat the Cleveland Indians 9-5.

Bob Oliver, who came into the month of May with just three runs batted in, boosted his season total to 29 with a three-run homer in the seventh inning, lifting California past Boston. It was his seventh home run of the season.

Kansas City pitcher Gene Garber raised his record to 5-1 with a six-hitter over the Orioles, and he did it by not falling behind the batters.

Dick Allen blasted a three-run homer and a run-scoring double for the White Sox, who snapped Detroit's five-game winning streak. Ed Herrmann also homered for Chicago, and Eddie Fisher, 5-3, pitched a complete game.

Consecutive singles by George Mitterwald, Jim Holt and Danny Thompson broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning and put the Twins ahead to stay. Harmon Killebrew, who had a run-scoring single in the first inning, provided an insurance run with a solo homer in the eighth.

Texas scored eight runs in four innings against Cleveland. Jeff Burroughs' two-run double highlighted a four-run first inning, and Rico Carty blasted a homer for two more runs in the second.

Tom Weiskopf Kemper open golf leader

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf has two big pluses going for him.

"I'm playing about as well as I ever have," he said after his brilliant, course recordmatching 65 in Thursday's first round of the $200,000 Kemper Open.

The other plus——Jack Nicklaus isn't here.

Nicklaus, who scored a comfortable, front running victory over runner-up Weiskopf last week in Atlanta, isn't competing. He's the only man able to handle the streaking Weiskopf in recent weeks.

While his seven-under-par effort tied the course record at the 7,219-yard Quail Hollow Country Club layout, he needed every stroke to stay in front of youthful Lanny Wadkins. Wadkins, the Byron Nelson winner, had a 66.

At 67 were Ken Still, Mac McLendon, Bert Green, Leonard Thompson and red-headed rookie Pat Fitzsimons.

Arnold Palmer, coming off a one-month layoff, and Australian Bruce Crampton, a threetime winner this year, headed a group of more than a half dozen at 68 as the touring pros took advantage of near-perfect golfing weather to make a mockery of par.

More than half the field of 147 matched or bettered par 72 and there were 60 in sub-par figures.

Among them were 61-year-old marvel Sam Snead, 69; Lee Trevino, 70; and defending Kemper champion Doug Sanders, 71.

Gary Player, the little South African, making only his second start of the season in the United States, could do no better than 75 and must improve if he is to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Reeds Pence winner at Lebanon Raceway

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Lebanon Raceway tonight hosts the third annual James K. Hackett Memorial Race for Ohio-sired pacers.

A total of 22 horses are entered in the fifth and sixth races, which each have a $2,625 purse.

Ten fillies are entered in the fifth mile race and 12 geldings will run in the sixth.

Junior champ track event set Saturday

The annual junior champ track meet, sponsored by the Washington C.H. Jaycees, will be held Saturday at Gardner Park Stadium.

Don Gibbs, chairman of the Jaycee project, said the event is open to all youngsters in Fayette County ages 9-16 for competition in four divisions. Registration opens at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, Gibbs said.

Donohue challenges Jody Scheckter in Mid-Ohio race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Mark Donohue turns to the L&M Formula 5000 road racing series this weekend, throwing a challenge at pacesetter Jody Scheckter in the $80,600 MidOhio.

Roger Penske has his Javelin-powered Lola T330 ready for Donohue, an Indianapolis 500 veteran, to drive for the first time this season.

The crack twosome was scheduled earlier in the nine-race series sponsored by the Sports Car Club of America, but ran into difficulties. The original car was destroyed in a fire Jan. 22 after its first day of tests.

Meanwhile, Scheckter has been sensational in his first season in the series.

The 23-year-old South African finished second behind Briton Brian Redman in the opener at Riverside, Calif., April 29 and won the next two at Monterey, Calif., May 6 and Cambridge Junction, Mich., May 20.

Redman hasn't raced since the series opener and with Donohue and 38 drivers makes this the strongest stop in the nine-race series.

Scheckter has a commanding lead in the L&M points race with 55, 20 ahead of runnerup Peter Gethin of England and 33 in front of No. 3 David Hobbs, another Briton.

Tony Adamowicz, the last American to win the series title in 1969, is fifth in the standings with 18 points, two behind Redman.

Qualifying Saturday will determine the starting grids in twin 100-mile heat races Sunday before the 100-mile finals over the twisting 2.4-mile asphalt course.

A classy cast of eight returning players will form the nucleus of the 1973 Washington C.H. Post 25 American Legion baseball edition.

Dennis Morris, the new Post 25 manager, will be depending on the eight veterans, a solid pitching staff plus a strong defense in hopes of a successful summer campaign.

The Post 25 Legionnaries, who will launch an ambitious 30-game schedule Sunday afternoon when Yellow Springs invades for a non-league doubleheader at the WSHS diamond, will be hoping to improve 26-10-1 all-games record and 12-3 South Central Ohio League chart posted by last year's team.

MORRIS, former head baseball coach and athletic director at Madison Plains, will campaign with a roster of 18 players, including seven from his 1973 Darby Valley League baseball championship team at Madison Plains.

Four players from head coach Dave Pellior's 1973 SCOL championship version at Miami Trace and four from Washington C.H.'s baseball team comprise the bulk of the Post 25 roster.

Circleville, Westfall and Jamestown-Greeneview high schools are also represented on the roster with one player each.

Veteran infielder Tony Grooms, a product of Miami Trace, and hard-throwing Randy Rodgers, a former Madison Plains pitching ace, top Post 25's stable of returning talent.

Grooms, who landed four consecutive All-SCOL baseball berths and is headed for Ohio University on a baseball scholarship after swatting .625 for the SCOL champion Panthers, is expected to nail down the starting second base spot.

RODGERS, a lanky righthander, was one of Washington C.H. Post 25's pitching aces a year ago.

Other veterans include Alan Coppock, a two-time All-SCOL first sacker with head coach Rodger Mickle's Washington C.H. Blue Lions; Paul England, the SCOL's all-star catcher from Circleville who was a regular with Post 25 last summer; Randy Reiber, of Miami Trace, and Chris Shaper, of Washington C.H., a pair of slick infielders who were named to All-SCOL honorable mention berths this spring; Scott Riddle, of Westfall, and Larry Rodgers, of Madison Plains.

Coppock is expected to grab the starting first base position in addition to seeing some duty in the outfield, while England looms as Post 25's backstop. Shaper and Larry Rodgers are billed for infield duty and Riddle will roam the outer garden.

Reiber will be one of the keys in Washington C.H.'s pitching staff which has seven hurlers, six of which had excellent experience in high school. Reiber is also scheduled for infield duty.

Tom Riley, who won All-SCOL honorable mention accolades as a sophomore, at Miami Trace, and spunky righthander Mark Johnson, of Washington C.H., will also be mainsprings in Post 25's mound corps. Johnson, who was named to an all-league honorable mention berth as a junior, is also tagged for action in the outfield.

Jay Mossbarger, of Miami Trace, and Randy Sparkman, of Washington C.H. are set for catching and infield duties, respectively.

Rodgers, Reiber, Riley and Johnson will be joined on the mound by Steve Bailey, a burly southpaw from Madison Plains. In addition, Morris has Jeff Green and Rick Forrest, both from Madison Plains, to compliment his solid pitching staff.

COMPLETING the Washington C.H. roster are Steve Haines, an infielder from Jamestown-Greeneview; Geoff Smith, a catcher-infielder from Madison Plains, and Don Parks, an infielder from Madison Plains.

Post 25's defense will be strong, particularly in the infield where Coppock is expected to handle the first base chores with the slick-fielding Grooms at second. Third base looms as one of the keys as Morris can employ Riley, Rodgers and Reiber there between their turns on the mound. The shortstop position is up for grabs between Shaper, Haines, Sparkman and Parks.

Johnson is scheduled for centerfield chores when he's not pitching and will probably be flanked by Bailey and Riddle.

Ambitious 30-game schedule set

Washington C.H.'s Post 25 American Legion baseball team will launch an ambitious and prestigious 30-game schedule here Sunday afternoon.

The Post 25 Legionnaries, under the guidance of new manager Dennis Morris, will entertain Yellow Springs in a non-league doubleheader at the Washington Senior High School diamond at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

SCHEDULE conflicts prevented the Washington C.H. team from staging its traditional Memorial Day opener this season.

Wasyington C.H. Post 25 will be trying to recapture the South Central Ohio League and District 7 tournament championships that have eluded them the last two summer seasons, but brought fame and recognition to the team during the 1970 campaign.

This season's schedule includes former Ohio Legion champions and several other perennial baseball toughies. Former titleholders on the 1973 schedule include Grove City, Miamisburg and several times a state and national champion, Cincinnati Bentley Post.

The schedule, arranged by Richard Kelley of the Post 25 baseball committee, is tight and full of doubleheaders and includes a total of 18 games with the six SCOL rivals.

The Washington C.H.-based team will embark on its annual SCOL campaign June 6 in an 8 p.m. encounter with always-tough Chillicothe Post 757. The Chillicothe team is being touted as the SCOL's pre-season favorite, with a handsome number of veterans returning from last year's team. This marks Chillicothe 757's second season in the SCOL

All of Washington C.H.'s 13 home dates will be played at the WSHS diamond which features a grass infield and is being developed into one of the finest fields in the area. There are no admission charges at the American Legion games, but donations are requested to help defray the cost of operation.

Members of the SCOL this season are Washington C.H., Portsmouth, Waverly, Greenfield, Hillsboro, Chillicothe, Post 62 and Chillicothe Post 757. Portsmouth is the defending SCOL champion.

THE SCOL games will be played on Wednesdays and Sundays and there will be no league tournament again this year as it tends to conflict with the District 7 tournament and the opening of high school football drills.

This year, as in the past, all single night games will be nine innings in length and the first game of the afternoon doubleheaders will also be nine innings. The nightcaps of the twinbills will be seven innings, as in past years.

The District 7 tournament is scheduled July 21-24 at Hillsboro and the state tournament site is Ashland College's diamond.

Morris braces for baptism as Post 25's baseball boss

Dennis Morris made his high school coaching debut over four years ago, but the young coach will be premiering in a different role Sunday.

Morris, former head baseball coach and athletic director at Madison Plains High School, will be receiving his baptism as manager of the Washington C.H. Post 25 American Legion baseball team Sunday afternoon when Yellow Springs invades for the opening game of the 1973 summer season.

Actually, a new era in the Washington C.H. American Legion baseball program will start when Morris starts calling the signals in Sunday's doubleheader at the WSHS diamond.

MORRIS, who had coached Madison Plains baseball teams three straight years before resigning recently to continue his education at Miami University and work in the Redskins' baseball program, was named to the Post 25 job August 16, shortly following the resignation of veteran Legion manager Russ Hatfield.

The popular and immensely successful Hatfield retired following the 1972 season. In six consecutive seasons as the Post 25 manager, Hatfield molded the Washington C.H. American Legion baseball program into one of the strongest and most consistent in Ohio.

During Hatfield's tenure, the Washington C.H. American Legion teams posted an enviable 145-96-1 all-games record; captured two district tournament championships, thus winning the same number of berths in the state tournament; won the South Central Ohio League baseball race once, and boasted the distinction of never finishing a league race lower than third place.

Before accepting the head coaching position at Madison Plains three years ago, the soft-spoken Morris was an assistant baseball coach under Paul Hoskins at Westfall High School.

Morris, a 1969 product of Miami University where he was a star baseball player, guided Madison Plains to the finals of the Central District Class AA baseball tournament a year ago only to drop a 7-6 struggle to defending champion Columbus Bishop Wherle.

This season, Madison Plains, under Morris' direction, captured the Darby Valley League baseball championship with a perfect 6-0 record and posted a fine 10-4 all-games chart.

Morris, a 26-year-old bachelor, resides in Mount Sterling and is a graduate of The Plains High School.

All-SCOL baseball stars dot Hughey Post's roster

Stars from this spring's All-South Central Ohio League baseball team dot the roster of the Washington C.H. Post 25 American Legion squad.

Tony Grooms, a product of Miami Trace High School, and Washington C.H.'s Alan Coppock are two members of the Paul H. Hughey Post 25 team who were named to All-SCOL first team berths this season.

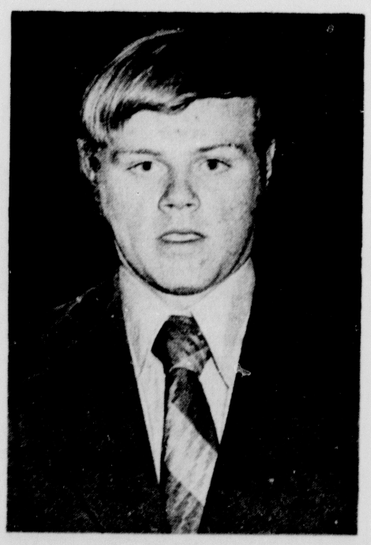
Paul England, of Circleville, is the third All-SCOL member of the Post 25 team, however, four other American Legion players landed All-SCOL honorable mention accolades this spring.

POST 25 players who were named to the league's honorable mention list are Mark Johnson and Chris Shaper, of Washington C.H., and Tom Riley and Randy Reiber, of Miami Trace.

Grooms, who is headed for Ohio University on a full athletic scholarship this fall, was voted the All SCOL team's honorary captain after he received a unanimous vote from the six member coaches. Grooms swatted a sizzling .625 this season and landed his fourth consecutive all-league baseball berth as well as a spot on the Class AAA All-Southeastern District team.

Coppock, who was named to his second straight all-league berth as a first baseman, slugged .358 for head coach Rodger Mickle's Washington C.H. Blue Lion baseball team this season.

TONY GROOMS



ALAN COPPOCK

England finished with a fine .366 average to help Circleville to a successful campaign.

Grooms, Coppock, Reiber and Shaper were members of the Washington C.H. Post 25 team a year ago, while Johnson and Riley will be participating in their first summer of the American Legion program.

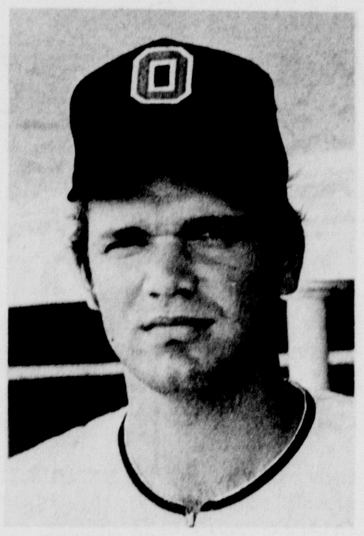
Former Post 25 star sparkles for Bobcats

Steve Bihl, a former Miami Trace High School and Paul H. Hughey Post 25 baseball whiz, turned in another sparkling performance with Ohio University's baseball team this spring.

Bihl, who received a full athletic scholarship to Ohio University and swatted .300 as a freshman, slugged .341 for the Bobcats to finish as the team's fourth leading hitter.

THE SOPHOMORE outfielder played in all of Ohio University's 37 games, made 129 trips to the plate and had scored 29 runs. Bihl's 44 hits was second high on the team and his 13 doubles and two triples tied for club leadership.

The 1971 product of Miami Trace High School cracked two home runs and had 67 total bases, which was second best among the Bobcat players. He knocked in 28 runs, drew 20 walks, made 53 putouts and only one error at his rightfield position. Bihl finished with a fine .987 fielding average.



STEVE BIHL

The 6-foot-2, 195-pound son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bihl, Rt. 5, Washington C.H. was instrumental in Ohio University's 28-9 all-games record this spring. The Bobcats had a 14-4 record in the Mid-American Conference.

Bihl played three seasons with the Post 25 team and was a four-year letterman with the Panthers.

LL slate revamped because of showers

Rain has forced postponement of this week's action in the two Washington C.H. Little Leagues.

Bill Martin, Little League coordinator, said that all four days of action this week have been postponed, but will be rescheduled following the regular season of action which ends July 6 for the major league teams and July 12 for the minor league squads.

Tonight's action in both leagues has been postponed, Martin said. The teams were scheduled to play tonight due to the Memorial Day holiday.

The major league will extend its season July 9-10 and the minor league teams will play July 16-19.

Action will resume as scheduled Monday, Martin said.

Teacher-artist preserves crafts

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Many early American crafts are perishable, a good reason to make an effort to preserve them. So says an artist and teacher of decorative art, Mariette Paine Slayton.

AMERICANA—Mariette Paine Slayton teaches decorative art with Early American techniques. She tells beginners how to brighten their homes with eagles, flowers and stencils on furniture and household equipment.

"Lots of old American things have been lost forever because tin rusts and glass shatters," she explained. "Stone and bronze used in other cultures have survived the centuries in palaces, museums and sarcophagi because they were easier to preserve . . ."

Buried in attics and barns, there may still be much old "beat-up" furniture, tinware and glass that has survived the garbage dump, she remarked, and it should be refinished.

But she cautions anyone unsure of the procedure to consult an expert. If a design is removed or repainted haphazardly, its originality may be lost forever. Rarely are two early decorative designs exactly alike.

EAGLES, fruit, flowers and leaves were the most popular decoration on these old American objects, observed Mrs. Slayton who has just written a book, "Early American Decorating Techniques," which combines some early American techniques with those used in England and Wales.

"I'd like to see more old decorating techniques applied to contemporary things, but I would not like to see new techniques used on old things," she observed.

Simple country painting is a good way for amateurs to begin if they would use old designs on new articles. Coffee pots, syrup jugs, tea cans might be decorated. "In fact, breadboards are ideal for beginner decoration," she advised, suggesting that copies or patterns might be painted on acetate (a thin material) and mounted after one feels the technique has been mastered.

THE EARLY decorated objects, which provided cheeriness in colonial homes that were somber looking with objects made of wood and pewter, were being turned out as early as 1740 by Edward Pattison, an Irishman who had settled in Berlin, Conn. Mrs. Slayton was impressed by the records of his operation which showed the emphasis on good materials.

While women workers were paid only $2 a week, the brushes used by them cost $1 each and the best varnish cost $10 a quart.

The country rose, a primitive red stylized circle, is one of the most popular to be found on old American trays, canisters, candleholders, boxes, tea and coffee pots, she remarked.

Country painting used seven basic strokes — broad, knife, teardrop, straight, oval, "S" and crescent shapes. But other techniques — for example, patting (with the finger) — were used in Pennsylvania German design.

IN ENGLAND the rose used was Chippendale — from about 1760. A beautiful flower with filmy layers of hand painting and transparent washes, it was more like roses used by old expressionists, Rembrandt and Van Eyck.

Many of these old designs found their way to America. But in the latter part of the 19th century such work deteriorated. In her book Mrs. Slayton gives instructions for three types of Chippendale roses.

For beginners there are illustrations showing shadings on cubes, spheres, cones and cylinders which should help in creating the structure of flower forms.

Step by step directions are given for finishing and decorating Boston rockers, Windsor and Hitchcock chairs.

Chapters are devoted to gold leafing and stenciling and there are instructions in reverse glass painting and painting on velvet (theorems.)

Among the full-size patterns of motif are eagles and the designs used on lace-edge trays, among the most sought-after by collectors, many of whom visit Pontypool, Wales, where the fruit trays were first turned out.

A GOOD knowledge of decorating techniques may be parlayed into teaching crafts or provide a moneymaking business, Mrs. Slayton advises.

Most teaching is concentrated in the East, she says, and she has had a student from as far away as California.

"I was eventually supporting myself with my hobby," she remarked, pointing out that her first and best teacher was a self-taught craftsman.

In Danielson, Conn., where she was born, she worked with a cabinetmaker for about 10 years applying stencils to Hitchcock-style and fiddle-back chairs, and she has taught for more than 15 years at a school at Ludlow, Vt.

She now gives some instruction at her home in Montpelier, Vt., where she lives with her husband, an artist who paints in the abstract.

Although she is well known as a portrait painter and is very good at likenesses, she aims now "to improve my painting."

She is also painting miniatures which she finds "physically easier," providing quicker results than the larger painted articles.

2 slayings at prison spark anger

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Calls for restoring the death penalty followed the slaying of the warden and his deputy at Holmesburg Prison. Two inmates previously accused of killing policemen have been charged with the murders.

"When you take away the chair, what can you do with these men?" asked Capt. Leroy Taylor, 49, who received serious stab wounds in the back when he tried to save the two slain prison officials.

"This is a good case for the electric chair. We need the death penalty back," said Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo.

Warden Patrick Curran, 47, was stabbed three times in the back and Deputy Warden Robert Fromhold, 51, was knifed 13 times Thursday, a medical examiner said.

Police said inmates Frederick Burton, 25, and Joseph "Jojo" Bowen, 27, drew knives after being admitted to Fromhold's office. They reportedly sought permission to have Orthodox Muslim prayer meetings seven days a week instead of three.

Police said a fracas began while Fromhold was alone in his office with the two men. Curran and Taylor were attacked when they came to Fromhold's aid after hearing a scuffle, prison officials said.

Police said they recovered two table knives honed to razor sharpness. The 1,200 inmates in the facility built for 700 had been allowed only spoons during meals until this year, when they were allowed forks and knives.

Late corn planting may hurt Ohioans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Agriculture Director Gene Abercrombie says late corn planting could cause soaring meat prices in the state "unless we get some relief from the weather."

Abercrombie Thursday blamed steady rain for what he predicted would be the "worst corn crop in 20 years," if bad weather continues through next week.

Young organist pleases 600 at recital in WCH

A sophisticated audience of about 600 music lovers heard a dazzling performance Thursday night of organ masterpieces performed by Miss Anne Merrill Stewart in First Presbyterian Church.

The recital was the final concert of the season sponsored by the Washington Organ Club, and preceded a club meeting and election of officers.

Miss Stewart, a graduating student of Dr. Wilbert Held at Ohio State University, presented a program of the music of five composers.

The program included "Prelude, Fugue and Chaconne" by Dietrich Buxtehude, "Prelude and Fugue in G Major" by J.S. Bach, "Charale in B Minor" by Cesar Franck, "Toccata, Villancico and Fugue" by Alberto Ginastera, and "Petite Suite" by Gerald Bales.

Following the concert, Mrs. Earl Hartley was hostess at a reception for Miss Stewart and Organ Club members.

DON RIBER was re-elected as president of the club. Other officers are Mrs. John P. Case, vice president; Mrs. Hartley, secretary, and Mrs. Wayne Spengler, treasurer. Serving on the nominating committee were Mrs. Case and Barbara Lanum.

Two gifts were presented to La Tonda Bailey, a sixth grader at Belle Aire School, for having sold the most tickets to the five concerts sponsored during the year by the Organ Club. Through donations the club has raised money for a new harp for the high school in the name of Mrs. Florence Manchester. Money derived from the five concerts, totaling about $900, has been used to repair the organ at the Junior High School. The club hopes to renovate the organ and install a new console.

Burned baby doing well in hospital

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP)—The future remains uncertain for 21-month-old Jason Michael Bernath, who was found beaten and burned on a Brunswick doorstep more than two weeks ago, but Glynn County officials say he may be placed in a foster home.

Jason has been recovering well, according to Dr. E. R. Jennings, after the burned fingers of his left hand were amputated because of gangrene. Jennings said the baby may be released from Glynn-Brunswick Memorial Hospital in about a week.

A spokesman for the Department of Family and Children's Services said the foster home may be a temporary solution, and that the final decision rests with the Glynn County Juvenile Court.

The boy's mother and stepmother, Mrs. Sharon Marshall, 19, and Jimmy Wayne Marshall, 26, face a possible maximum penalty of 25 years each in prison if conficted on charges of aggravated battery and cruelty to a child.

The two are being held in the city jail while they await a Superior Court hearing on the charges.

Jason has had two offers of adoption, one from his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Barbara Wachuta of Middleburg, Ohio, and another from his great uncle, Thomas McKibben of Conneaut, Ohio.

Mrs. Wachuta identified the child after he was found and helped trace the mother. She has said she would also like to press charges against her daughter.

Deny state workers have new agreement

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Joseph Sommer, acting director of the Ohio Department of Personnel, says the new association of state employes has no agreement with the state and his department will continue to recognize the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

Sommer Thursday discounted a report that the new Ohio Government Employes Labor Alliance has signed a working agreement with the State Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.
